MORE than a third part of the following specimens are from plays which are to be found only in the British Museum and in some scarce private libraries. The rest are from Dodsley's and Hawkins's collections, and the works of Jonson, Beaumont and Fletcher, and Massinger.

I have chosen wherever I could to give entire scenes, and in some instances successive scenes, rather than to string together single passages and detached beauties, which I have always found wearisome in the reading in selections of this nature.

To every extract is prefixed an explanatory head, sufficient to make it intelligible with the help of some trifling omissions. Where a line or more was obscure, as having reference to something that had gone before, which would have asked more time to explain than its consequence in the scene seemed to deserve, I have had no hesitation in leaving the line or passage out. Sometimes where I have met with a superfluous character, which seemed to burthen without throwing any light upon the scene, I have ventured to dismiss it altogether. I have expunged without ceremony all that which the writers had better never have written, that forms the objection so often repeated to the promiscuous reading of Fletcher, Massinger, and some others.

The kind of extracts which I have sought after have been, not so much passages of wit and humour, though the old plays are rich in such, as scenes of passion, sometimes of the deepest quality, interesting situations, serious descriptions, that which is more nearly allied to poetry than to wit, and to tragic rather than to comic poetry. The plays which I have made choice of have been, with few exceptions, those which treat of human life and manners, rather than masques, and Arcadian pastorals, with their train of abstractions, unimpassioned deities, passionate mortals, Claius, and Medorus, and Amintas, and Amarillis. My leading design has been, to illustrate what may be called the moral sense of our ancestors. To shew in what manner they felt, when they placed themselves by the power of imagination in trying situations, in the conflicts of duty and passion, or the strife of contending duties ; what sort of loves and enmities theirs were ; how their griefs were tempered, and their full-swoln joys abated : how much of Shakspeare shines in the great men his contemporaries, and how far in his divine mind and manners he surpassed them and all mankind.

Another object which I had in making these selections was, to bring together the most admired scenes in Fletcher and Massinger, in the estimation of the world the only dramatic poets of that age who are entitled to be considered after Shakspeare, and to exhibit them in the same volume with the more impressive scenes of old Marlowe, Heywood, Tourneur, Webster, Ford, and others. To shew what we have slighted, while beyond all proportion we have cried up one or two favourite names.

The specimens are not accompanied with any thing in the shape of biographical notices *. I had nothing of consequence to add to the slight sketches in Dodsley and the Biographica Dramatica, and I was unwilling to swell the volume with mere transcription. The reader will not fail to observe from the frequent instances of two or more persons joining in the composition of the same play (the noble practice of those times), that of most of the writers contained in these selections it may be strictly said, that they were contemporaries. The whole period, from the middle of Elizabeth's reign to the close of the reign of Charles I., comprises a space of little more than half a century, within which time nearly all that we have of excellence in serious dramatic composition was produced, if we except the Samson Agonistes of Milton.

* The few notes which are interspersed will be found to be chiefly critical.

GORBODUC, A TRAGEDY. BY THOMAS SACKVILLE,
LORD BUCKHURST, AFTERWARDS EARL OF DOR-SET; AND THOMAS NORTON.

*Whilst king Gorboduc in the presence of his counsellors laments
the death of his eldest son, Ferrex, whom Porrex, the younger son, has slain; Marcella, a court lady, enters and relates the miserable end of Porrex, stabbed by his mother in his bed.*

GORBODUC, AROSTUS, EUBULUS, and others.

Gorb. What cruel destiny,
What froward fate hath sorted us this chance?
That even in those where we should comfort find,
Where our delight now in our aged days
Should rest and be, even there our only grief
And deepest sorrows to abridge our life,
Most pining cares and deadly thoughts do grave.

Arost. Your grace should now, in these grave years of yours,
Have found ere this the price of mortal joys,

How full of change, how brittle our estate,
How short they be, how fading here in earth,
Of nothing sure, save only of the death,
To whom both man and all the world doth owe
Their end at last ; neither should nature's power
In other sort against your heart prevail,
Than as the naked hand whose stroke assays
The armed breast where force doth light in vain.

Gorb. Many can yield right grave and sage advice
Of patient sprite to others wrapt in woe,
And can in speech both rule and conquer kind*,
Who, if by proof they might feel nature's force,
Would shew themselves men as they are indeed,
Which now will needs be gods : but what doth mean
The sorry cheer of her that here doth come ?

MARCELLA enters.

Marc. Oh where is ruth ? or where is pity now ?
Whither is gentle heart and mercy fled ?
Are they exil'd out of our stony breasts,
Never to make return ? is all the world
Drowned in blood, and sunk in cruelty ?
If not in women mercy may be found,
If not (alas) within the mother's breast
To her own child, to her own flesh and blood ;
If ruth be banisht thence, if pity there
May have no place, if there no gentle heart
Do live and dwell, where should we seek it then ?

Gorb. Madam (alas) what means your woful tale ?

Marc. O silly woman I, why to this hour
Have kind and fortune thus deferr'd my breath,
That I should live to see this doleful day ?
Will ever wight believe that such hard heart
Could rest within the cruel mother's breast,

* Nature; natural affection.

With her own hand to slay her only son ?
 But out (alas) these eyes beheld the same,
 They saw the dreary sight, and are become
 Most ruthful records of the bloody fact.
 Porrex, alas, is by his mother slain,
 And with her hand, a woful thing to tell,
 While slumb'ring on his careful bed he rests,
 His heart stabb'd in with knife is reft of life.

Gorb. O Eubulus, oh draw this sword of ours,
 And pierce this heart with speed. O hateful light,
 O loathsome life, O sweet and welcome death.
 Dear Eubulus, work this we thee beseech.

Eub. Patient your grace, perhaps he liveth yet,
 With wound receiv'd but not of certain death.

Gorb. O let us then repair unto the place,
 And see if that Porrex live, or thus be slain. [Exit.

Marc. Alas he liveth not, it is too true,
 That with these eyes, of him a peerless prince,
 Son to a king, and in the flower of youth,
 Even with a twink* a senseless stock I saw.

Arost. O damned deed !

Marc. But hear his ruthful end.
 The noble prince, pierced with the sudden wounds,
 Out of his wretched slumber hastily start†,
 Whose strength now failing, straight he overthrew,
 When in the fall his eyes ev'n now unclosed,
 Beheld the queen, and cried to her for help ;
 We then, alas, the ladies which that time
 Did there attend, seeing that heinous deed
 And hearing him oft call the wretched name
 Of mother, and to cry to her for aid,
 Whose direful hand gave him the mortal wound,
 Pitying alas (for nought else could we do)
 His rueful end, ran to the woful bed,

* Twinkling of the eye.

† Started.

Despoiled streight his breast, and all we might
 Wiped in vain with napkins next at hand
 The sudden streams of blood, that flushed fast
 Out of the gaping wound: O what a look,
 O what a ruthless stedfast eye methought
 He fixt upon my face, which to my death
 Will never part from me,—wherewith abraid*
 A deep fetch'd sigh he gave, and therewithal
 Clasp'ing his hands, to heaven he cast his sight;
 And streight, pale death pressing within his face,
 The flying ghost his mortal corps forsook.

Arost. Never did age bring forth so vile a fact.

Marc. O hard and cruel hap that thus assign'd
 Unto so worthy wight so wretched end:
 But most hard cruel heart that could consent,
 To lend the hateful destinies that hand,
 By which, alas, so heinous crime was wrought;—
 O queen of adamant, O marble breast,
 If not the favour of his comely face,
 If not his princely chear and countenance,
 His valiant active arms, his manly breast,
 If not his fair and seemly personage;
 His noble limbs, in such proportion cast,
 As would have rapt a silly woman's thought;
 If this might not have mov'd the bloody heart,
 And that most cruel hand the wretched weapon
 Even to let fall, and kist him in the face,
 With tears, for ruth to reave such one by death;
 Should nature yet consent to slay her son?
 O mother, thou to murder thus thy child!
 Even Jove with justice must with light'ning flames
 From heaven send down some strange revenge on thee.
 Ah noble prince, how oft have I beheld
 Thee mounted on thy fierce and trampling steed.

* Awaked; raised up.

Shining in armour bright before the tilt,
 And with thy mistress' sleeve tied on thy helm,
 There charge thy staff, to please thy lady's eye,
 That bow'd the head piece of thy friendly foe !
 How oft in arms on horse to bend the mace,
 How oft in arms on foot to break the sword,
 Which never now these eyes may see again.

Arost. Madam, alas, in vain these complaints are shed.
 Rather with me depart, and help to assuage
 The thoughtful griefs, that in the aged king
 Must needs by nature grow, by death of this
 His only son, whom he did hold so dear.

Marc. What wight is that which saw that I did see,
 And could refrain to wail with plaint and tears ?
 Not I, alas, that heart is not in me ;
 But let us go, for I am griev'd anew,
 To call to mind the wretched father's woe. [Exeunt.

Chorus of aged men. When greedy lust in royal seat to reign
 Hath reft all care of gods and eke of men ;
 And cruel heart, wrath, treason, and disdain,
 Within th' ambitious breast are lodged, then
 Behold how mischief wide herself displays,
 And with the brother's hand the brother slays.

When blood thus shed doth stain this heaven's face,
 Crying to Jove for vengeance of the deed,
 The mighty God even moveth from his place
 With wrath to wreak ; then sends he forth with speed
 The dreadful Furies, daughters of the night,
 With serpents girt, carrying the whip of ire,
 With hair of stinging snakes, and shining bright
 With flames and blood, and with a brand of fire :
 These, for revenge of wretched murder done,
 Doth cause the mother kill her only son.

Blood asketh blood, and death must death requit ;

Jove by his just and everlasting doom
 Justly hath ever so requited it.
 This times before record and times to come
 Shall find it true, and so doth present proof
 Present before our eyes for our behoof.

O happy wight that suffers not the snare
 Of murderous mind to tangle him in blood :
 And happy he that can in time beware
 By others harms, and turn it to his good :
 But woe to him that fearing not to offend,
 Doth serve his lust, and will not see the end.

[The style of this old play is stiff and cumbersome, like the dresses of its times. There may be flesh and blood underneath, but we cannot get at it. Sir Philip Sidney has praised it for its morality. One of its authors might easily furnish that. Norton was an associate to Hopkins, Sternhold, and Robert Wisdom, in the Singing Psalms. I am willing to believe that Lord Buckhurst supplied the more vital parts. The chief beauty in the extract is of a secret nature. Marcella obscurely intimates that the murdered prince Porrex and she had been lovers.]

THE SPANISH TRAGEDY: OR HIERONIMO IS MAD
 AGAIN. A TRAGEDY BY THOMAS KYD.

Horatio, the son of Hieronimo, is murdered while he is sitting with his mistress Belimperia by night in an arbour in his father's garden. The murderers (Balthazar, his rival, and Lorenzo, the brother of Belimperia) hang his body on a tree. Hieronimo is awakened by the cries of Belimperia, and coming out into his garden, discovers by the light of a torch, that the murdered man is his son. Upon this he goes distracted.

HIERONIMO mad.

Hier. My son ! and what's a son ?
 A thing begot within a pair of minutes, there about :

A lump bred up in darkness, and doth serve
To balance those light creatures we call women ;
And at the nine months' end creeps forth to light.
What is there yet in a son,
To make a father doat, rave or run mad ?
Being born, it pouts, cries, and breeds teeth.
What is there yet in a son ?
He must be fed, be taught to go, and speak.
Ay, or yet ? why might not a man love a calf as well ?
Or melt in passion o'er a frisking kid, as for a son ?
Methinks a young bacon,
Or a fine little smooth horse colt,
Should move a man as much as doth a son ;
For one of these, in very little time,
Will grow to some good use ; whereas a son
The more he grows in stature and in years,
The more unsquar'd, unlevell'd he appears ;
Reckons his parents among the rank of fools,
Strikes cares upon their heads with his mad riots,
Makes them look old before they meet with age ;
This is a son ; and what a loss is this, consider'd truly !
Oh, but my Horatio grew out of reach of those
Insatiate humours : he lov'd his loving parents :
He was my comfort, and his mother's joy,
The very arm that did hold up our house—
Our hopes were stored up in him,
None but a damned murderer could hate him.
He had not seen the back of nineteen years,
When his strong arm unhors'd the proud prince Bal-
thazar ;
And his great mind, too full of honour, took
To mercy that valiant but ignoble Portuguese.
Well heaven is heaven still !
And there is Nemesis, and furies,
And things call'd whips,

And they sometimes do meet with murderers :
They do not always 'scape, that's some comfort.
Ay, ay, ay, and then time steals on, and steals, and steals,
Till violence leaps forth, like thunder
Wrapt in a ball of fire,
And so doth bring confusion to them all.

[Exit.

JAQUES and PEDRO, servants.

Jaq. I wonder, Pedro, why our master thus
At midnight sends us with our torches light,
When man and bird and beast are all at rest,
Save those that watch for rape and bloody murder.

Ped. O Jaques, know thou that our master's mind
Is much distract since his Horatio died :
And, now his aged years should sleep in rest,
His heart in quiet, like a desperate man
Grows lunatic and childish for his son :
Sometimes as he doth at his table sit,
He speaks as if Horatio stood by him.
Then starting in a rage, falls on the earth,
Cries out Horatio, where is my Horatio ?
So that with extreme grief, and cutting sorrow,
There is not left in him one inch of man :
See here he comes.

HIERONIMO enters.

Hier. I pry thro' every crevice of each wall,
Look at each tree, and search thro' every brake,
Beat on the bushes, stamp our grandame earth,
Dive in the water, and stare up to heaven :
Yet cannot I behold my son Horatio.
How now, who's there, sprights, sprights ?

Ped. We are your servants that attend you, sir.

Hier. What make you with your torches in the dark ?

Ped. You bid us light them, and attend you here.

Hier. No, no, you are deceiv'd, not I, you are deceiv'd:

Was I so mad to bid you light your torches now?

Light me your torches at the mid of noon,

When as the sun god rides in all his glory;

Light me your torches then.

Ped. Then we burn day light.

Hier. Let it be burnt; night is a murd'rous slut,

That would not have her treasons to be seen:

And yonder pale fac'd Hecate there, the moon,

Doth give consent to that is done in darkness.

And all those stars that gaze upon her face,

Are aglets* on her sleeve, pins on her train:

And those that should be powerful and divine,

Do sleep in darkness when they most should shine.

Ped. Provoke them not, fair sir, with tempting words,

The heavens are gracious; and your miseries

And sorrow make you speak you know not what.

Hier. Villain thou lyest, and thou doest nought

But tell me I am mad: thou lyest, I am not mad:

I know thee to be Pedro, and he Jaques.

I'll prove it to thee; and were I mad, how could I?

Where was she the same night, when my Horatio was murder'd?

She should have shone: search thou the book:

Had the moon shone in my boy's face, there was a kind of grace,

That I know, nay I do know had the murd'rer seen him,

His weapon would have fallen, and cut the earth,

Had he been fram'd of nought but blood and death;

Alack, when mischief doth it knows not what,

What shall we say to mischief?

* Tags of points.

ISABELLA his wife, enters.

Isa. Dear Hieronimo, come in a doors,
O seek not means to increase thy sorrow.

Hier. Indeed Isabella we do nothing here ;
I do not cry, ask Pedro and Jaques :
Not I indeed, we are very merry, very merry.

Isa. How? be merry here, be merry here?
Is not this the place, and this the very tree,
Where my Horatio died, where he was murder'd?

Hier. Was, do not say what: let her weep it out.
This was the tree, I set it of a kernel;
And when our hot Spain could not let it grow,
But that the infant and the human sap
Began to wither, duly twice a morning
Would I be sprinkling it with fountain water :
At last it grew and grew, and bore and bore :
Till at length it grew a gallows, and did bear our son.
It bore thy fruit and mine. O wicked, wicked plant.
See who knocks there. (One knocks within at the door.)

Ped. It is a painter, sir.

Hier. Bid him come in, and paint some comfort,
For surely there's none lives but painted comfort.
Let him come in, one knows not what may chance.
God's will that I should set this tree! but even so
Masters ungrateful servants rear from nought,
And then they hate them that did bring them up.

The Painter enters.

Pain. God bless you, sir,

Hier. Wherefore? why, thou scornful villain?
How, where, or by what means should I be blest?

Isa. What wouldst thou have, good fellow?

Pain. Justice, madam.

Hier. O ambitious beggar, wouldst thou have that

That lives not in the world ?

Why, all the undelved mines cannot buy

An ounce of justice, 'tis a jewel so inestimable.

I tell thee, God hath engross'd all justice in his hands,

And there is none but what comes from him.

Pain. O then I see that God must right me for my murder'd son.

Hier. How, was thy son murder'd ?

Pain. Ay, sir, no man did hold a son so dear.

Hier. What, not as thine ? that's a lie,

As massy as the earth : I had a son,

Whose least unvalued hair did weigh

A thousand of thy sons, and he was murder'd.

Pain. Alas, sir, I had no more but he.

Hier. Nor I, nor I ; but this same one of mine

Was worth a legion. But all is one,

Pedro, Jaques, go in a doors, Isabella, go,

And this good fellow here, and I,

Will range this hideous orchard up and down,

Like two she lions' reaved of their young.

Go in a doors I say.

[Exeunt.

(The Painter and he sit down.)

Come let's talk wisely now.

Was thy son murder'd ?

Pain. Ay, sir.

Hier. So was mine.

How dost thou take it ? art thou not sometime mad ?

Is there no tricks that come before thine eyes ?

Pain. O lord, yes, sir.

Hier. Art a painter ? canst paint me a tear, a wound ?

A groan or a sigh ? canst paint me such a tree as this ?

Pain. Sir, I am sure you have heard of my painting ;
My name's Bazardo.

Hier. Bazardo ! 'fore God an excellent fellow. Look you, sir.

Do you see? I'd have you paint me in my gallery, in your oil colours matted, and draw me five years younger than I am: do you see, sir? let five years go, let them go,—my wife Isabella standing by me, with a speaking look to my son Horatio, which should intend to this, or some such like purpose; God bless thee, my sweet son; and my hand leaning upon his head thus, sir, do you see? may it be done?

Pain. Very well, sir.

Hier. Nay, I pray mark me sir:
Then, sir, would I have you paint me this tree, this very tree:

Canst paint a doleful cry?

Pain. Seemingly, sir.

Hier. Nay, it should cry; but all is one.
Well, sir, paint me a youth run thro' and thro' with villains' swords hanging upon this tree.

Canst thou draw a murd'rer?

Pain. I'll warrant you, sir; I have the pattern of the most notorious villains that ever lived in all Spain.

Hier. O, let them be worse, worse: stretch thine art,
And let their beards be of Judas's own colour,
And let their eye-brows jut over: in any case observe that;

Then, sir, after some violent noise,
Bring me forth in my shirt and my gown under my arm, with my torch in my hand, and my sword rear'd up thus,—

And with these words; What noise is this? who calls Hieronimo?

May it be done?

Pain. Yea, sir.

Hier. Well, sir, then bring me forth, bring me thro' alley and alley, still with a distracted countenance going along, and let my hair heave up my night-cap.

Let the clouds scowl, make the moon dark, the stars extinct, the winds blowing, the bells tolling, the owls shrieking, the toads croaking, the minutes jarring, and the clock striking twelve.

And then at last, sir, starting, behold a man hanging, and tott'ring, and tott'ring, as you know the wind will wave a man, and I with a trice to cut him down.

And looking upon him by the advantage of my torch, find it to be my son Horatio.

There you may shew a passion, there you may shew a passion.

Draw me like old Priam of Troy, crying, the house is a fire, the house is a fire ; and the torch over my head ; make me curse, make me rave, make me cry, make me mad, make me well again, make me curse hell, invoke, and in the end leave me in a trance, and so forth.

Pain. And is this the end ?

Hier. O no, there is no end : the end is death and madness ;

And I am never better than when I am mad ;

Then methinks I am a brave fellow ;

Then I do wonders ; but reason abuseth me ;

And there's the torment, there's the hell.

At last, sir, bring me to one of the murderers ;

Were he as strong as Hector,

Thus would I tear and drag him up and down.

(He beats the Painter in.)

[These scenes, which are the very salt of the old play (which without them is but a caput mortuum, such another piece of flatness as Locrine) Hawkins, in his republication of this tragedy, has thrust out of the text into the notes ; as omitted in the Second Edition, "printed for Ed. Alde, amended of such gross blunders as passed in the first : " and thinks them to have been foisted in by the players.—A late discovery at Dulwich College has ascertained that two sundry payments were made to Ben

Jonson by the Theatre for furnishing additions to Hieronimo. See last edition of Shakspeare by Reed. There is nothing in the undoubted plays of Jonson which would authorise us to suppose that he could have supplied the scenes in question. I should suspect the agency of some "more potent spirit." Webster might have furnished them. They are full of that wild solemn preternatural cast of grief which bewilders us in the Duchess of Malfy.]

THE LOVE OF KING DAVID AND FAIR BETHSABE, WITH THE TRAGEDY OF ABSALOM. BY GEORGE
PEELE.

Bethsabe, with her maid, bathing. She sings: and David sits above, viewing her.

The song.

Hot sun, cool fire, temper'd with sweet air,
Black shade, fair nurse, shadow my white hair:
Shine sun, burn fire, breathe air and ease me,
Black shade, fair nurse, shroud me and please me;
Shadow (my sweet nurse) keep me from burning,
Make not my glad cause, cause of mourning.
Let not my beauty's fire
Enflame unstaïd desire,
Nor pierce any bright eye
That wandereth lightly.

Bethsabe. Come gentle Zephyr trick'd with those perfumes
That erst in Eden sweetned Adam's love,
And stroke my bosom with the silken fan:
This shade (sun-proof) is yet no proof for thee,
Thy body smoother than this waveless spring,
And purer than the substance of the same,

Can creep through that his* lances cannot pierce.
 Thou and thy sister soft and sacred Air,
 Goddess of life, and governess of health,
 Keeps every fountain fresh and harbour sweet ;
 No brazen gate her passage can repulse,
 Nor bushy thicket bar thy subtle breath.
 Then deck thee with thy loose delightsome robes,¹
 And on thy wings bring delicate perfumes,
 To play the wantons with us through the leaves.

David. What tunes, what words, what looks, what wonders pierce

My soul, incensed with a sudden fire !
 What tree, what shade, what spring, what paradise,
 Enjoys the beauty of so fair a dame !
 Fair Eva, plac'd in perfect happiness,
 Lending her praise-notes to the liberal heavens,
 Struck with the accents of Arch-angels' tunes,
 Wrought not more pleasure to her husband's thoughts,
 Than this fair woman's words and notes to mine.
 May that sweet plain that bears her pleasant weight,
 Be still enamell'd with discolour'd flowers ;
 That precious fount bear sand of purest gold ;
 And for the pebble, let the silver streams
 That pierce earth's bowels to maintain the source,
 Play upon rubies, sapphires, chrysolites ;
 The brim let be imbrac'd with golden curls
 Of moss that sleeps with sound the waters make
 For joy to feed the fount with their recourse ;
 Let all the grass that beautifies her bower
 Bear manna every morn instead of dew ;
 Or let the dew be sweeter far than that
 That hangs like chains of pearl on Hermon hill,
 Or balm which trickled from old Aaron's beard.

* The sun's rays.

Enter CUSAY.

See Cusay, see the flower of Israel,
 The fairest daughter that obeys' the king
 In all the land the Lord subdued to me.
 Fairer than Isaac's lover at the well,
 Brighter than inside bark of new-hewn cedar,
 Sweeter than flames of fine perfumed myrrh ;
 And comelier than the silver clouds that dance
 On Zephyr's wings before the king of Heaven.

Cusay. Is it not Bethsabe the Hethite's wife
 Urias, now at Rabath siege with Joab ?

David. Go now and bring her quickly to the King ;
 Tell her, her graces hath found grace with him.

Cusay. I will my Lord.

[Exit.

David. Bright Bethsabe shall wash in David's bower
 In water mix'd with purest almond flower,
 And bathe her beauty in the milk of kids ;
 Bright Bethsabe gives earth to my desires,
 Verdure to earth, and to that verdure flowers,
 To flowers sweet odours, and to odours wings,
 That carries pleasures to the hearts of Kings.

* * * * *

Now comes my Lover tripping like the Roe,
 And brings my longings tangled in her hair
 To joy her love I'll build a kingly bower,
 Seated in hearing of a hundred streams,
 That, for their homage to her sovereign joys,
 Shall, as the serpents fold into their nests,
 In oblique turnings wind the nimble waves
 About the circles of her curious walks,
 And with their murmur summon easeful sleep
 To lay his golden sceptre on her brows.

[There is more of the same stuff, but I suppose the reader has a surfeit; especially as this Canticle of David has never been suspected to contain any pious sense couched underneath it, whatever his son's may. The Kingly bower "seated in hearing of a hundred streams," is the best of it.]

LUST'S DOMINION, OR THE LASCIVIOUS QUEEN. A TRAGEDY, BY CHRISTOPHER MARLOWE.

The Queen Mother of Spain loves an insolent Moor.*

QUEEN.—ELEAZAR, the Moor.

Queen. Chime out your softest strains of harmony,
And on delicious Music's silken wings
Send ravishing delight to my love's ears;
That he may be enamour'd of your tunes.

Eleaz. Away, away.

Queen. No, no, says aye; and twice away, says stay.
Come, come, I'll have a kiss; but if you'll strive,
For one denial you shall forfeit five.

Eleaz. Be gone, be gone.

Queen. What means my love?
Burst all those wires; burn all those instruments;
For they displease my Moor. Art thou now pleas'd?
Or wert thou now disturb'd I'll wage all Spain
To one sweet kiss, this is some new device
To make me fond and long. Oh, you men
Have tricks to make poor women die for you.

Eleaz. What, die for me? Away.

Queen. Away, what way? I prithee, speak more kindly.

Why dost thou frown? at whom?

* Such another as Aaron in Titus Andronicus.

Eleaz. At thee.

Queen. At me?

O why at me? for each contracted frown,
 A crooked wrinkle interlines my brow :
 Spend but one hour in frowns, and I shall look
 Like to a Beldam of one hundred years.
 I prithee, speak to me, and chide me not,
 I prithee, chide, if I have done amiss ;
 But let my punishment be this, and this,
 I prithee, smile on me, if but a while ;
 Then frown on me, I'll die. I prithee, smile.
 Smile on me ; and these two wanton boys,
 These pretty lads that do attend on me,
 Shall call thee Jove, shall wait upon thy cup
 And fill thee nectar : their enticing eyes
 Shall serve as crystal, wherein thou may'st see
 To dress thyself ; if thou wilt smile on me.
 Smile on me ; and with coronets of pearl
 And bells of gold, circling their pretty arms,
 In a round ivory fount these two shall swim,
 And dive to make thee sport :
 Bestow one smile, one little little smile,
 And in a net of twisted silk and gold
 In my all-naked arms thyself shalt lie.

[Kit Marlowe, as old Izaak Walton assures us, made that smooth song which begins "Come live with me and be my love." The same romantic invitations "in folly ripe in reason rotten," are given by the queen in the play, and the lover in the ditty. He talks of "beds of roses, buckles of gold :"]

Thy silver dishes for thy meat,
As precious as the Gods do eat,
 Shall on an ivory table be Prepared each day for thee and me.

The lines in the extract have a luscious smoothness in them, and they were the most temperate which I could pick out of this

Play. The rest is in King Cambyse's vein ; rape, and murder, and superlatives ; "huffing braggart puft" lines*, such as the play-writers anterior to Shakspeare are full of, and Pistol "but coldly imitates." Blood is made as light of in some of these old dramas as money in a modern sentimental comedy ; and as this is given away till it reminds us that it is nothing but counters, so that is spilt till it affects us no more than its representative, the paint of the property-man in the theatre.]

TAMBURLAINE THE GREAT ; OR THE SCYTHIAN SHEPHERD. IN TWO PARTS. BY CHRISTOPHER MARLOWE.—PART THE FIRST.

Tamburlaine's person described.

Of stature tall, and straightly fashioned ;
Like his desire, lift † upwards and divine.
So large of limbs, his joints so strongly knit,
Such breadth of shoulders, as might mainly bear
Old Atlas' burthen. 'Twixt his manly pitch
A pearl more worth than all the world is placed :

* Take a specimen from a speech of the Moor's :—

Now Tragedy, thou minion of the night,
Rhamnusia's pue-fellow, to thee I'll sing
Upon an harp made of dead Spanish bones,
The proudest instrument the world affords ;
When thou in crimson jollity shall bathe
Thy limbs as black as mine, in springs of blood
Still gushing from the conduit head of Spain.
To thee that never blush'st, though thy cheeks
Are full of blood, O Saint Revenge, to thee
I consecrate my murders, all my stabs,
My bloody labours, tortures, stratagems,
The volume of all wounds that wound from me ;
Mine is the Stage, thine is the Tragedy.

† Lifted.

Wherein by curious sovereignty of art
Are fixed his piercing instruments of sight :
Whose fiery circles bear encompassed
A heaven of heavenly bodies in their spheres :
That guides his steps and actions to the throne
Where Honour sits invested royally.
Pale of complexion, wrought in him with passion
Thirsting with sovereignty and love of arms.
His lofty brows in folds do figure death ;
And in their smoothness amity and life.
About them hangs a knot of amber hair,
Wrapped in curls, as fierce Achilles' was ;
On which the breath of heaven delights to play,
Making it dance with wanton majesty.
His armes long, his fingers snowy-white,
Betokening valour and excess of strength ;
In every part proportioned like the man
Should make the world subdue to Tamburlaine.

His custom in war.

The first day when he pitcheth down his tents,
White is their hue ; and on his silver crest
A snowy feather spangled white he bears ;
To signify the mildness of his mind,
That, satiate with spoil, refuseth blood :
But when Aurora mounts the second time,
As red as scarlet is his furniture ;
Then must his kindled wrath be quench'd with blood,
Not sparing any that can manage arms :
But if these threats move not submission.
Black are his colours, black pavilion,
His spear, his shield, his horse, his armour, plumes,
And jetty feathers, menace death and hell ;
Without respect of sex, degree or age,
He raseth all his foes with fire and sword.

[I had the same difficulty (or rather much more) in culling a few sane lines from this as from the preceding Play. The lures of Tamburlaine are perfect "midsummer madness." Nebuchadnezzar's are mere modest pretensions compared with the thundering vaunts of this Scythian Shepherd. He comes in (in the Second Part) drawn by conquered kings, and reproaches these pampered jades of Asia that they can draw but twenty miles a day. Till I saw this passage with my own eyes, I never believed that it was anything more than a pleasant burlesque of Mine Ancient's. But I assure my readers that it is soberly set down in a Play which their Ancestors took to be serious. I have subjoined the genuine speech for their amusement. Enter Tamburlaine, drawn in his chariot by Trebizon and Soria, with bits in their mouths, reins in his left hand, in his right hand a whip, with which he scourgeth them.

Tamb. Holla ye pamper'd jades of Asia :
 What can ye draw but twenty miles a day,
 And have so proud a chariot at your heels,
 And such a coachman as great Tamburlaine?
 But from Asphaltis, where I conquered you,
 To Byron here, where thus I honour you?
 The horse that guide the golden eye of heaven,
 And blow the morning from their nostrils,
 Making their fiery gate above the glades,
 Are not so honour'd in their governor
 As you ye slaves in mighty Tamburlaine.
 The headstrong jades of Thrace Alcides tamed,
 That King Egeus fed with human flesh,
 And made so wanton that they knew their strengths,
 Were not subdued with valour more divine,
 Than you by this unconquer'd arm of mine.
 To make you fierce and fit my appetite,
 You shall be fed with flesh as raw as blood,
 And drink in pails the strongest muscadell :
 If you can live with it, then live and draw
 My chariot swifter than the racking clouds :
 If not, then die like beasts, and fit for nought
 But perches for the black and fatal ravens.
 Thus am I right the scourge of highest Jove. &c.]

EDWARD THE SECOND. A TRAGEDY, BY CHRISTOPHER MARLOWE.

Gaveston shews what pleasures those are which the King chiefly delights in.

Gav. I must have wanton poets, pleasant wits,
Musicians, that with touching of a string
May draw the pliant King which way I please.
Music and poetry are his delight ;
Therefore I'll have Italian masks by night,
Sweet speeches, comedies, and pleasing shows ;
And in the day, when he shall walk abroad,
Like Sylvan nymphs my pages shall be clad ;
My men, like satyrs grazing on the lawns,
Shall with their goat-feet dance the antick hay.
Sometimes a lovely boy in Dian's shape,
With hair that gilds the water as it glides,
Crownets of pearl about his naked arms,
And in his sportful hands an olive tree
To hide those parts which men delight to see,
Shall bathe him in a spring, and there hard by,
One like Acteon, peeping thro' the grove,
Shall by the angry goddess be transform'd,
And running in the likeness of an hart,
By yelping hounds pull'd down, shall seem to die ;
Such things as these best please his majesty.

The younger Mortimer repines at the insolence of Gaveston.

Mort. sen. Nephew, I must to Scotland, thou stay'st here.
Leave now to oppose thyself against the King.

Thou seest by nature he is mild and calm,
And seeing his mind so doats on Gaveston,
Let him without controulment have his will.
The mightiest kings have had their minions :
Great Alexander lov'd Hephestion ;
The conquering Hercules for his Hilas wept,
And for Patroclus stern Achilles droop'd.
And not kings only, but the wisest men ;
The Roman Tully lov'd Octavius ;
Grave Socrates wild Alcibiades.
Then let his grace, whose youth is flexible,
And promiseth as much as we can wish,
Freely enjoy that vain light-headed earl,
For riper years will wean him from such toys.

Mort. jun. Uncle, his wanton humour grieves not me ;
But this I scorn, that one so basely born,
Should by his sovereign's favour grow so pert,
And riot with the treasure of the realm.
While soldiers mutiny for want of pay,
He wears a lord's revenue on his back,
And Midas-like, he jets it in the court,
With base outlandish cullions at his heels,
Whose proud fantastic liveries make such show,
As if that Proteus, god of shapes, appear'd.
I have not seen a dapper jack so brisk ;
He wears a short Italian hooded cloak,
Larded with pearl, and in his Tuscan cap
A jewel of more value than the crown.
While others walk below, the king and he,
From out a window, laugh at such as we,
And flout our train, and jest at our attire.
Uncle, 'tis this that makes me impatient.

The Barons reproach the King with the calamities which the realm endures from the ascendancy of his wicked favourite, Gaveston.

KING EDWARD, LANCASTER, WARWICK. The Mortimers, and other Lords.

Mort. jun. Nay, stay, my lord, I come to bring you news.

Mine uncle is taken prisoner by the Scots.

Edw. Then ransom him.

Lan. 'Twas in your wars, you should ransom him.

Mort. jun. And you shall ransom him, or else——

Kent. What, Mortimer, you will not threaten him?

Edw. Quiet yourself, you shall have the broad seal,
To gather for him throughout the realm.

Lan. Your minion Gaveston hath taught you this.

Mort. jun. My Lord, the family of the Mortimers
Are not so poor, but would they sell their land,
Could levy men enough to anger you.

We never beg, but use such prayers as these.

Edw. Shall I still be haunted thus?

Mort. jun. Nay, now you are here alone, I'll speak my mind.

Lan. And so will I, and then, my lord, farewell.

Mort. The idle triumphs, masks, lascivious shows,
And prodigal gifts bestow'd on Gaveston,
Have drawn thy treasure dry, and made thee weak;
The murmuring commons, overstretched, break.

Lan. Look for rebellion, look to be depos'd;
Thy garrisons are beaten out of France,
And lame and poor lie groaning at the gates.
The wild Oneye, with swarms of Irish kerns,
Live uncontroul'd within the English pale.

Unto the walls of York the Scots make road,
And unresisted draw away rich spoils.

Mort. jun. The haughty Dane commands the narrow seas,

While in the harbour ride thy ships unrigg'd.

Lan. What foreign prince sends thee ambassadors?

Mort. Who loves thee, but a sort of flatterers?

Lan. Thy gentle queen, sole sister to Valoys,
Complains that thou hast left her all forlorn.

Mort. Thy court is naked, being bereft of those,
That make a king seem glorious to the world :
I mean the peers, whom thou shouldst dearly love.
Libels are cast against thee in the street :
Ballads and rhimes made of thy overthrow.

Lan. The Northern brothers seeing their houses burnt,
Their wives and children slain, run up and down
Cursing the name of thee and Gaveston.

Mort. When wert thou in the field with banner spread?
But once : and then thy soldiers march'd like players,
With garish robes, not armor ; and thyself,
Bedaub'd with gold, rode laughing at the rest,
Nodding and shaking of thy spangled crest,
Where women's favours hung like labels down.

Lan. And thereof came it, that the fleering Scots,
To England's high disgrace, have made this jig :

Maids of England, sore may you moorn,

For your lemmons you have lost at Bennock's born,
With a heave and a ho.

What weened the king of England,

So soon to have woon Scotland,

With a rombelow ?

Mort. Wigmore* shall fly to set my uncle free.

* A principal manor belonging to the Mortimers.

Lan. And when 'tis gone, our swords shall purchase more.

If ye be mov'd, revenge it as you can ;
Look next to see us with our ensigns spread.

[Exeunt nobles.]

The King being deposed, surrenders his crown into the hands of the Bishop of Winchester and the Earl of Leicester at Killingworth Castle.

Lei. Be patient, good my lord, cease to lament,
Imagine Killingworth castle were your court,
And that you lay for pleasure here a space,
Not of compulsion or necessity.

Edw. Leicester, if gentle words might comfort me,
Thy speeches long ago had eas'd my sorrows ;
For kind and loving hast thou always been.
The griefs of private men are soon allay'd,
But not of kings. The forest deer being struck,
Runs to an herb that closeth up the wounds ;
But when the imperial lion's flesh is gor'd,
He rends and tears it with his wrathful paw,
And highly scorning that the lowly earth
Should drink his blood, mounts up to th' air.
And so it fares with me, whose dauntless mind
Th' ambitious Mortimer would seek to curb,
And that unnatural queen, false Isabel,
That thus hath pent and mew'd me in a prison :
For such outrageous passions claw my soul,
As with the wings of rancour and disdain
Full oft am I soaring up to high heav'n,
To 'plain me to the gods against them both.
But when I call to mind I am a king,
Methinks I should revenge me of the wrongs
That Mortimer and Isabel have done.

But what are kings, when regiment is gone,
But perfect shadows in a sunshine day ?
My nobles rule, I bear the name of king ;
I wear the crown, but am controul'd by them,
By Mortimer, and my unconstant queen,
Who spots my nuptial bed with infamy ;
Whilst I am lodg'd within this cave of care,
Where sorrow at my elbow still attends,
To company my heart with sad laments,
That bleeds within me for this strange exchange.
But tell me, must I now resign my crown,
To make usurping Mortimer a king ?

Bish. Your grace mistakes, it is for England's good,
And princely Edward's right, we crave the crown.

Edw. No, 'tis for Mortimer, not Edward's head ;
For he's a lamb, encompassed by wolves,
Which in a moment will abridge his life.
But if proud Mortimer do wear this crown,
Heav'n's turn it to a blaze of quenchless fire,
Or like the snaky wreath of Tisiphon,
Engirt the temples of his hateful head ;
So shall not England's vines be perished,
But Edward's name survive, though Edward dies.

Lei. My lord, why waste you thus the time away ?
They stay your answer, will you yield your crown ?

Edw. Ah, Leicester, weigh how hardly I can brook
To lose my crown and kingdom without cause ;
To give ambitious Mortimer my right,
That like a mountain overwhelms my bliss,
In which extreme my mind here murther'd is.
But what the heav'n's appoint, I must obey.
Here, take my crown ; the life of Edward too ;
Two kings in England cannot reign at once—
But stay awhile, let me be king till night,

That I may gaze upon this glittering crown ;
So shall my eyes receive their last content,
My head the latest honour due to it,
And jointly both yield up their wished right.
Continue ever, thou celestial sun ;
Let never silent night possess this clime ;
Stand still, you watches of the element ;
All times and seasons, rest you at a stay,
That Edward may be still fair England's king.
But day's bright beam doth vanish fast away,
And needs I must resign my wished crown ;
Inhuman creatures ! nurs'd with tigers' milk !
Why gape you for your sovereign's overthrow ?
My diadem I mean, and guiltless life.
See, monsters see, I'll wear my crown again.
What, fear you not the fury of your king ?
But, hapless Edward, thou art fondly led,
They pass not for thy frowns as late they did,
But seek to make a new-elected king ;
Which fills my mind with strange despairing thoughts,
Which thoughts are martyred with endless torments,
And in this torment comfort find I none,
But that I feel the crown upon my head ;
And therefore let me wear it yet awhile.

Messenger. My lord, the parliament must have present news,

And therefore say, will you resign or no ?

Edw. I'll not resign ! but whilst I live, be king.
Traitors be gone, and join with Mortimer.
Elect, conspire, install, do what you will ;
Their blood and yours shall seal these treacheries !

Bish. This answer we'll return, and so farewell.

Leic. Call them again, my lord, and speak them fair ;
For if they go, the prince shall lose his right.

Edw. Call thou them back, I have no power to speak.

Leic. My lord, the king is willing to resign.

Bish. If he be not, let him choose.

Edw. O would I might ! but heav'n and earth conspire
To make me miserable ! here, receive my crown ;
Receive it ? no, these innocent hands of mine
Shall not be guilty of so foul a crime.
He of you all that most desires my blood,
And will be called the murtherer of a king,
Take it. What, are you mov'd ? pity you me ?
Then send for unrelenting Mortimer,
And Isabel, whose eyes, being turn'd to steel,
Will sooner sparkle fire than shed a tear.
Yet stay, for rather than I will look on them,
Here, here : now sweet God of heav'n,
Make me despise this transitory pomp,
And sit for ever inthroniz'd in heav'n !
Come death, and with thy fingers close my eyes,
Or, if I live, let me forget myself.

Berkley Castle. The king is left alone with Lightborn, a murderer.

Edw. Who's there ? what light is that ? wherefore com'st thou ?

Light. To comfort you, and bring you joyful news.

Edw. Small comfort finds poor Edward in thy looks.
Villain, I know thou com'st to murder me.

Light. To murder you, my most gracious lord !
Far is it from my heart to do you harm.
The queen sent me to see how you were us'd,
For she relents at this your misery :
And what eyes can refrain from shedding tears,
To see a king in this most piteous state.

Edw. Weep'st thou already ? list a while to me

And then thy heart, were it as Gurney's * is,
Or as Matrevis' *, hewn from the Caucasus,
Yet will it melt, ere I have done my tale.
'This dungeon where they keep me is a sink
Wherein the filth of all the castle falls.

Light. O villains !

Edw. And there, in mire and puddle have I stood
This ten days' space ; and lest that I should sleep,
One plays continually upon a drum.
They give me bread and water, being a king ;
So that, for want of sleep and sustenance,
My mind's distemper'd, and my body's numb'
And whether I have limbs or no, I know not.
O would my blood drop out from every vein,
As doth this water from my tattered robes,
Tell Isabel the queen, I look'd not thus,
When for her sake I ran at tilt in France,
And there unhors'd the duke of Cleremont.

Light. O speak no more, my lord ! this breaks my heart.

Lie on this bed, and rest yourself awhile.

Edw. These looks of thine can harbour nought but death :

I see my tragedy written in thy brows.
Yet stay awhile, forbear thy bloody hand,
And let me see the stroke before it comes,
That even then when I shall lose my life,
My mind may be more stedfast on my God.

Light. What means your highness to mistrust me thus ?

Edw. What mean'st thou to dissemble with me thus ?

Light. These hands were never stain'd with innocent blood,

Nor shall they now be tainted with a king's.

* His keepers.

Edw. Forgive my thought, for having such a thought.
One jewel have I left, receive thou this.
Still fear I, and I know not what's the cause,
But every joint shakes as I give it thee.
O if thou harbour'st murder in thy heart,
Let the gift change thy mind, and save thy soul.
Know that I am a king : Oh, at that name
I feel a hell of grief. Where is my crown ?
Gone, gone, and do I still remain alive ?

Light. You're overwatch'd my lord, lie down and rest.

Edw. But that grief keeps me waking, I should sleep ;
For not these ten days have these eyelids closed.
Now as I speak they fall, and yet with fear
Open again. O wherefore sitt'st thou here ?

Light. If you mistrust me, I'll be gone, my lord.

Edw. No, no, for if thou mean'st to murder me,
Thou wilt return again ; and therefore stay

Light. He sleeps.

Edw. O let me not die ; yet stay, O stay awhile.

Light. How now, my lord ?

Edw. Something still buzzeth in mine ears,
And tells me if I sleep I never wake ;
This fear is that which makes me tremble thus.
And therefore tell me, wherefore art thou come ?

Light. To rid thee of thy life ; Matrevis, come.

Edw. I am too weak and feeble to resist :
Assist me, sweet God, and receive my soul.

[This tragedy is in a very different style from "mighty Tamburlaine." The reluctant pangs of abdicating Royalty in Edward furnished hints which Shakspeare scarce improved in his Richard the Second ; and the death-scene of Marlowe's king moves pity and terror beyond any scene, ancient or modern, with which I am acquainted.]

THE RICH JEW OF MALTA. A TRAGEDY, BY CHRISTOPHER MARLOWE.

Barabas, the Rich Jew, in his Counting-house, with heaps of gold before him; in contemplation of his wealth.

Bar. So that of thus much that return was made;
And of the third part of the Persian ships
There was a venture summ'd and satisfied.
As to those Samnites, and the Men of Uzz,
That bought my Spanish oils and wines of Greece,
Here have I purst their paltry silverbings.
Fie, what a trouble 'tis to count this trash!
Well fare the Arabians, who so richly pay
The things they traffic for with wedge of gold,
Whereof a man may easily in a day
Tell that, which may maintain him all his life.
The needy groom, that never finger'd groat,
Would make a miracle of thus much coin:
But he whose steel-barr'd coffers are cramm'd full,
And all his life-time hath been tired,
Wearying his fingers' ends with telling it,
Would in his age be loth to labour so,
And for a pound to sweat himself to death.
Give me the merchants of the Indian mines,
That trade in metal of the purest mould;
The wealthy Moor, that in the eastern rocks
Without controul can pick his riches up,
And in his house heap pearl like pebble-stones;
Receive them free and sell them by the weight,
Bags of fiery opals, sapphires, amethysts,
Jacinths, hard topas, grass-green emeralds,
Beauteous rubies, sparkling diamonds,

And seld-seen costly stones of so great price,
 As one of them, indifferently rated,
 And of a caract of this quality,
 May serve in peril of calamity
 To ransom great kings from captivity.
 This is the ware wherein consists my wealth :
 And thus methinks should men of judgment frame
 Their means of traffic from the vulgar trade,
 And, as their wealth increaseth, so inclose
 Infinite riches in a little room.
 But now how stands the wind ?
 Into what corner peers my Halcyon's bill ?
 Ha ! to the east ? yes : see, how stand the vances ?
 East and by south : why then, I hope my ships,
 I sent for Egypt and the bordering isles,
 Are gotten up by Nilus' winding banks.
 Mine argosies from Alexandria,
 Loaden with spice and silks, now under sail,
 Are smoothly gliding down by Candy shore
 To Malta, through our Mediterranean sea.

*Certain merchants enter, and inform Barabas, that his ships from various ports are safe arrived, and riding in Malta roads.
 —He descants on the temporal condition of the Jews, how they thrive and attain to great worldly prosperity, in spite of the curse denounced against them.*

Thus trolls our fortune in by land and sea,
 And thus are we on every side inrich'd.
 These are the blessings promis'd to the Jews,
 And herein was old Abram's happiness.
 What more may heaven do for earthly man,
 Than thus to pour out plenty in their laps,
 Ripping the bowels of the earth for them,
 Making the sea their servants, and the winds
 To drive their substance with successful blasts ?

Who hateth me but for my happiness?
Or who is honour'd now but for his wealth?
Rather had I, a Jew, be hated thus,
Than pitied in a Christian poverty:
For I can see no fruits in all their faith,
But malice, falsehood, and excessive pride,
Which methinks fits not their profession.
Haply some hapless man hath conscience,
And for his conscience lives in beggary.
They say we are a scatter'd nation:
I cannot tell; but we have scrambled up
More wealth by far than those that brag of faith.
There's Kirriah Jairim, the great Jew of Greece,
Obed in Bairseth, Nones in Portugal,
Myself in Malta, some in Italy,
Many in France, and wealthy every one:
Aye, wealthier far than any Christian.
I must confess, we come not to be kings;
That's not our fault; alas! our number's few;
And crowns come either by succession,
Or urged by force; and nothing violent,
Oft have I heard tell, can be permanent.
Give us a peaceful rule; make Christians kings,
That thirst so much for principality.

[Marlowe's Jew does not approach so near to Shakspeare's as his Edward II. does to Richard II. Shylock, in the midst of his savage purpose, is a man. His motives, feelings, resentments, have something human in them. "If you wrong us, shall we not revenge?" Barabas is a mere monster, brought in with a large painted nose, to please the rabble. He kills in sport, poisons whole nunneries, invents infernal machines. He is just such an exhibition as a century or two earlier might have been played before the Londoners, by the Royal command, when a general pillage and massacre of the Hebrews had been previously resolved on in the cabinet. It is curious to see a superstition wearing out. The idea of a Jew (which our pious ancestors contemplated with such horror) has nothing in it now revolting. We have tamed the claws of the beast, and pared its nails, and now we take it to our arms, fondle it, write plays to flatter it : it is visited by princes, affects a taste, patronises the arts, and is the only liberal and gentleman-like thing in Christendom.]

THE TRAGICAL HISTORY OF THE LIFE AND DEATH
OF DOCTOR FAUSTUS. BY CHRISTOPHER MAR-LOWE.

How Faustus fell to the study of magic.

————— born of parents base of stock
In Germany, within a town called Rhodes :
At riper years to Wirtemberg he went,
Whereas his kinsmen chiefly brought him up.
So much he profits in Divinity,
That shortly he was grac'd with Doctor's name,
Excelling all, and sweetly can dispute
In the heavenly matters of theology :
Till swoln with cunning and a self-conceit,
His waxen wings did mount above his reach,
And melting, heaven conspired his overthrow :
For falling to a devilish exercise,
And glutted now with Learning's golden gifts,
He surfeits on the cursed necromancy.
Nothing so sweet as magic is to him,
Which he prefers before his chiefest bliss.

*Faustus in his study, runs through the circle of the sciences ;
and being satisfied with none of them, determines to addict himself to magic.*

Faust. Settle thy studies, Faustus, and begin
To sound the depth of that thou wilt profess :

Having commenc'd, be a Divine in show,
 Yet level at the end of every art,
 And live and die in Aristotle's works.
 Sweet Analytics, 'tis thou hast ravish'd me.
Bene disserere est finis Logices.
 Is, to dispute well, Logic's chiefest end?
 Affords this art no greater miracle?
 Then read no more; thou hast attain'd that end.
 A greater subject fitteth Faustus' wit.
 Bid Economy farewell: and Galen come.
 Be a physician, Faustus, heap up gold,
 And be eterniz'd for some wond'rous cure.
Summum bonum medicinæ sanitas:
 The end of physic is our bodies' health.
 Why, Faustus: hast thou not attain'd that end?
 Are not thy bills hung up as monuments,
 Whereby whole cities have escap'd the plague,
 And divers desperate maladies been cured?
 Yet art thou still but Faustus, and a man.
 Couldst thou make men but live eternally,
 Or being dead raise men to life again,
 Then this profession were to be esteem'd.
 Physic, farewell. Where is Justinian?
Si una eademque res legatur duobus,
Alter rem, alter valorem rei, &c.
 A petty case of paltry legacies.
Exhereditari filium non potest pater, nisi, &c.
 Such is the subject of the Institute,
 And universal body of the Law.
 This study fits a mercenary drudge,
 Who aims at nothing but eternal trash,
 Too servile and illiberal for me.
 When all is done, Divinity is best.
 Jerome's Bible, Faustus: view it well.

Stipendium peccati mors est : ha ! Stipendium, &c.

The reward of sin is death : that's hard.

Si peccasse negamus, fallimur, et nulla est in nobis veritas.

If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and there is no truth in us.

Why then belike we must sin, and so consequently die.

Aye, we must die an everlasting death.

What doctrine call you this ? Che sera sera :

What will be shall be. Divinity adieu.

These Metaphysics of Magicians,

And necromantic books, are heavenly.

Lines, Circles, Letters, Characters :

Aye, these are those that Faustus most desires.

O what a world of profit and delight,

Of power, of honour, of omnipotence,

Is promis'd to the studious artizan !

All things that move between the quiet poles

Shall be at my command. Emperors and Kings

Are but obey'd in their several provinces ;

But his dominion that exceeds in this,

Stretcheth as far as doth the mind of man :

A sound Magician is a Demigod.

Here tire my brains to gain a deity.

* * * * *

How am I glutt'd with conceit of this !

Shall I make Spirits fetch me what I please ?

Resolve me of all ambiguities ?

Perform what desperate enterprises I will ?

I'll have them fly to India for gold,

Ransack the ocean for orient pearl,

And search all corners of the new-found world

For pleasant fruits and princely delicates.

I'll have them read me strange philosophy ;

And tell the secrets of all foreign kings :
 I'll have them wall all Germany with brass ;
 And with swift Rhine circle all Wirtemberg :
 I'll have them fill the public schools with skill,
 Wherewith the students shall be bravely clad :
 I'll levy soldiers with the coin they bring,
 And chase the Prince of Parma from our land ;
 And reign sole king of all the provinces ;
 Yea, stranger engines for the brunt of war,
 Than was the fiery keel at Antwerp bridge,
 I'll make my servile Spirits to invent.
 Come, German Valdes, and Cornelius,
 And make me wise with your sage conference.

Enter VALDES and CORNELIUS.

Faust. Valdes, sweet Valdes, and Cornelius,
 Know that your words have won me at the last
 To practise magic and concealed Arts.
 Philosophy is odious and obscure :
 Both Law and Physic are for petty wits :
 'Tis Magic, Magic, that hath ravish'd me.
 Then gentle friends aid me in this attempt ;
 And I that have with subtil syllogisms
 Gravell'd the Pastors of the German Church,
 And made the flowering pride of Wirtemberg
 Swarm to my probelms, as th' infernal Spirits
 On sweet Musæus when he came to hell,
 Will be as cunning as Agrippa was,
 Whose shadow made all Europe honour him.

Vald. Faustus, these books, thy wit, and our experience,
 Shall make all nations canonize us.
 As Indian Moors obey their Spanish Lords,
 So shall the Spirits of every Element
 Be always serviceable to us three :

Like Lions shall they guard us when we please;
 Like Almain Rutters with their horsemen's staves,
 Or Lapland Giants trotting by our sides :
 Sometimes like Women, or unwedded Maids,
 Shadowing more beauty in their airy brows
 Than have the white breasts of the Queen of Love.

Corn. The miracles that magic will perform,
 Will make thee vow to study nothing else.
 He that is grounded in astrology,
 Inricht with tongues, well seen in minerals,
 Hath all the principles magic doth require.

Faust. Come, show me some demonstrations magical,
 That I may conjure in some bushy grove,
 And have these joys in full possession.

Vald. Then haste thee to some solitary grove,
 And bear wise Bacon's and Albanus' works,
 The Hebrew Psalter, and New Testatment;
 And whatsoever else is requisite
 We will inform thee, ere our conference cease.

*Faustus being instructed in the elements of magic by his friends
 Valdes and Cornelius, sells his soul to the devil, to have an Evil
 Spirit at his command for twenty-four years.—When the years are expired, the devils claim his soul.*

FAUSTUS—the night of his death. WAGNER, his servant.

Faust. Say, Wagner, thou hast perused my Will,
 How dost thou like it?

Wag. Sir, so wondrous well,
 As in all humble duty I do yield
 My life and lasting service for your love.

[Exit.

Three Scholars enter.

Faust. Gramercy, Wagner.
 Welcome, Gentlemen.

First Sch. Now, worthy Faustus, methinks your looks are chang'd.

Faust. Oh, Gentlemen.

Sec. Sch. What ails Faustus?

Faust. Ah, my sweet chamber-fellow, had I lived with thee, then had I liv'd still, but now must die eternally. Look, Sirs, comes he not? comes he not?

First Sch. Oh my dear Faustus, what imports this fear?

Sec. Sch. Is all our pleasure turned to melancholy?

Third Sch. He is not well with being over solitary.

Sec. Sch. If it be so, we will have physicians, and Faustus shall be cured.

Third Sch. 'Tis but a surfeit, Sir; fear nothing.

Faust. A surfeit of a deadly sin that hath damn'd both body and soul.

Sec. Sch. Yet, Faustus, look up to heaven, and remember mercy is infinite.

Faust. But Faustus' offence can ne'er be pardoned. The serpent that tempted Eve may be saved, but not Faustus. O Gentlemen, hear me with patience, and tremble not at my speeches. Though my heart pant and quiver to remember that I have been a student here these thirty years. O would I had ne'er seen Wirtemberg, never read book! and what wonders have I done, all Germany can witness, yea, all the world: for which, Faustus hath lost both Germany and the world: yea, heaven itself, heaven the seat of God, the throne of the blessed, the kingdom of joy, and must remain in hell for ever. Hell, O hell, for ever. Sweet friends, what shall become of Faustus being in hell for ever?

Sec. Sch. Yet Faustus call on God.

Faust. On God whom Faustus hath abjured? on God whom Faustus hath blasphemed? O my God, I would weep but the devil draws in my tears. Gush forth blood instead of tears, yea life and soul. Oh, he stays my tongue : I would lift up my hands, but see, they hold'em, they hold'em.

Scholars. Who, Faustus ?

Faust. Why, Lucifer and Mephostophilis. O gentlemen, I gave them my soul for my cunning.

Scholars. O God forbid.

Faust. God forbid it indeed, but Faustus hath done it : for the vain pleasure of four-and-twenty years hath Faustus lost eternal joy and felicity. I writ them a bill with mine own blood, the date is expired : this is the time, and he will fetch me.

First Sch. Why did not Faustus tell us of this before, that Divines might have prayed for thee ?

Faust. Oft have I thought to have done so ; but the devil threatened to tear me in pieces if I named God ; to fetch me body and soul if I once gave ear to divinity : and now it is too late. Gentlemen, away, lest you perish with me.

Sec. Sch. O what may we do to save Faustus ?

Faust. Talk not of me but save yourselves and depart.

Third Sch. God will strengthen me, I will stay with Faustus.

First Sch. Tempt not God, sweet friend, but let us into the next room and pray for him.

Faust. Aye, pray for me, pray for me ; and what noise soever you hear, come not unto me, for nothing can rescue me.

Sec. Sch. Pray thou, and we will pray, that God may have mercy upon thee.

Faust. Gentlemen, farewell ; if I live till morning, I'll visit you : if not, Faustus is gone to hell.

Scholars. Faustus, farewell.

FAUSTUS alone.—The clock strikes Eleven.

Faust. O Faustus,

Now hast thou but one bare hour to live,
And then thou must be damn'd perpetually.
Stand still you ever-moving spheres of heaven,
That time may cease and midnight never come.
Fair Nature's eye, rise, rise again, and make Perpetual day : or let this hour be but
A year, a month, a week, a natural day,
That Faustus may repent and save his soul.

O lente lente currite noctis equi.

The stars move still, time runs, the clock will strike,
The devil will come, and Faustus must be damn'd.
O I will leap to heaven : who pulls me down ?
See where Christ's blood streams in the firmament :
One drop of blood will save me : Oh, my Christ,
Rend not my heart for naming of my Christ.
Yet will I call on him : O spare me, Lucifer.
Where is it now ? 'tis gone ?

And see, a threat'ning arm, and angry brow.
Mountains and hills come, come, and fall on me,
And hide me from the heavy wrath of heaven.
No ? then I will headlong run into the earth :
Gape earth. O no, it will not harbour me.
You stars that reign'd at my nativity,
Whose influence have allotted death and hell,
Now draw up Faustus like a foggy mist
Into the entrails of yon labouring cloud ;
That when you vomit forth into the air,
My limbs may issue from your smoaky mouths,
But let my soul mount and ascend to heaven.

The watch strikes.

O half the hour is past : 'twill all be past anon.
O if my soul must suffer for my sin,

Impose some end to my incessant pain.
 Let Faustus live in hell a thousand years,
 A hundred thousand, and at the last be saved :
 No end is limited to damned souls.
 Why wert thou not a creature wanting soul ?
 Or why is this immortal that thou hast ?
 Oh, Pythagoras, Metempsychosis, were that true,
 This soul should fly from me, and I be chang'd
 Into some brutish beast.
 All beasts are happy, for when they die,
 Their souls are soon dissolv'd in elements :
 But mine must live still to be plagued in hell.
 Curst be the parents that engender'd me :
 No, Faustus, curse thyself, curse Lucifer,
 That hath depriv'd thee of the joys of heaven.

The clock strikes twelve.

It strikes, it strikes ; now, body, turn to air,
 Or Lucifer will bear thee quick to hell.
 O soul, be chang'd into small water drops,
 And fall into the ocean ; ne'er be found.

Thunder, and enter the Devils.

O mercy heaven, look not so fierce on me.
 Adders and serpents, let me breathe awhile :
 Ugly hell gape not ; come not Lucifer :
 I'll burn my books : Oh Mephostophilis !

* * * *

Enter SCHOLARS.

First Sch. Come gentlemen, let us go visit Faustus,
 For such a dreadful night was never seen
 Since first the world's creation did begin ;
 Such fearful shrieks and cries were never heard.
 Pray heaven the Doctor have escaped the danger.

Sec. Sch. O help us heavens! see here are Faustus' limbs

All torn asunder by the hand of death.

Third Sch. The devil whom Faustus serv'd hath torn him thus :

For 'twixt the hours of twelve and one, methought,
I heard him shriek and call aloud for help ;
At which same time the house seem'd all on fire
With dreadful horror of these damned fiends.

Sec. Sch. Well gentlemen, though Faustus' end be such
As every Christian heart laments to think on :
Yet, for he was a scholar once admired
For wondrous knowledge in our German schools,
We'll give his mangled limbs due burial :
And all the scholars, cloth'd in mourning black,
Shall wait upon his heavy funeral.

Chorus. Cut is the branch that might have grown full strait,
And burned is Apollo's laurel bough
That sometime grew within this learned man :
Faustus is gone ! Regard his hellish fall,
Whose fiendful fortune may exhort the wise
Only to wonder at unlawful things :
Whose deepness doth entice such forward wits
To practise more than heavenly power permits.

[The growing horrors of Faustus are awfully marked by the hours and half hours as they expire and bring him nearer and nearer to the exactment of his dire compact. It is indeed an agony and bloody sweat.

Marlowe is said to have been tainted with atheistical positions, to have denied God and the Trinity. To such a genius the history of Faustus must have been delectable food : to wander in fields where curiosity is forbidden to go, to approach the dark gulf near enough to look in, to be busied in speculations which are the rottenest part of the core of the fruit that fell from the tree of knowledge. Barabas the Jew, and Faustus the conjurer, are offsprings of a mind which at least delighted to dally with interdicted subjects. They both talk a language which a believer would have been tender of putting into the mouth of a character though but in fiction. But the holiest minds have sometimes not thought it blameable to counterfeit impiety in the person of another, to bring Vice in upon the stage speaking her own dialect, and, themselves being armed with an Uncion of self-confident impunity, have not scrupled to handle and touch that familiarly, which would be death to others. Milton, in the person of Satan has started speculations hardier than any which the feeble armoury of the atheist ever furnished: and the precise strait-laced Richardson has strengthened Vice, from the mouth of Lovelace, with entangling sophistries and abstruse pleas against her adversary Virtue which Sedley, Villiers, and Rochester, wanted depth of libertinism sufficient to have invented.]

THE HOG HATH LOST HIS PEARL; A COMEDY,
BY ROBERT TAILOR.

Carracus appoints his friend Albert to meet him before the break of day at the house of the old Lord Wealthy, whose daughter Maria has consented to a stolen match with Carracus.—Albert, arriving before his friend, is mistaken by Maria for Carracus, and takes advantage of the night to wrong his friend.

Enter ALBERT, solus.

Alb. This is the green, and this the chamber-window;
And see, the appointed light stands in the casement,
The ladder of ropes set orderly,
Yet he that should ascend, slow in his haste,
Is not as yet come hither.
Were it any friend that lives but Carracus,
I'd try the bliss which this fine time presents.
Appoint to carry hence so rare an heir,

And be so slack ! 'sfoot, it doth move my patience.
Would any man that is not void of sense
Not have watch'd night by night for such a prize ?
Her beauty's so attractive, that by Heaven
My heart half grants to do my friend a wrong.
Forego these thoughts, Albert, be not a slave
To thy affection ; do not falsify
Thy faith to him whose only friendship's worth
A world of women. He is such a one,
Thou canst not live without his good,
He is and was ever as thine own heart's blood.

(Maria beckons him from the window.)

'Sfoot, see, she beckons me for Carracus.
Shall my base purity cause me neglect
This present happiness ? I will obtain it,
Spite of my timorous conscience. I am in person,
Habit and all, so like to Carracus,
It may be acted and ne'er call'd in question.

Mar. (calls) Hist ! Carracus, ascend :
All is as clear as in our hearts we wish'd.

(Albert ascends, and being on the top of the ladder, puts out the candle.)

Mar. O love, why do you so ?

Alb. I heard the steps of some coming this way.
Did you not hear Albert pass by as yet ?

Mar. Not any creature pass this way this hour.

Alb. Then he intends just at the break of day
To lend his trusty help to our departure.

Mar. Come then, dear Carracus, thou now shalt rest
Upon that bed where fancy oft hath thought thee ;
Which kindness until now I ne'er did grant thee,
Nor would I now but that thy loyal faith
I have so often tried ; even now,

Seeing thee come to that most honour'd end,
Through all the dangers which black night presents,
For to convey me hence and marry me. [They go in.

Enter CARRACUS, to his appointment.

Car. How pleasing are the steps we lovers make,
When in the paths of our content we pace,
To meet our longings ! what happiness it is
For man to love ! but oh, what greater bliss
To love and be belov'd ! O what one virtue
E'er reign'd in me, that I should be enrich'd
With all earth's good at once ? I have a friend,
Selected by the heavens as a gift
To make me happy whilst I live on earth ;
A man so rare of goodness, firm of faith,
That earth's content must vanish in his death.
Then for my love and mistress of my soul,
A maid of rich endowments, beautified
With all the virtues nature could bestow
Upon mortality, who this happy night
Will make me gainer of her heavenly self.
And see, how suddenly I have attain'd
To the abode of my desired wishes !
This is the green ; how dark the night appears !
I cannot hear the tread of my true friend.
Albert ! hist, Albert !—he's not come as yet,
Nor is the appointed light set in the window.
What if I call Maria ? it may be
She feared to set a light, and only heark'neth
To hear my steps ; and yet I dare not call,
Lest I betray myself, and that my voice,
Thinking to enter in the ears of her,
Be of some other heard : no, I will stay
Until the coming of my dear friend Albert.

But now think, Carracus, what end will be
Of this thou dost determine : thou art come
Hither to rob a father of that wealth
That solely lengthens his now drooping years,
His virtuous daughter, and all (of that sex) left
To make him happy in his aged days.
The loss of her may cause him to despair,
Transport his near-decaying sense to frenzy,
Or to some such abhorred inconveniency
Whereto frail age is subject. I do ill in this,
And must not think but that a father's plaint
Will move the heavens to pour forth misery
Upon the head of disobedieney.
Yet reason tells us, parents are o'erseen,
When with too strict a rein they do hold in
Their child's affections, and controul that love
Which the high powers divine inspire them with ;
When in their shallowest judgments they may know,
Affection crost brings misery and woe.
But whilst I run contemplating on this,
I softly pace to my desired bliss.
I'll go into the next field, where my friend
Told me the horses were in readiness. [Exit.

ALBERT descending from MARIA.

Mar. But do not stay. What if you find not Albert ?

Alb. I'll then return alone to fetch you hence.

Mar. If you should now deceive me, having gain'd
What you men seek for——

Alb. Sooner I'll deceive

My soul—and so I fear I have.

[Aside.

Mar. At your first call I will descend.

Alb. Till when, this touch of lips be the true pledge
Of Carracus' constant true devoted love.

Mar. Be sure you stay not long ; farewell.
I cannot lend an ear to hear you part.

[Maria goes in.

Alb. But you did lend a hand unto my entrance.

[He descends.

Alb. (solus) How have I wrong'd my friend, my faithful friend !

Robb'd him of what's more precious than his blood,
His earthly heaven, the unspotted honour
Of his soul-joying mistress ! the fruition of whose bed
I yet am warm of ; whilst dear Carracus
Wanders this cold night through the unshelt'ring field
Seeking me treach'rous man, yet no man neither,
Though in an outward show of such appearance,
But am a dev'l indeed, for so this deed
Of wronged love and friendship rightly makes me.
I may compare my friend to one that's sick,
Who, lying on his death-bed, calls to him
His dearest-thought friend, and bids him go
To some rare-gifted man that can restore
His former health ; this his friend sadly hears,
And vows with protestations to fulfil
His wish'd desires with his best performance ;
But then no sooner seeing that the death
Of his sick friend would add to him some gain,
Goes not to seek a remedy to save,
But like a wretch hides him to dig his grave ;
As I have done for virtuous Carracus.
Yet, Albert, be not reasonless to indanger
What thou may'st yet secure. Who can detect
The crime of thy licentious appetite ?
I hear one's pace ; 'tis surely Carracus.

Enter CARRACUS.

Car. Not find my friend ! sure some malignant planet

Rules o'er this night, and envying the content
Which I in thought possess, debars me thus
From what is more than happy, the lov'd presence
Of a dear friend and love.

Alb. 'Tis wronged Carracus by Albert's baseness :
I have no power now to reveal myself.

Car. The horses stand at the appointed place,
And night's dark coverture makes firm our safety.
My friend is surely fall'n into a slumber
On some bank hereabouts ; I will call him.
Friend, Albert, Albert.

Alb. Whate'er you are that call, you know my name.

Car. Aye, and thy heart dear friend.

Mar. My Carracus, are you so soon return'd ?
I see, you'll keep your promise.

Car. Who would not do so having past it thee,
Cannot be fram'd of aught but treachery.
Fairest, descend, that by our hence departing
We may make firm the bliss of our content.

Mar. Is your friend Albert with you ?

Alb. Yes, and your servant, honour'd Lady.

Mar. Hold me from falling, Carracus. (she descends.

Car. Come fair Maria, the troubles of this night
Are as fore-runners to ensuing pleasures.
And, noble friend, although now Carracus
Seems, in the gaining of this beauteous prize,
To keep from you so much of his lov'd treasure,
Which ought not to be mixed ; yet his heart
Shall so far strive in your wish'd happiness,
That if the loss and ruin of itself
Can but avail your good—

Alb. O friend, no more ; come, you are slow in haste.
Friendship ought never be discuss'd in words,
Till all her deeds be finish'd. Who, looking in a book,

And reads but some part of it only, cannot judge
 What praise the whole deserves, because his knowledge
 Is groundd but on part—as thine, friend, is,
 Ignorant of that black mischief I have done thee. (aside.
 [Exeunt.

Albert, after the marriage of Carracus, struck with remorse for the injury he has done to his friend, knocks at Carracus's door, but cannot summon resolution to see him, or to do more than enquire after his welfare.

Alb. Conscience, thou horror unto wicked men,
 When wilt thou cease thy all-afflicting wrath,
 And set my soul free from the labyrinth
 Of thy tormenting terror? O but it fits not!
 Should I desire redress, or wish for comfort,
 That have committed an act so inhuman,
 Able to fill Shame's spacious chronicle?
 Who but a damn'd one could have done like me?
 Robb'd my dear friend in a short moment's time
 Of his love's high-priz'd gem of chastity:
 That which so many years himself hath staid for.
 How often hath he, as he lay in bed,
 Sweetly discours'd to me of his Maria!
 And with what pleasing passions did he suffer
 Love's gentle war-siege: then he would relate
 How he first came unto her fair eyes' view;
 How long it was e'er she could brook affection;
 And then how constant she did still abide.
 I then at this would joy, as if my breast
 Had sympathiz'd in equal happiness
 With my true friend, but now, when joy should be,
 Who but a damn'd one would have done like me?
 He hath been married now at least a month;
 In all which time I have not once beheld him.
 This is his house.

I'll call to know his health, but will not see him ;
My looks would then betray me, for, should he ask
My cause of seeming sadness or the like,
I could not but reveal, and so pour on
Worse unto ill, which breeds confusion.

[He knocks.

A Servant opens.

Alb. Is the master of the house within ?

Serv. Yes, marry, is he, sir : would you speak with him ?

Alb. My business is not so troublesome :
Is he in health with his late espoused wife ?

Serv. Both are exceeding well, sir.

Alb. I am truly glad on't : farewell, good friend.

Serv. I pray you, let's crave your name, sir ; I may else have anger.

Alb. You may say, one Albert, riding by this way, only inquired their health.

Serv. I will acquaint so much.

[Exit serv.

Alb. How like a poisonous doctor have I come
To enquire their welfare, knowing that myself
Have giv'n the potion of their ne'er-recovery ;
For which I will afflict myself with torture ever.
And since the earth yields not a remedy
Able to salve the sores my lust hath made,
I'll now take farewell of society,
And the abode of men, to entertain a life
Fitting my fellowship in desert woods,
Where beasts like me consort ; there may I live,
Far off from wronging virtuous Carracus.
There's no Maria, that shall satisfy
My hateful lust : the trees shall shelter
This wretched trunk of mine, upon whose barks
I will engrave the story of my sin.

And there this short breath of mortality
 I'll finish up in that repentant state,
 Where not the allurements of earth's vanities
 Can e'er o'ertake me : there's no baits for lust,
 No friend to ruin ; I shall then be free
 From practising the art of treachery.
 Thither then, steps, where such content abides,
 Where penitency not disturb'd may grieve,
 Where on each tree and springing plant I'll carve
 This heavy motto of my misery,
Who but a damn'd one could have done like me ?

LINGUA ; A COMEDY BY ANTHONY BREWER.

Languages.

The ancient Hebrew, clad with mysteries ;
 The learned Greek, rich in fit epithets,
 Blest in the lovely marriage of pure words ;
 The Chaldee wise, the Arabian physical,
 The Roman eloquent, and Tuscan grave,
 The braving Spanish, and the smooth-tongued French—

Tragedy and Comedy.

—fellows both, both twins, but so unlike
 As birth to death, wedding to funeral :
 For this that rears himself in buskins quaint,
 Is pleasant at the first, proud in the midst,
 Stately in all, and bitter death at end.
 That in the pumps doth frown at first acquaintance,
 Trouble the midst, but in the end concludes
 Closing up all with a sweet catastrophe.
 This grave and sad, distain'd with brinish tears :

That light and quick, with wrinkled laughter painted:
This deals with nobles, kings, and emperors,
Full of great fears, great hopes, great enterprizes ;
This other trades with men of mean condition,
His projects small, small hopes, and dangers little :
This gorgeous, broider'd with rich sentences ;
That fair, and purpled round with merriments.
Both vice detect, and virtue beautify,
By being death's mirror, and life's looking-glass.

THE TRAGEDY OF NERO. AUTHOR UNCERTAIN.

Scenical Personation.

'Tis better in a play
Be Agamemnon, than himself indeed.
How oft, with danger of the field beset,
Or with home-mutinies, would he un-be
Himself ; or, over cruel altars weeping,
Wish, that with putting off a vizard he Might his true inward sorrow lay aside !
The shows of things are better than themselves,
How doth it stir this airy part of us
To hear our poets tell imagin'd fights
And the strange blows that feigned courage gives.
When I Achilles hear upon the Stage
Speak honour and the greatness of his soul,
Methinks I too could on a Phrygian spear
Run boldly, and make tales for after times :
But when we come to act it in the deed,
Death mars this bravery, and the ugly fears
Of th' other world sit on the proudest brow :
And boasting valour loseth his red cheek.

THE MERRY DEVIL OF EDMONTON.
AUTHOR UNCERTAIN*.

Millisent the fair daughter of Clare was betrothed, with the consent of her parents, to Raymond, son of Mounchensey; but the elder Mounchensey being since fallen in his fortunes, Clare revokes his consent, and plots a marriage for his daughter with the rich heir of Jerningham. Peter Fabel, a good magician, who had been Tutor to young Raymond Mounchensey at College, determines by the aid of his art to assist his pupil in obtaining fair Millisent.

PETER FABEL, solus.

Fab. Good old Mounchensey, is thy hap so ill,
That for thy bounty, and thy royal parts,
Thy kind alliance should be held in scorn;
And after all these promises by Clare,
Refuse to give his daughter to thy son,
Only because thy revenues cannot reach
To make her dowage of so rich a jointure,
As can the heir of wealthy Jerningham?
And therefore is the false fox now in hand
To strike a match betwixt her and the other,
And the old grey-beards now are close together,
Plotting in the garden. Is it even so?
Raymond Mounchensey, boy, have thou and I
Thus long at Cambridge read the liberal arts,
The metaphysics, magic, and those parts
Of the most secret deep philosophy?
Have I so many melancholy nights
Watch'd on the the top of Peter House highest tower?
And come we back unto our native home,

* It has been ascribed without much proof to Shakspeare, and to Michael Drayton.

For want of skill to lose the wench thou lovest?
 We'll first hang Envil* in such rings of mist,
 As never rose from any dampish fen;
 I'll make the brinish sea to rise at Ware,
 And drown the marshes unto Stratford bridge;
 I'll drive the deer from Waltham in their walks,
 And scatter them like sheep in every field.
 We may perhaps be crost; but if we be,
 He shall cross the devil that but crosses me.
 But here comes Raymond disconsolate and sad;
 And here comes the gallant must have his wench.

Enter RAYMOND MOUNCHENSEY, young JERNINGHAM, and young CLARE.

Jern. I prithee, Raymond, leave these solemn dumps,
 Revive thy spirits; thou that before hast been
 More watchful than the day-proclaiming cock,
 As sportive as a kid, as frank and merry
 As mirth herself.—

If aught in me may thy content procure,
 It is thy own, thou may'st thyself assure.

Raym. Ha! Jerningham, if any but thyself
 Had spoke that word, it would have come as cold
 As the bleak northern winds upon the face of winter.
 From thee, they have some power on my blood;
 Yet being from thee, had but that hollow sound
 Come from the lips of any living man,
 It might have won the credit of mine ear,
 From thee it cannot.

Jern. If I understand thee I am a villain:
 What! dost thou speak in parables to thy friend?

Fab. (to Jern.) You are the man, sir, must have Millisent,

* Enfield.

The match is making in the garden now ;
Her jointure is agreed on, and the old men,
Your fathers, mean to launch their pursy bags.
But in mean time to thrust Mouchensey off,
For colour of this new intended match,
Fair Millisent to Cheston * must be sent,
To take the approbation of a Nun.
Ne'er look upon me, lad, the match is done.

Jern. Raymond Mouchensey, now I touch thy grief
With the true feeling of a zealous friend.
And as for thy fair beauteous Millisent,
With my vain breath I will not seek to slubber
Her angel like perfections. But thou know'st
That Essex hath the saint that I adore.
Where'er didst meet me, that we two were jovial,
But like a wag thou hast not laugh'd at me,
And with regardless jesting mock'd my love ?
How many a sad and weary summer's night
My sighs have drunk the dew from off the earth,
And I have taught the nightingale to wake,
And from the meadows sprung the early lark
An hour before she should have list to sing ?
I have loaded the poor minutes with my moans,
That I have made the heavy slow pac'd hours
To hang like heavy clogs upon the day.
But, dear Mouchensey, had not my affection
Seiz'd on the beauty of another dame,
Before I'd wrong the chase, and leave the love
Of one so worthy, and so true a friend,
I will abjure both beauty and her sight,
And will in love become a counterfeit.

Raym. Dear Jerningham thou hast begot my life,
And from the mouth of hell, where now I sat,

* Cheshunt.

I feel my spirit rebound against the stars ;
Thou hast conquer'd me, dear friend, and my free soul
Nor time nor death can by their power controul.

Fab. Frank Jerningham thou art a gallant boy ;
And were he not my pupil, I would say,
He were as fine a metal'd Gentleman,
Of as free a spirit, and as fine a temper,
As any in England ; and he is a man,
That very richly may deserve thy love.
But, noble Clare, this while of our discourse,
What may Mouchensey's honour to thyself
Exact upon the measure of thy grace ?

Cla. Raymond Mouchensey, I would have thee know,
He does not breathe this air,
Whose love I cherish, and whose soul I love,
More than Mouchensey's :
Nor ever in my life did see the man,
Whom for his wit, and many virtuous parts,
I think more worthy of my sister's love.
But since the matter grows into this pass,
I must not seem to cross my father's will ;
But when thou list to visit her by night,
My horse is saddled, and the stable door
Stands ready for thee ; use them at thy pleasure.
In honest marriage wed her frankly, boy ;
And if thou getst her, lad, God give thee joy.

Raym. Then care away ! let fate my fall pretend,
Back'd with the favours of so true a friend.

Fab. Let us alone to bustle for the set ;
For age and craft with wit and art hath met.
I'll make my Spirits dance such nightly jigs
Along the way 'twixt this and Tot'nam Cross,
The Carriers' Jades shall cast their heavy packs,
And the strong hedges scarce shall keep them in.
The milk-maids' cuts shall turn the wenches off,

And lay their dossers tumbling in the dust :
 The frank and merry London Prentices,
 That come for cream and lusty country cheer,
 Shall lose their way, and scrambling in the ditches
 All night, shall whoop and hollow, cry, and call,
 And none to other find the way at all.

Raym. Pursue the project, scholar ; what we can do
 To help endeavour, join our lives thereto*.

The Prioress of Cheston's charge to fair Millisent.

Jesus' daughter, Mary's child,
 Holy matron, woman mild,
 For thee a Mass shall still be said,
 Every sister drop a bead ;
 And those again, succeeding them,
 For you shall sing a Requiem.

To her Father. May your soul be blithe,
 That so truly pay your tythe ;
 He, that many children gave,
 'Tis fit that he one child should have.

To Millisent. Then, fair virgin, hear my spell,
 For I must your duty tell.

* This scene has much of Shakspeare's manner in the sweetness and goodnaturedness of it. It seems written to make the Reader happy. Few of our dramatists or novelists have attended enough to this. They torture and wound us abundantly. They are economists only in delight. Nothing can be finer, more gentlemanlike, and noble, than the conversation and compliments of these young men. How delicious is Raymond Mounchensey's forgetting, in his fears, that Jerningham has a "Saint in Essex;" and how sweetly his friend reminds him !—I wish it could be ascertained that Michael Drayton was the author of this piece : it would add a worthy appendage to the renown of that Panegyrist of my native Earth ; who has gone over her soil (in his Polyolbion) with the fidelity of a herald, and the painful love of a son ; who has not left a rivulet (so narrow that it may be stept over) without honourable mention ; and has animated Hills and Streams with life and passion above the dreams of old mythology.

First at mornings take your book,
The glass wherein yourself must look ;
Your young thoughts so proud and jolly
Must be turn'd to motions holy ;
For your busk, attires, and toys,
Have your thoughts on heavenly joys :
And for all your follies past,
You must do penance, pray and fast.
You shall ring the sacring bell,
Keep your hours, and tell your knell.
Rise at midnight to your matins, &
Read your psalter, sing your Latins ;
And when your blood shall kindle pleasure,
Scourge yourself in plenteous measure.
You must read the morning mass,
You must creep unto the cross,
Put cold ashes on your head,
Have a hair-cloth for your bed,
Bind your beads, and tell your needs,
Your holy Aves and your Creeds ;
Holy Maid, this must be done,
If you mean to live a Nun.

GREEN'S TU QUOQUE: OR, THE CITY GALLANT. A
COMEDY. BY JOSEPH COOKE.

Men more niggardly of their love than women.

Thrice happy days they were, and too soon gone,
When as the heart was coupled with the tongue ;
And no deceitful flattery, or guile
Hung on the lover's tear-commixed smile.

Could women learn but that imperiousness,
By which men use to stint our happiness,
(When they have purchas'd us for to be theirs
By customary sighs and forced tears)
To give us bits of kindness, lest we faint,
But no abundance ; that we ever want,
And still are begging : which too well they know
Endears affection, and doth make it grow.
Had we those sleights, how happy were we then
That we might glory over love-sick men !
But arts we know not, nor have any skill
To feign a sour look to a pleasing will ;
Nor couch a secret love in show of hate :
But, if we like, must be compassionate *.

Adversity.

How ruthless men are to adversity !
My acquaintance scarce will know me ; when we meet
They cannot stay to talk, they must be gone ;
And shake me by the hand as if I burnt them.

Prodigality.

That which gilded over his imperfections,
Is wasted and consumed, even like ice,
Which by the vehemence of heat dissolves,
And glides to many rivers ; so his wealth,
That felt a prodigal hand, hot in expense,
Melted within his gripe, and from his coffers
Ran like a violent stream to other men's.

* This is so like Shakspeare, that one seems almost to remember it as a speech of Desdemona's, upon perceiving an alteration in the behaviour of the Moor.

THE COMEDY OF OLD FORTUNATUS. BY THOMAS DECKER.

The Goddess Fortune appears to Fortunatus, and offers him the choice of six things. He chuses Riches.

FORTUNE. FORTUNATUS.

Fortune. Before thy soul at this deep lottery
Draw forth her prize, ordain'd by destiny,
Know that here's no recanting a first choice.
Chuse then discreetly : for the laws of fate,
Being grav'n in steel, must stand inviolate.

Fortunat. Daughters of Jove and the unblemish'd
Night,
Most righteous Parcæ, guide my genius right :
Wisdom, Strength, Health, Beauty, Long Life, and Riches.

Fortune. Stay Fortunatus ; once more hear me speak.
If thou kiss Wisdom's cheek and make her thine,
She'll breathe into thy lips divinity,
And thou (like Phœbus) shall speak oracle ;
Thy heav'n-inspired soul on Wisdom's wings
Shall fly up to the Parliament of Jove,
And read the Statutes of Eternity,
And see what's past and learn what is to come.
If thou lay claim to Strength, armies shall quake
To see thee frown : as Kings at mine do lie,
So shall thy feet trample on empery.
Make Health thine object, thou shalt be strong proof
'Gainst the deep searching darts of surfeiting,
Be ever merry, ever revelling.
Wish but for Beauty, and within thine eyes
Two naked Cupids amorously shall swim,
And on thy cheeks I'll mix such white and red,

That Jove shall turn away young Ganimedè,
And with immortal arms shall circle thee.
Are thy desires Long Life ? thy vital thread
Shall be stretch'd out, thou shalt behold the change
Of monarchies, and see those children die
Whose great great grandsires now in cradles lie.
If through Gold's sacred hunger thou dost pine ;
Those gilded wantons which in swarms do run
To warm their slender bodies in the sun,
Shall stand for number of those golden piles
Which in rich pride shall swell before thy feet :
As those are, so shall these be infinite.

Fortunat. O whither am I wrapt beyond myself ?
More violent conflicts fight in every thought
Than his whose fatal choice Troy's downfall wrought.
Shall I contract myself to Wisdom's love ?
Then I lose Riches ; and a wise man poor
Is like a sacred book that's never read ;
To himself he lives and to all else seems dead.
This age thinks better of a gilded fool,
Than of a threadbare saint in Wisdom's school.
I will be Strong : then I refuse Long Life ;
And though mine arm should conquer twenty worlds,
There's a lean fellow beats all conquerors :
The greatest Strength expires with loss of breath,
The mightiest in one minute stoop to death.
Then take Long Life, or Health ; should I do so,
I might grow ugly, and that tedious scroll
Of months and years much misery might enroll :
Therefore I'll beg for Beauty ; yet I will not :
The fairest cheek hath oftentimes a soul
Leprous as sin itself, than hell more foul.
The Wisdom of this world is idiotism ;
Strength a weak reed ; Health Sick'ness' enemy,
And it at length will have the victory.

Beauty is but a painting; and Long Life
 Is a long journey in December gone,
 Tedious and full of tribulation,
 Therefore dread sacred Empress, make me rich :
 My choice is Store of Gold ; the Rich are Wise,
 He that upon his back rich garments wears
 Is Wise, though on his head grow Midas' ears.
 Gold is the Strength, the Sinews of the world,
 The Health, the Soul, the Beauty most divine ;
 A mask of gold hides all deformities ;
 Gold is heaven's physic, life's restorative ;
 Oh therefore make me Rich.

Fortune gives to Fortunatus a purse that is inexhaustible. With this he puts on costly attire, and visits all the Asian Courts, where he is caressed and made much of for his infinite wealth. At Babylon he is shewn by the Soldan a wondrous hat, which in a wish transports the wearer whithersoever he pleases, over land and sea. Fortunatus puts it on, wishes himself at home in Cyprus ; where he arrives in a minute, as his sons Ampedo and Anelocia are talking of him : and tells his Travels.

FORTUNATUS. AMPEDO. ANELOCIA.

Fort. Touch me not, boys, I am nothing but air, let none speak to me till you have marked me well.—Am I as you are, or am I transformed ?

And. Methinks, father, you look as you did, only your face is more withered.

Fort. Boys, be proud ; your father hath the whole world in this compass. I am all felicity, up to the brims. In a minute am I come from Babylon ; I have been this half hour in Famagosta.

And. How ! in a minute, father ? I see travellers must lie.

Fort. I have cut through the air like a falcon. I would have it seem strange to you. But 'tis true. I would not have you believe it neither. But 'tis miraculous and true. Desire to see you brought me to Cyprus. I'll leave you more gold, and go to visit more countries.

Amp. The frosty hand of age now nips your blood,
And strews her snowy flowers upon your head,
And gives you warning that within few years
Death needs must marry you: those short lines, minutes,
That dribble out your life, must needs be spent
In peace, not travel; rest in Cyprus then.
Could you survey ten worlds, yet you must die;
And bitter is the sweet that's reapt thereby.

And. Faith, father, what pleasure have you met by walking your stations?

Fort. What pleasure, boy? I have revelled with Kings, danced with Queens, dallied with Ladies; worn strange
attires; seen Fantasticoes; conversed with Humourists; been ravished with divine raptures of Doric, Lydian and Phrygian harmonies; I have spent the day in triumphs and the night in banquetting.

And. O rare: this was heavenly.—He that would not be an Arabian Phoenix to burn in these sweet fires, let him live like an owl for the world to wonder at.

Amp. Why, brother, are not all these Vanities?

Fort. Vanities! Ampedo, thy soul is made of lead, too dull, too ponderous, to mount up to the incomprehensible glory that Travel lifts men to.

And. Sweeten mine ears, good father, with some more.

Fort. When in the warmth of mine own country's arms

We yawn'd like sluggards, when this small horizon
Imprison'd up my body, then mine eyes
Worshipp'd these clouds as brightest: but, my boys,
The glist'ring beams which do abroad appear

In other heavens, fire is not half so clear.
 For still in all the regions I have seen,
 I scorn'd to croud among the muddy throng
 Of the rank multitude, whose thicken'd breath
 (Like to condensed fogs) do choke that beauty,
 Which else would dwell in every Kingdom's cheek.
 No; I still boldly stept into their Courts:
 For there to live 'tis rare, O 'tis divine,
 There shall you see faces angelical;
 There shall you see troops of chaste Goddesses,
 Whose star-like eyes have power (might they still shine)
 To make night day, and day more chrystalline.
 Near these you shall behold great Heroes,
 White-headed Counsellors, and Jovial Spirits,
 Standing like fiery Cherubim to guard
 The monarch, who in godlike glory sits
 In midst of these, as if this deity
 Had with a look created a new world,
 The standers by being the fair workmanship.

And. Oh how my soul is rapt to a Third Heaven!
 I'll travel sure, and live with none but Kings.

Amp. But tell me, father, have you in all Courts
 Beheld such glory, so majestic,
 In all perfection, no way blemished?

Fort. In some Courts shall you see Ambition
 Sit, piecing Dedalus' old waxen wings;
 But being clapt on, and they about to fly,
 Even when their hopes are busied in the clouds,
 They melt against the sun of Majesty,
 And down they tumble to destruction.
 By travel, boys, I have seen all these things.
 Fantastic Compliment stalks up and down,
 Trickt in outlandish feathers; all his words,
 His looks, his oaths, are all ridiculous,
 All apish, childish, and Italianate. * * *

Orleans to his friend Galloway defends the passion with which, (being a prisoner in the English king's court) he is enamoured to frenzy of the king's daughter Agripyna.

ORLEANS. GALLOWAY.

Orl. This music makes me but more out of tune.

O Agripyna.

Gall. Gentle friend, no more.

Thou say'st Love is a madness : hate it then,
Even for the name's sake.

Orl. O I love that Madness,
Even for the name's sake.

Gall. Let me tame this frenzy,
By telling thee thou art a prisoner here,
By telling thee she's daughter to a King,
By telling thee the King of Cyprus' son
Shines like a sun between her looks and thine,
Whilst thou seem'st but a star to Agripyne.
He loves her.

Orl. If he do, why so do I.

Gall. Love is ambitious and loves Majesty.

Orl. Dear friend, thou art deceiv'd : Love's voice doth sing

As sweetly in a beggar as a king.

Gall. Dear friend thou art deceiv'd : O bid thy soul
Lift up her intellectual eyes to heaven,
And in this ample book of wonders read,
Of what celestial mould, what sacred essence,
Her self is form'd : the search whereof will drive
Sounds musical among the jarring spirits,
And in sweet tune set that which none inherits.

Orl. I'll gaze on heaven if Agripyne be there.
If not : fa, la, la, Sol, la, &c.

Gall. O call this madness in : see, from the windows

Of every eye Derision thrusts out cheeks
Wrinkled with idiot laughter ; every finger
Is like a dart shot from the hand of Scorn,
By which thy name is hurt, thy honour torn.

Orl. Laugh they at me, sweet Galloway ?

Gall. Even at thee.

Orl. Ha, ha, I laugh at them : are they not mad,
That let my true true sorrow make them glad ?
I dance and sing only to anger Grief,
That in his anger he might smite life down
With his iron fist : good heart ! it seemeth then,
They laugh to see grief kill me : O fond Men,
You laugh at others' tears ; when others smile,
You tear yourselves in pieces ; vile, vile, vile.
Ha, ha, when I behold a swarm of Fools
Crowding together to be counted Wise,
I laugh because sweet Agripyne's not there.
But weep because she is not any where ;
And weep because (whether she be or not)
My love was ever and is still forgot ; forgot, forgot, forgot.

Gall. Draw back this stream : why should my Orleans mourn ?

Orl. Look yonder, Galloway, dost thou see that sun ?
Nay, good friend, stare upon it, mark it well :
Ere he be two hours elder, all that glory
Is banish'd heaven, and then, for grief, this sky
(That's now so jocund) will mourn all in black.
And shall not Orleans mourn ? alack, alack :
O what a savage tyranny it were
To enforce Care laugh, and Woe not shed a tear !
Dead is my Love ; I am buried in her scorn :
That is my sunset ; and shall I not mourn !
Yes by my troth I will.

Gall. Dear friend forbear ;

Beauty (like Sorrow) dwelleth every where.

Rase out this strong idea of her face :

As fair as her's shineth in any place.

Orl. Thou art a Traitor to that White and Red,
Which sitting on her cheeks (being Cupid's throne)

Is my heart's Soveraine : O when she is dead,

This wonder (beauty) shall be found in none.

Now Agripyne's not mine, I vow to be

In love with nothing but deformity.

O fair Deformity, I muse all eyes

Are not enamour'd of thee : thou did'st never

Murder men's hearts, or let them pine like wax

Melting against the sun of thy destiny ;

Thou art a faithful nurse to Chastity ;

Thy beauty is not like to Agripyne's,

For cares, and age, and sickness her's deface,

But thine's eternal : O Deformity,

Thy fairness is not like to Agripyne's,

For (dead) her beauty will no beauty have,

But thy face looks most lovely in the grave.

[The humour of a frantic Lover is here done to the life. Orleans is as passionate an Inamorato as any which Shakspeare ever drew. He is just such another adept in Love's reasons. The sober people of the world are with him a swarm of fools

Crowding together to be counted wise.

He talks "pure Biron and Romeo," he is almost as poetical as they, quite as philosophical, only a little madder. After all, Love's Sectaries are a "reason unto themselves." We have gone retrograde in the noble Heresy since the days when Sidney proselyted our nation to this mixed health and disease ; the kindest symptom yet the most alarming crisis in the ticklish state of youth ; the nourisher and the destroyer of hopeful wits ; the mother of twin-births, wisdom and folly, valour and weakness ; the servitude above freedom ; the gentle mind's religion ; the liberal superstition.]

THE HONEST WHORE; A COMEDY. BY THOMAS DECKER.

Hospital for Lunatics.

There are of mad men, as there are of tame,
All humour'd not alike. We have here some
So apish and fantastick, play with a feather;
And, though 'twould grieve a soul to see God's image
So blemish'd and defac'd, yet do they act
Such antick and such pretty lunacies,
That, spite of sorrow, they will make you smile.
Others again we have, like hungry lions,
Fierce as wild bulls, untameable as flies.—

Patience.

Patience! why, 'tis the soul of peace:
Of all the virtues, 'tis nearest kin to heaven;
It makes men look like gods.—The best of men
That e'er wore earth about him was a Sufferer,
A soft, meek, patient, humble, tranquil spirit;
The first true gentleman that ever breath'd.

THE SECOND PART OF THE HONEST WHORE.
BY THOMAS DECKER.

Bellafront, a reclaimed Harlot, recounts some of the miseries of her profession.

Like an ill husband, though I knew the same
To be my undoing, follow'd I that game.
Oh when the work of lust had earn'd my bread,
To taste it how I trembled, lest each bit
Ere it went down should choke me chewing it.

My bed seem'd like a cabin hung in hell,
 The bawd hell's porter, and the lickorish wine
 The pandar fetch'd was like an easy fine
 For which methought I leas'd away my soul
 And oftentimes even in my quaffing-bowl
 Thus said I to myself: I am a Whore,
 And have drunk down thus much confusion more.

———when in the street

A fair young modest damsel * I did meet,
 She seem'd to all a Dove, when I pass'd by,
 And I to all a Raven: every eye
 That follow'd her, went with a bashful glance;
 At me each bold and jeering countenance
 Darted forth scorn: to her as if she had been
 Some Tower unvanquished would they vail;
 'Gainst me swoln rumour hoisted every sail:
 She crown'd with reverend praises pass'd by them,
 I though with face mask'd could not 'scape the Hem;
 For, as if heaven had set strange marks on whores,

* This simple picture of Honour and Shame, contrasted without violence, and expressed without immodesty, is worth all the strong lines against the Harlot's Profession, with which both Parts of this play are offensively crowded. A Satyrist is always to be suspected, who, to make vice odious, dwells upon all its acts and minutest circumstances with a sort of relish and retrospective gust. But so near are the boundaries of panegyric and invective, that a worn out Sinner is sometimes found to make the best Disclaimer against Sin. The same high-seasoned descriptions which in his unregenerate state served to inflame his appetites, in his new province of a Moralist will serve him (a little turned) to expose the enormity of those appetites in other men. No one will doubt, who reads Marston's Satires, that the Author in some part of his life must have been something more than a theorist in vice. Have we never heard an old preacher in the pulpit display such an insight into the mystery of ungodliness, as made us wonder with reason how a good man came by it? When Cervantes with such proficiency of fondness dwells upon the Don's library, who sees not that he has been a great reader of books of Knight Errantry? perhaps was at some time of his life in danger of falling into those very extravagancies which he ridicules so happily in his Hero?

Because they should be pointing stocks to man,
 Drest up in civilest shape a Courtezan ;
 Let her walk saint-like noteless and unknown,
 Yet she's betray'd by some trick of her own.

The happy Man.

He that makes gold his wife, but not his whore,
 He that at noon day walks by a prison door,
 He that in the Sun is neither beam nor moat,
 He that's not mad after a petticoat,
 He for whom poor men's curses dig no grave,
 He that is neither Lord's nor Lawyer's slave,
 He that makes This his sea and That his shore,
 He that in 's coffin is richer than before,
 He that counts Youth his sword and Age his staff,
 He whose right hand carves his own epitaph,
 He that upon his death bed is a Swan,
 And dead, no Crow : he is a Happy Man *.

SATIRO-MASTIX, OR THE UNTRUSSING OF THE HUMOROUS POET, BY THOMAS DECKER.

The King exacts an oath from Sir Walter Terill to send his Bride Cælestina to Court on the marriage night. Her Father, to save her honour, gives her a poisonous mixture which she swallows.

TERILL. CÆLESTINA. FATHER.

Cæl. Why didst thou swear?

Ter. The King

Sat heavy on my resolution,

Till (out of breath) it panted out an oath.

* The turn of this is the same with Iago's definition of a Deserving Woman : " She that was ever fair and never proud, &c." The matter is superior.

Cæl. An oath! why, what's an oath? 'tis but the smoke

Of flame and blood; the blister of the spirit
Which riseth from the steam of rage, the bubble
That shoots up to the tongue and scalds the voice;
(For oaths are burning words.) Thou swor'st but one,
'Tis frozen long ago: if one be number'd,
What countrymen are they, where do they dwell,
That speak nought else but oaths?

Ter. They're Men of Hell.

An oath! why 'tis the traffic of the soul,
'Tis law within a man; the seal of faith,
The bond of every conscience; unto whom
We set our thoughts like hands: yea, such a one
I swore, and to the King; a King contains
A thousand thousand; when I swore to him,
I swore to them: the very hairs that guard
His head will rise up like sharp witnesses
Against my faith and loyalty: his eye
Would strait condemn me: argue oaths no more;
My oath is high, for to the King I swore.

Cæl. Must I betray my chastity, so long
Clean from the treason of rebelling lust?
O husband, O my father, if poor I
Must not live chaste, then let me chastely die.

Fath. Aye, here's a charm shall keep thee chaste, come, come,
Old time hath left us but an hour to play
Our parts; begin the scene; who shall speak first?
Oh I, I play the King, and Kings speak first:
Daughter, stand thou here, thou son Terill there;
We need no prologue, the King entering first
He's a most gracious Prologue: marry, then
For the catastrophe or Epilogue,

There's one in cloth of silver, which no doubt
Will please the hearers well when he steps out ;
His mouth is filled with words : see where he stands :
He'll make them clap their eyes besides their hands.
But to my part : suppose who enters now,
A King whose eyes are set in silver ; one
That blusheth gold, speaks music, dancing walks,
Now gathers nearer, takes thee by the hand,
When strait thou think'st the very orb of heaven
Moves round about thy fingers ; then he speaks,
Thus—thus—I know not how.

Cæl. Nor I to answer him.

Fath. No, girl ! know'st thou not how to answer him ?
Why, then the field is lost, and he rides home
Like a great conqueror : not answer him !
Out of thy part already ! foil'd the scene !
Disrank'd the lines ! disarm'd the action !

Ter. Yes, yes, true chastity is tongued so weak
'Tis overcome ere it know how to speak.

Fath. Come, come, thou happy close of every wrong,
'Tis thou that canst dissolve the hardest doubt ;
'Tis time for thee to speak, we all are out.
Daughter and you the man whom I call son,
I must confess I made a deed of gift
To heaven and you, and gave my child to both ;
When on my blessing I did charm her soul
In the white circle of true chastity,
Still to run true till death : now, sir, if not,
She forfeits my rich blessing, and is fined
With an eternal curse ; then I tell you,
She shall die now, now whilst her soul is true.

Ter. Die !

Cæl. Aye, I am death's echo.

Fath. O my son :

I am her father ; every tear I shed
Is threescore ten years old ; I weep and smile
Two kinds of tears : I weep that she must die,
I smile that she must die a virgin : thus
We joyful men mock tears, and tears mock us.

Ter. What speaks that cup ?

Fath. White wine and poison.

Ter. Oh :

That very name of poison poisons me.
Thou winter of a man, thou walking grave,
Whose life is like a dying taper : how
Canst thou define a Lover's laboring thoughts ?
What scent hast thou but death ? what taste but earth ?
The breath that purls from thee, is like the steam
Of a new open'd vault : I know thy drift ;
Because thou'rt travelling to the land of graves,
Thou covet'st company, and hither bring'st
A health of poison to pledge death : a poison
For this sweet spring ; this element is mine,
This is the air I breathe ; corrupt it not :
This heaven is mine, I bought it with my soul
Of him that sells a heaven to buy a soul.

Fath. Well, let her go ; she's thine thou call'st her thine,

Thy element, the air thou breath'st ; thou know'st
The air thou breath'st is common ; make her so.
Perhaps thou'lt say none but the King shall wear
Thy night-gown, she that laps thee warm with love ;
And that Kings are not common : then to shew
By consequence he cannot make her so.
Indeed she may promote her shame and thine,
And with your shames speak a good word for mine.
The King shining so clear, and we so dim,
Our dark disgraces will be seen through him.

Imagine her the cup of thy moist life,
 What man would pledge a King in his own Wife?

Ter. She dies : that sentence poisons her : O life !
 What slave would pledge a King in his own Wife?

Cæl. Welcome O poison, physic against lust,
 Thou wholesome medicine to a constant blood ;
 Thou rare apothecary that canst keep
 My chastity preserv'd within this box
 Of tempting dust, this painted earthen pot
 That stands upon the stall of the white soul,
 To set the shop out like a flatterer,
 To draw the customers of sin : come, come,
 Thou art no poison, but a diet drink
 To moderate my blood : White-innocent Wine,
 Art thou made guilty of my death ? oh no,
 For thou thyself art poison'd : take me hence,
 For Innocence shall murder Innocence. [Drinks.]

Ter. Hold, hold, thou shalt not die, my bride, my wife,

O stop that speedy messenger of death ;
 O let him not run down that narrow path
 Which leads unto thy heart, nor carry news
 To thy removing soul that thou must die.

Cæl. 'Tis done already, the Spiritual Court
 Is breaking up, all Offices discharg'd,
 My Soul removes from this weak Standing-house
 Of frail mortality : Dear father, bless
 Me now and ever : Dearer man, farewell ;
 I jointly take my leave of thee and life ;
 Go tell the King thou hast a constant wife.

Fath. Smiles on my cheeks arise
 To see how sweetly a true virgin dies.

[The beauty and force of this scene are much diminished to the reader of the entire play, when he comes to find that this solemn preparation is but a sham contrivance of the father's, and the potion which Cælestina swallows nothing more than a sleeping draught; from the effects of which she is to awake in due time, to the surprise of her husband, and the great mirth and edification of the King and his courtiers. As Hamlet says, they do but "poison in jest." The sentiments are worthy of a real martyrdom, and an Appian sacrifice in earnest.]

WESTWARD HOE. A COMEDY. BY THOMAS DECKER AND JOHN WEBSTER.

Pleasure, the general pursuit.

Sweet Pleasure!

Delicious Pleasure! earth's supremest good,
The spring of blood, though it dry up our blood.
Rob me of that (though to be drunk with pleasure,
As rank excess even in best things is bad,
Turns man into a beast) yet, that being gone,
A horse, and this (the goodliest shape) all one.
We feed; wear rich attires; and strive to cleave
The stars with marble towers; fight battles; spend
Our blood, to buy us names; and in iron hold
Will we eat roots to imprison fugitive gold:
But to do thus what spell can us excite?
This; the strong magic of our appetite:
To feast which richly, life itself undoes.
Who'd not die thus?
Why even those that starve in voluntary wants,
And, to advance the mind, keep the flesh poor,
The world enjoying them, they not the world;
Would they do this, but that they are proud to suck
A sweetness from such sourness?

Music.

Let music
 Charm with her excellent voice an awful silence
 Through all this building, that her sphery soul
 May (on the wings of air) in thousand forms
 Invisibly fly, yet be enjoy'd.

THE HISTORY OF ANTONIO AND MELLIDA. THE FIRST PART. BY JOHN MARSTON.

Andrugio Duke of Genoa, banished his country, with the loss of a son supposed drowned, is cast upon the territory of his mortal enemy the Duke of Venice; with no attendants but Lucio an old nobleman, and a page.

Andr. Is not yon gleam the shudd'ring Morn that flakes

With silver tincture the east verge of heaven?

Luc. I think it is, so please your Excellence.

Andr. Away, I have no Excellence to please.
 Prithee observe the custom of the world;
 That only flatters greatness, states exalts.
 And please my Excellence! O Lucio,
 Thou hast been ever held respected, dear,
 Even precious to Andrugio's inmost love:
 Good, flatter not.

My thoughts are fixt in contemplation
 Why this huge earth, this monstrous animal
 That eats her children, should not have eyes and ears.
 Philosophy maintains that Nature's wise,
 And forms no useless nor unperfect thing.

Did Nature make the earth, or the earth Nature?
 For earthly dirt makes all things, makes the man,
 Moulds me up honour, and, like a cunning Dutchman,
 Paints me a puppet even with seeming breath,
 And gives a sot appearance of a soul.
 Go to, go to ; thou ly'st, Philosophy.
 Nature forms things unperfect, useless, vain.
 Why made she not the earth with eyes and ears?
 That she might see desert and hear men's plaints ;
 That when a soul is splitted, sunk with grief,
 He might fall thus upon the breast of Earth,
 And in her ear halloo his misery,
 Exclaiming thus : O thou all bearing Earth,
 Which men do gape for till thou cramm'st their mouths
 And choak'st their throats with dust ; open thy breast,
 And let me sink into thee : look who knocks ;
 Andrugio calls. But O she's deaf and blind.
 A wretch but lean relief on earth can find.

Luc. Sweet Lord, abandon passion ; and disarm.
 Since by the fortune of the tumbling sea
 We are roll'd up upon the Venice marsh,
 Let's clip all fortune, lest more low'ring fate—

Andr. More low'ring fate ! O Lucio, choak that breath.
 Now I defy chance. Fortune's brow hath frown'd,
 Even to the utmost wrinkle it can bend :
 Her venom's spit. Alas ! what country rests,
 What son, what comfort, that she can deprive ?
 Triumphs not Venice in my overthrow ?
 Gapes not my native country for my blood ?
 Lies not my son tomb'd in the swelling main ?
 And in more low'ring fate ? There's nothing left
 Unto Andrugio but Andrugio :
 And that

Nor mischief, force, distress, nor hell can take :
Fortune my fortunes not my mind shall shake.

Luc. Speak like yourself : but give me leave, my Lord,
To wish you safety. If you are but seen,
Your arms display you ; therefore put them off,
And take——

Andr. Would'st have me go unarm'd among my foes ?
Being besieg'd by Passion, entering lists
To combat with Despair and mighty Grief :
My soul beleaguer'd with the crushing strength
Of sharp Impatience. Ha, Lucio ; go unarm'd ?
Come, soul, resume the valour of thy birth ;
Myself myself will dare all opposites :
I'll muster forces, an unvanquish'd power :
Cornets of horse shall press th' ungrateful earth :
This hollow-wombed mass shall inly groan
And murmur to sustain the weight of arms :
Ghastly Amazement, with upstart hair,
Shall hurry on before, and usher us,
Whilst trumpets clamour with a sound of death.

Luc. Peace, good my lord, your speech is all too light.
Alas, survey your fortunes, look what's left
Of all your forces and your utmost hopes ;
A weak old man, a page, and your poor self.

Andr. Andrugio lives ; and a Fair Cause of Arms.
Why, that's an army all invincible.
He who hath that, hath a battalion royal,
Armour of proof, huge troops of barbed steeds,
Main squares of pikes, millions of harquebush.
O, a Fair Cause stands firm, and will abide ;
Legions of Angels fight upon her side.

[The situation of Andrugio and Lucio resembles that of Lear and Kent, in that King's distresses. Andrugio, like Lear, manifests a kind of royal impatience, a turbulent greatness, an affected resignation. The Enemies which he enters lists to combat, "Despair, and mighty Grief, and sharp Impatience," and the Forces ("Cornets of Horse," &c.) which he brings to vanquish them, are in the boldest style of Allegory. They are such a "race of mourners" as "the infection of sorrows loud" in the intellect might beget on "some pregnant cloud" in the imagination.

ANTONIO'S REVENGE. THE SECOND PART OF THE HISTORY OF ANTONIO AND MELLIDA. BY JOHN MARSTON.

The Prologue *.

The rawish dank of clumsy winter ramps
 The fluent summer's vein; and drizzling sleet
 Chilleth the wan bleak cheek of the numm'd earth,
 While snarling gusts nibble the juiceless leaves
 From the nak'd shuddring branch, and pills † the skin
 From off the soft and delicate aspects.
 O now methinks a sullen tragic scene
 Would suit the time with pleasing congruence.
 May we be happy in our weak devoir,
 And all part pleased in most wish'd content.
 But sweat of Hercules can ne'er beget
 So blest an issue. Therefore we proclaim,
 If any spirit breathes within this round

* This prologue for its passionate earnestness, and for the tragic note of preparation which it sounds, might have preceded one of those old tales of Thebes, or Pelops' line, which Milton has so highly commended, as free from the common error of the poets in his days, "of intermixing comic stuff with tragic sadness and gravity, brought in without discretion corruptly to gratify the people."—It is as solemn a preparative as the "warning voice which he who saw th' Apocalyps, heard cry"—

† Peels.

Uncapable of weighty passion,
 (As from his birth being hugged in the arms,
 And nuzled 'twixt the breasts of Happiness*)
 Who winks and shuts his apprehension up
 From common sense of what men were, and are;
 Who would not know what men must be: let such
 Hurry amain from our black visag'd shows;
 We shall affright their eyes. But if a breast,
 Nail'd to the earth with grief; if any heart,
 Pierc'd through with anguish, pant within this ring;
 If there be any blood, whose heat is choak'd
 And stifled with true sense of misery:
 If aught of these strains fill this consort up,
 They arrive most welcome. O that our power
 Could lacky or keep wing with our desires;
 That with unused poize of stile and sense
 We might weigh massy in judicious scale!
 Yet here's the prop that doth support our hopes:
 When our scenes falter, or invention halts,
 Your favour will give crutches to our faults.

Antonio, Son to Andrugio Duke of Genoa, whom Piero the Venetian Prince and father-in-law to Antonio has cruelly murdered, kills Piero's little son Julio, as a sacrifice to the ghost of Andrugio.—The scene, a church-yard: the time, midnight.

JULIO. ANTONIO.

Jul. Brother Antonio, are you here i' faith?
 Why do you frown? Indeed my sister said,
 That I should call you brother, that she did,
 When you were married to her. Buss me: good truth,
 I love you better than my father, 'deed.

* "Sleek favourites of Fortune." Preface to Poems by S. T. Coleridge.

Ant. Thy father? gracious, O bounteous heaven,
I do adore thy justice. *Venit in nostras manus
Tandem vindicta, venit et tota quidem.*

Jul. Truth, since my mother died, I loved you best.
Something hath anger'd you: pray you, look merrily.

Ant. I will laugh, and dimple my thin cheek
With capering joy; chuck, my heart doth leap
To grasp thy bosom. Time, place, and blood,
How fit you close together! heaven's tones
Strike not such music to immortal souls,
As your accordance sweets my breast withal.
Methinks I pace upon the front of Jove,
And kick corruption with a scornful heel,
Gripping this flesh, disdain mortality.
O that I knew which joint, which side, which limb
Were father all and had no mother in it;
That I might rip it vein by vein, and carve revenge
In bleeding traces: but since 'tis mixt together,
Have at adventure, pell-mell, no reverse.
Come hither, boy; this is Andrugio's hearse.

Jul. O God, you'll hurt me. For my sister's sake,
Pray you don't hurt me. And you kill me, 'deed
I'll tell my father.

Ant. O, for thy sister's sake I flag revenge.

(Andrugio's Ghost cries "Revenge.")

Ant. Stay, stay, dear father, fright mine eyes no more.
Revenge as swift as lightning, bursteth forth
And clears his heart. Come, pretty tender child,
It is not thee I hate, or thee I kill.
Thy father's blood that flows within thy veins,
Is it I lothe; is that, revenge must suck.
I love thy soul: and were thy heart lapt up
In any flesh but in Piero's blood,

I would thus kiss it : but, being his, thus, thus,
 And thus I'll punch it. Abandon fears :
 Whilst thy wounds bleed, my brows shall gush out tears.

Jul. So you will love me, do even what you will. [Dies.]

Ant. Now barks the wolf against the full-cheekt moon ;
 Now lions' half-clam'd entrails roar for food ;
 Now croaks the toad, and night-crows screech aloud,
 Fluttering 'bout casements of departing souls !
 Now gape the graves, and through their yawns let loose
 Imprison'd spirits to revisit earth :
 And now, swart Night, to swell thy hour out
 Behold I spurt warm blood in thy black eyes.

(From under the earth a groan.)

Howl not, thou putry mould ; groan not, ye graves ;
 Be dumb, all breath. Here stands Andrugio's son,
 Worthy his father. So ; I feel no breath ;
 His jaws are fall'n, his dislodged soul is fled.
 And now there's nothing but Piero left.
 He is all Piero, father all. This blood,
 This breast, this heart, Piero all :
 Whom thus I mangle Spright of Julio,
 Forget this was thy trunk. I live thy friend.
 Mayst thou be twined with the soft'st embrace
 Of clear eternity * : but thy father's blood
 I thus make incense of to Vengeance. * *

* * * * *

Day breaking.

— see, the dapple grey coursers of the morn
 Beat up the light with their bright silver hoofs
 And chase it through the sky.

* " To lie immortal in the arms of Fire." Browne's Religio Medici.
 Of the punishments in hell.

One who died, slandered.

Look on those lips,
Those now lawn pillows, on whose tender softness
Chaste modest Speech, stealing from out his breast,
Had wont to rest itself, as loth to post
From out so fair an Inn : look, look, they seem
To stir,
And breathe defiance to black obloquy.

Wherein fools are happy.

Even in that, note a fool's beatitude ;
He is not capable of passion ;
Wanting the power of distinction,
He bears an unturn'd sail with every wind :
Blow east, blow west, he steers his course alike.
I never saw a fool lean : the chub-faced fop
Shines sleek with full cram'd fat of happiness :
Whilst studious contemplation sucks the juice
From wisard's * cheeks, who making curious search
For nature's secrets, the First Innating Cause
Laughs them to scorn, as man doth busy Apes
When they will zany men.

Maria (the Duchess of Genoa) describes the death of Mellida, her daughter in law.

Being laid upon her bed she grasp'd my hand,
And kissing it spake thus, Thou very poor,
Why dost not weep ? the jewel of thy brow,
The rich adornment that inchas'd thy breast,
Is lost ; thy son, my love is lost, is dead.
And have I liv'd to see his virtues blurr'd
With guiltless blots ? O world, thou art too subtil

* Wise men's.

For honest natures to converse withal :
 Therefore I'll leave thee : farewell, mart of woe ;
 I fly to clip my love Antonio.—
 With that, her head sunk down upon her breast ;
 Her cheek chang'd earth, her senses slept in rest :
 Until my Fool *, that crept unto the bed,
 Screech'd out so loud that he brought back her soul,
 Call'd her again, that her bright eyes 'gan ope
 And stared upon him : he audacious fool
 Dared kiss her hand, wisht her soft rest, lov'd Bride ;
 She fumbled out, thanks, good : and so she died.

THE MALCONTENT. A TRAGI-COMEDY. BY JOHN MARSTON.

The Malcontent describes himself.

I cannot sleep, my eyes' ill neighbouring lids
 Will hold no fellowship. O thou pale sober night,
 Thou that in sluggish fumes all sense dost steep ;
 Thou that giv'st all the world full leave to play,
 Unbend'st the feebled veins of sweaty labour :
 The gally-slave, that all the toilsome day
 Tugs at the oar against the stubborn wave,
 Straining his rugged veins, snores fast ;
 The stooping scythe-man, that doth barb the field,
 Thou mak'st wink sure ; in night all creatures sleep,
 Only the Malcontent, that 'gainst his fate
 Repines and quarrels : alas, he's Goodman Tell-clock ;
 His sallow jaw-bones sink with wasting moan ;
 Whilst others' beds are down, his pillow's stone.

* Antonio, who is thought dead, but still lives in that disguise.

Place for a Penitent.

My cell 'tis, lady ; where, instead of masks,
 Music, tilts, tournies, and such court-like shows,
 The hollow murmur of the checkless winds
 Shall groan again, whilst the unquiet sea
 Shakes the whole rock with foamy battery.
 There Usherless * the air comes in and out ;
 The rheumy vault will force your eyes to weep,
 Whilst you behold true desolation.
 A rocky barrenness shall pierce your eyes ;
 Where all at once one reaches, where he stands,
 With brows the roof, both walls with both his hands.

THE WONDER OF WOMEN: OR THE TRAGEDY OF SOPHONISBA. BY JOHN MARSTON.

Description of the Witch Erictho.

Here in this desert, the great Soul of Charms
 Dreadful Erictho lives ; whose dismal brow
 Contemns all roofs, or civil coverture.
 Forsaken graves and tombs (the ghosts forc'd out)
 She joys to inhabit.
 A loathsome yellow leanness spreads her face,
 A heavy hell-like paleness loads her cheeks,
 Unknown to a clear heaven. But if dark winds
 Or black thick clouds drive back the blinded stars,
 When her deep magic makes forc'd heaven quake,
 And thunder, spite of Jove : Erictho then

* i. e. without the ceremony of an Usher to give notice of its approach, as is usual in Courts. As fine as Shakspeare : " the bleak air thy boisterous Chamberlain."

From naked graves stalks out, heaves proud her head,
 With long unkemb'd hair loaden, and strives to snatch
 The night's quick sulphur; then she bursts up tombs
 From half-rot sear-cloths; and she scrapes dry gums
 For her black rites: but when she finds a corse
 But newly grav'd, whose entrails are not turn'd
 To slimy filth, with greedy havock then
 She makes fierce spoil, and swells with wicked triumph
 To bury her lean knuckles in his eyes:
 Then doth she gnaw the pale and o'er-grown nails
 From his dry hand: but if she find some life
 Yet lurking close, she bites his gelid lips,
 And sticking her black tongue in his dry throat,
 She breathes dire murmurs, which enforce him bear
 Her baneful secrets to the spirits of horror.

Her Cave.

—Hard by the reverent ruins
 Of a once glorious Temple, rear'd to Jove,
 Whose very rubbish (like the pitied fall
 Of virtue much unfortunate) yet bears
 A deathless majesty, though now quite ras'd,
 Hurl'd down by wrath and lust of impious kings,
 So that, where holy Flamens wont to sing
 Sweet hymns to heaven, there the daw, and crow,
 The ill-voic'd raven, and still-chattering pye,
 Send out ungrateful sounds and loathsome filth;
 Where statues and Jove's acts were vively* limn'd,
 Boys with black coals draw the veil'd parts of nature
 And lecherous actions of imagin'd lust;
 Where tombs and beauteous urns of well-dead men
 Stood in assured rest, the shepherd now
 Unloads his belly, corruption most abhorr'd

* Livelily.

Mingling itself with their renowned ashes :
There once a charnel-house, now a vast cave,
Over whose brow a pale and untrod grove
Throws out her heavy shade, the mouth thick arms
Of darksome ewe, sun-proof, for ever choak ;
Within, rests barren darkness, fruitless drought
Pines in eternal night ; the steam of hell
Yields not so lazy air : there, that's her Cell.

THE INSATIATE COUNTESS: A TRAGEDY. BY JOHN MARSTON.

Isabella (the Countess) after a long series of crimes of infidelity to her husband and of murder, is brought to suffer on a scaffold. Roberto, her husband, arrives to take a last leave of her.

Roberto. Bear record all you blessed saints in heaven,
I come not to torment thee in thy death ;
For of himself he's terrible enough,
But call to mind a Lady like yourself,
And think how ill in such a beauteous soul,
Upon the instant morrow of her nuptials,
Apostacy and wild revolt would show.
Withal, imagine that she had a lord
Jealous, the air should ravish her chaste looks ;
Doting, like the Creator in his models,
Who views them every minute, and with care
Mixt in his fear of their obedience to him.
Suppose he sung through famous Italy,
More common than the looser songs of Petrarch,
To every several Zany's instrument :
And he poor wretch, hoping some better fate

Might call her back from her adulterate purpose,
Lives in obscure and almost unknown life ;
Till hearing that she is condemn'd to die,
For he once lov'd her, lends his pined corpse
Motion to bring him to her stage of honour,
Where, drown'd in woe at her so dismal chance,
He clasps her : thus he falls into a trance.

Isabella. O my offended lord, lift up your eyes ;
But yet avert them from my lothed sight.
Had I with you enjoyed the lawful pleasure,
To which belongs nor fear nor public shame,
I might have liv'd in honour, died in fame.
Your pardon on my faltering knees I beg ;
Which shall confirm more peace unto my death,
Than all the grave instructions of the Church.

Roberto. Freely thou hast it. Farewell, my Isabella ;
Let thy death ransom thy soul, O die a rare example.
The kiss thou gav'st me in the church, here take :
As I leave thee, so thou the world forsake. [Exit.

Executioner. Madam, tie up your hair.

Isabella. O these golden nets,
That have insnared so many wanton youths !
Not one but has been held a thread of life,
And superstitiously depended on.
What else ?

Executioner. Madam, I must intreat you blind your eyes.

Isabella. I have lived too long in darkness, my friend ;
And yet mine eyes with their majestic light,
Have got new Muses in a Poet's spright.
They've been more gaz'd at than the God of day ;
Their brightness never could be flattered :
Yet thou command'st a fixed cloud of lawn
To eclipse eternally these minutes of light.
I am prepared.—

Woman's inconstancy.

Who would have thought it? She that could no more
Forsake my company, than can the day
Forsake the glorious presence of the sun,
When I was absent, then her galled eyes
Would have shed April showers, and outwept
The clouds in that same o'er-passionate mood
When they drown'd all the world: yet now forsakes me.
Women, your eyes shed glances like the sun;
Now shines your brightness, now your light is done.
On the sweet'st flowers you shine, 'tis but by chance,
And on the basest weed you'll waste a glance.

WHAT YOU WILL: A COMEDY. BY JOHN MARSTON.

Venetian Merchant.

No knight,
But one (that title off) was even a prince,
A sultan Solyman: thrice was he made,
In dangerous arms, Venice' Providetore.
He was merchant, but so bounteous,
Valiant, wise, learned, all so absolute,
That nought was valued praiseful excellent,
But in't was he most praiseful excellent.
O I shall ne'er forget how he went cloathed.
He would maintain it a base ill-us'd fashion,
To bind a merchant to the sullen habit
Of precise black, chiefly in Venice state,
Where merchants guilt the top*.

* "Her whose merchant Sons were Kings." Collins.

And therefore should you have him pass the bridge
 Up the Rialto like a Soldier ;
 In a black bever belt, ash colour plain,
 A Florentine cloth-o'-silver jerkin, sleeves
 White satin cut on tinsel, then long stock ;
 French panes embroider'd, goldsmith's work : O God,
 Methinks I see him, how he would walk,
 With what a jolly presence he would pace
 Round the Rialto*.

Scholar and his Dog.

I was a scholar : seven useful springs
 Did I deflower in quotations
 Of cross'd opinions 'bout the soul of man ;
 The more I learnt, the more I learnt to doubt.
Delight my spaniel slept, whilst I baus'd leaves,
 Toss'd o'er the dunces, pored on the old print
 Of titled words : and still my spaniel slept.
 Whilst I wasted lamp-oil, baited my flesh,
 Shrunk up my veins : and still my spaniel slept.
 And still I held converse with Zabarell,
 Aquinas, Scotus, and the musty saw
 Of Antick Donate : still my spaniel slept.
 Still on went I ; first, an sit anima ;

* To judge of the liberality of these notions of dress, we must advert to the days of Gresham, and the consternation which a Phenomenon habited like the Merchant here described would have excited among the flat round caps, and cloth stockings, upon Change, when those " original arguments or tokens of a Citizen's vocation were in fashion not more for thrift and usefulness than for distinction and grace." The blank uniformity to which all professional distinctions in apparel have been long hastening, is one instance of the Decay of Symbols among us, which, whether it has contributed or not to make us a more intellectual, has certainly made us a less imaginative people. Shakspeare knew the force of signs :—" a malignant and a turban'd Turk." " This meal-cap Miller" says the Author of God's Revenge against Murder, to express his indignation at an atrocious outrage committed by the miller Pierot upon the person of the fair Marieta,

Then, an it were mortal. O hold, hold ; at that They're at brain buffets, fell by the ears amain
Pell-mell together ; still my spaniel slept.
Then, whether 'twere corporeal, local, fixt,
Ex traduce, but whether 't had free will
Or no, hot philosophers
Stood banding factions, all so strongly propt,
I stagger'd, knew not which was firmer part,
But thought, quoted, read, observ'd and pryed,
Stufft noting-books : and still my spaniel slept.
At length he wak'd, and yawned ; and by yon sky,
For aught I know he knew as much as I.

Preparations for Second Nuptials.

Now is Albano's* marriage-bed new hung
With fresh rich curtains, now are my valence up,
Imbost with orient pearl, my grandsire's gift,
Now are the lawn sheets fum'd with violets
To fresh the pall'd lascivious appetite,
Now work the cooks, the pastry sweats with slaves,
The march-panes glitter, now, now the musicians
Hover with nimble sticks o'er squeaking crowds †,
Tickling the dried guts of a mewling cat :
The tailors, starchers, semsters, butchers, poulterers,
Mercers, all, all——none think on me.

* Albano, the first husband speaks ; supposed dead.

† Fiddles.

CÆSAR AND POMPEY: A TRAGEDY. BY GEORGE CHAPMAN.Sacrifice.

Imperial Cæsar, at your sacred charge
I drew a milk white ox into the Temple,
And turning there his face into the East,
(Fearfully shaking at the shining light)
Down fell his horned forehead to his hoof.
When I began to greet him with the stroke
That should prepare him for the holy rites,
With hideous roars he laid out such a throat
As made the secret lurkings of the God
To answer, Echo-like, in threat'ning sounds :
I struck again at him, and then he slept ;
His life-blood boiling out at every wound
In streams as clear as any liquid ruby.
—— the beast cut up, and laid on the altar,
His limbs were all lickt up with instant flames ;
Not like the elemental fire that burns
In household uses, lamely struggling up,
This way and that way winding as it rises,
But right and upright reacht his proper sphere
Where burns the fire eternal and sincere.

Joy unexpected, best.

Joys unexpected, and in desperate plight,
Are still most sweet, and prove from whence they come ;
When earth's still moon-like confidence in joy
Is at her full : True Joy descending far
From past her sphere, and from the highest heaven
That moves and is not moved.

Inward Help the best Help.

—— I will stand no more
On others' legs, nor build one joy without me.
If ever I be worth a house again,
I'll build all inward : not a light shall ope
The common out-way ; no expence, no art,
No ornament, no door, will I use there ;
But raise all plain and rudely like a rampire,
Against the false society of men,
That still batters
All reason piece-meal ; and, for earthly greatness
All heavenly comforts rarifies to air.
I'll therefore live in dark ; and all my light,
Like ancient Temples, let in at my top.
That where to turn one's back to all the world,
And only look at heaven.

——— When our diseas'd affections
Harmful to human freedom, and storm-like
Inferring darkness to th' infected mind,
Oppress our comforts : 'tis but letting in
The light of reason, and a purer spirit
Take in another way ; like rooms that fight
With windows 'gainst the wind, yet let in light.

BUSSY D'AMBOIS, A TRAGEDY. BY GEORGE CHAPMAN.

A Nuntius (or Messenger) in the presence of King Henry the Third of France and his court tells the manner of a combat, to which he was witness, of three to three ; in which D'Ambois remained sole survivor : begun upon an affront passed upon D'Ambois by some courtiers.

HENRY, GUISE, BEAUPRE, NUNTIUS, &c.

Nuntius. I saw fierce D'Ambois and his two' brave friends

Enter the field, and at their heels their foes,
Which were the famous soldiers, Barrisor,
L'Anou, and Pyrrhot, great in deeds of arms :
All which arriv'd at the evenest piece of earth
The field afforded, the three challengers
Turn'd head, drew all their rapiers, and stood rank'd ;
When face to face the three defendants met them,
Alike prepar'd, and resolute alike.
Like bonfires of contributory wood
Every man's look shew'd, fed with other's spirit ;
As one had been a mirror to another,
Like forms of life and death each took from other :
And so were life and death mix'd at their heights,
That you could see no fear of death (for life)
Nor love of life (for death) : but in their brows
Pyrrho's opinion in great letters shone ;
That " life and death in all respects are one."

Henry. Past there no sorts of words at their encounter?

Nuntius. As Hector twixt the hosts of Greece and Troy,
When Paris and the Spartan king should end
The nine years' war, held up his brazen lance
For signal that both hosts should cease from arms,

And hear him speak : so Barrisor (advis'd)
Advanc'd his naked rapier 'twixt both sides,
Ript up the quarrel, and compar'd six lives
Then laid in balance with six idle words ;
Offer'd remission and contrition too :
Or else that he and D'Ambois might conclude
The others' danger. D'Ambois lik'd the last :
But Barrisor's friends, (being equally engag'd
In the main quarrel,) never would expose
His life alone to that they all deserv'd.
And (for the other offer of remission)
D'Ambois (that like a laurel put in fire
Sparkled and spit) did much much more than scorn
That his wrong should incense him so like chaff
To go so soon out, and, like lighted paper,
Approve his spirit at once both fire and ashes :
So drew they lots, and in them fates appointed
That Barrisor should fight with fiery D'Ambois ;
Pyrrhot with Melynell ; with Brisac L'Anou :
And then like flame and powder they commixt,
So spritely, that I wish'd they had been Spirits ;
That the ne'er-shutting wounds, they needs must open,
Might as they open'd shut, and never kill.*
But D'Ambois' sword (that light'ned as it flew)
Shot like a pointed comet at the face
Of manly Barrisor ; and there it stuck :
Thrice pluck'd he at it, and thrice drew on thrusts
From him, that of himself was free as fire ;
Who thrust still, as he pluck'd, yet (past belief)
He with his subtil eye, hand, body, 'scap'd ;
At last the deadly bitten point tugg'd off,
On fell his yet undaunted foe so fiercely

* One can hardly believe but that these lines were written after Milton had described his warring angels.

That (only made more horrid with his wound)
Great D'Ambois shrunk, and gave a little ground :
But soon return'd, redoubled in his danger,
And at the heart of Barrisor seal'd his anger.
Then, as in Arden I have seen an oak
Long shook with tempests, and his lofty top
Bent to his root, which being at length made loose
(Even groaning with his weight) he 'gan to nod
This way and that, as loth his curled brows
(Which he had oft wrapt in the sky with storms)
Should stoop ; and yet, his radical fibres burst,
Storm-like he fell, and hid the fear-cold earth :
So fell stout Barrisor, that had stood the shocks
Of ten set battles in your highness' war
'Gainst the sole soldier of the world Navarre.

Guise. O piteous and horrid murder !

Beaupre. Such a life
Methinks had metal in it to survive
An age of men.

Henry. Such often soonest end.
Thy felt report calls on ; we long to know
On what events the other have arrived.

Nuntius. Sorrow and fury, like two opposite fumes
Met in the upper region of a cloud,
At the report made by this worthy's fall,
Brake from the earth, and with them rose Revenge,
Ent'ring with fresh pow'rs his two noble friends :
And under that odds fell surcharg'd Brisac,
The friend of D'Ambois, before fierce L'Anou ;
Which D'Ambois seeing : as I once did see,
In my young travels through Armenia,
An angry Unicorn in his full career
Charge with too swift a foot a Jeweller
That watcht him for the treasure of his brow ;
And, ere he could get shelter of a tree,

Nail him with his rich antler to the earth :
 So D'Ambois ran upon reveng'd L'Anou,
 Who eyeing th' eager point borne in his face,
 And giving back, fell back, and in his fall
 His foe's uncurbed sword stopt in his heart :
 By which time, all the life-strings of th' two other
 Were cut, and both fell (as their spirit flew)
 Upwards : and still hunt honour at the view.
 And now, of all the six, sole D'Ambois stood
 Untoucht, save only with the others' blood.

Henry. All slain outright but he ?

Nuntius. All slain outright but he :
 Who kneeling in the warm life of his friends
 (All freckled with the blood his rapier rain'd)
 He kist their pale lips, and bade both farewell.

False Greatness.

As cedars beaten with continual storms,
 So great men flourish ; and do imitate
 Unskilful statuaries, who suppose,
 In forming a Colossus, if they make him
 Straddle enough, strut, and look big, and gape,
 Their work is goodly : so men merely great,
 In their affected gravity of voice,
 Sowness of countenance, manners' cruelty,
 Authority, wealth, and all the spawn of fortune,
 Think they bear all the kingdom's worth before them ;
 Yet differ not from those Colossick statues,
 Which, with heroic forms without o'erspread,
 Within are nought but mortar, flint, and lead.

Virtue.—Policy.—

—— as great seamen using all their wealth
 And skills in Neptune's deep invisible paths,
 In tall ships richly built and ribb'd with brass,

To put a girdle round about the world ;
 When they have done it, coming near the haven,
 Are fain to give a warning piece, and call
 A poor staid fisherman that never past
 His country's sight, to waft and guide them in :
 So when we wander furthest through the waves
 Of glassy Glory, and the gulfs of State,
 Topt with all titles, spreading all our reaches,
 As if each private arm would sphere the earth,
 We must to Virtue for her guide resort,
 Or we shall shipwreck in our safest port.

Nick of Time.

There is a deep nick in Time's restless wheel
 For each man's good, when which nick comes, it strikes :
 As Rhetorick yet works not persuasion,
 But only is a mean to make it work :
 So no man riseth by his real merit,
 But when it tries clink in his Raiser's spirit.

Difference of the English and French Courts.

HENRY. GUISE. MONTSURRY.

Guise. I like not their * Court fashion, it is too crest-fall'n

In all observance, making demigods
 Of their great Nobles, and of their old Queen †
 An ever young and most immortal Goddess.

Mont. No question she's the rarest Queen in Europe.

Guise. But what's that to her immortality ?

Henry. Assure you, cousin Guise ; so great a Courtier,
 So full of majesty and royal parts,
 No Queen in Christendom may vaunt herself.
 Her Court approves it. That's a Court indeed ;

* The English.

† Q. Elizabeth.

Not mix'd with clowneries us'd in common Houses :
But, as Courts should be, th' abstracts of their kingdoms,
In all the beauty, state, and worth they hold.
So is hers amply, and by her inform'd.
The world is not contracted in a Man,
With more proportion and expression,
Than in her Court her Kingdom. Our French Court
Is a mere mirror of confusion to it.
The King and Subject, Lord and every Slave,
Dance a continual hay. Our rooms of state
Kept like our stables : no place more observ'd
Than a rude market-place ; and though our custom
Keep his assur'd confusion from our eyes,
'Tis ne'er the less essentially unsightly.

BYRON'S CONSPIRACY. BY GEO. CHAPMAN.

Byron described.

——— he is a man

Of matchless valour, and was ever happy
In all encounters, which were still made good
With an unwearied sense of any toil ;
Having continued fourteen days together
Upon his horse : his blood is not voluptuous,
Nor much inclin'd to women ; his desires
Are higher than his state ; and his deserts
Not much short of the most he can desire,
If they be weigh'd with what France feels by them.
He is past measure glorious : and that humour
Is fit to feed his spirit, whom it possesseth
With faith in any error ; chiefly where
Men blow it up with praise of his perfections :
The taste whereof in him so soothes his palate,

And takes up all his appetite, that oft times
 He will refuse his meat, and company,
 To feast alone with their most strong conceit.
 Ambition also cheek by cheek doth march
 With that excess of glory, both sustain'd
 With an unlimited fancy, that the king,
 Nor France itself, without him can subsist.

Men's Glories eclipsed when they turn Traitors.

As when the moon hath comforted the night,
 And set the world in silver of her light,
 The planets, asterisms, and whole State of Heaven,
 In beams of gold descending : all the winds
 Bound up in caves, charg'd not to drive abroad
 Their cloudy heads : an universal peace
 (Proclaim'd in silence) of the quiet earth :
 Soon as her hot and dry fumes are let loose,
 Storms and clouds mixing suddenly put out
 The eyes of all those glories ; the creation
 Turn'd into Chaos ; and we then desire,
 For all our joy of life, the death of sleep.
 So when the glories of our lives, (men's loves,
 Clear consciences, our fames and loyalties,)
 That did us worthy comfort, are eclips'd :
 Grief and disgrace invade us ; and for all
 Our night of life besides, our misery craves
 Dark earth would ope and hide us in our graves.

Opinion the Scale of Good or Bad.

— there is no truth of any good
 To be discern'd on earth ; and, by conversion,
 Nought therefore simply bad : but as the stuff
 Prepar'd for Arras pictures, is no picture,
 Till it be form'd, and man hath cast the beams
 Of his imaginous fancy thorough it,
 In forming ancient Kings and Conquerors

As he conceives they look'd and were attir'd,
Though they were nothing so : so all things here
Have all their price set down from men's Conceits ;
Which make all terms and actions good or bad,
And are but pliant and well-colour'd threads
Put into feigned images of Truth.

Insinuating Manners.

We must have these lures, when we hawk for friends ;
And wind about them like a subtile River,
That, seeming only to run on his course,
Doth search yet, as he runs, and still finds out
The easiest parts of entry on the shore,
Gliding so slyly by, as scarce it touch'd,
Yet still eats something in it.

The Stars not able to foreshew any Thing.

I am a nobler substance than the stars :
And shall the baser over rule the better ?
Or are they better since they are the bigger ?
I have a will, and faculties of choice,
To do or not to do ; and reason why
I do or not do this : the stars have none.
They know not why they shine, more than this Taper,
Nor how they work, nor what. I'll change my course,
I'll piece-meal pull the frame of all my thoughts :
And where are all your Caput Algols then ?
Your planets all being underneath the earth
At my nativity : what can they do ?
Malignant in aspects ! in bloody houses !

The Master Spirit.

Give me a spirit that on life's rough sea
Loves to have his sails fill'd with a lusty wind,
Even till his sail-yards tremble, his masts crack,

And his rapt ship run on her side so low,
 That she drinks water, and her keel ploughs air.
 There is no danger to a man, that knows
 What Life and Death is : there's not any law
 Exceeds his knowledge ; neither is it lawful
 That he should stoop to any other law :
 He goes before them, and commands them all,
 That to himself is a law rational.

Vile Natures in High Places.

——— foolish Statuaries,
 That under little Saints, suppose* great bases,
 Make less (to sense) the saints : and so, where fortune
 Advanceth vile minds to states great and noble,
 She much the more exposeth them to shame ;
 Not able to make good, and fill their bases
 With a conformed structure.

Innocence the Harmony of the Faculties.

——— Innocence, the sacred amulet
 'Gainst all the poisons of infirmity,
 Of all misfortune, injury, and death :
 That makes a man in tune still in himself ;
 Free from the hell to be his own accuser ;
 Ever in quiet, endless joy enjoying,
 No strife nor no sedition in his powers ;
 No motion in his will against his reason ;
 No thought 'gainst thought ; nor, (as 'twere in the confines
 Of wishing and repenting,) both possess
 Only a wayward and tumultuous peace :
 But, all parts in him friendly and secure,
 Fruitful of all best things in all worst seasons,
 He can with every wish be in their plenty ;
 When the infectious guilt of one foul crime
 Destroys the free content of all our time.

* Put under.

BYRON'S TRAGEDY. BY GEO. CHAPMAN.

King Henry the Fourth of France blesses the young Dauphin.

My royal blessing, and the King of Heaven,
Make thee an aged and a happy King.
Help, nurse, to put my sword into his hand.
Hold, boy, by this ; and with it may thy arm
Cut from thy tree of rule all traitrous branches,
That strive to shadow and eclipse thy glories.
Have thy old father's Angel for thy guide,
Redoubled be his spirit in thy breast :
Who, when this State ran like a turbulent sea,
In civil hates and bloody enmity,
Their wraths and envies (like so many winds)
Settled and burst : and like the Halcyon's birth
Be thine, to bring a calm upon the shore :
In which the eyes of war may ever sleep,
As over-watch'd with former massacres,
When guilty mad Noblesse fed on Noblesse,
All the sweet plenty of the realm exhausted ;
When the nak'd merchant was pursued for spoil :
When the poor peasants frighted neediest thieves
With their pale leanness, nothing left on them
But meagre carcases, sustained with air,
Wandering like ghosts affrighted from their graves ;
When, with the often and incessant sounds
The very beasts knew the alarum bell,
And hearing it ran bellowing to their home ;
From which unchristian broils and homicides
Let the religious sword of Justice free
Thee, and thy kingdoms, govern'd after me ;
O Heaven ! Or if the unsettled blood of France,

With ease and wealth, renew her civil furies,
 Let all my powers be emptied in my Son;
 To curb and end them all as I have done.
 Let him by virtue quite out off from Fortune
 Her feather'd shoulders, and her winged shoes,
 And thrust from her light feet her turning stone ;
 That she may ever tarry by his throne.
 And of his worth let after ages say,
 (He fighting for the land, and bringing home
 Just conquests, loaden with his enemies' spoils,)
 His father past all France in martial deeds,
 But he his Father twenty times exceeds.

What we have, we slight ; what we want, we think excellent.

—— as a man, match'd with a lovely wife,
 When his most heavenly theory of her beauties
 Is dull'd and quite exhausted with his practice,
 He brings her forth to feasts, where he, alas,
 Falls to his viands with no thought like others,
 That think him blest in her ; and they, poor men,
 Court, and make faces, offer service, sweat
 With their desires' contention, break their brains
 For jests and tales, sit mute, and loose their looks,
 Far out of wit and out of countenance.
 So all men else do, what they have, transplant ;
 And place their wealth in thirst of what they want.

Soliloquy of King Henry deliberating on the Death of a Traitor.

O thou that governst the keen swords of Kings,
 Direct my arm in this important stroke ;
 Or hold it, being advanc'd : the weight of blood,
 Even in the basest subject, doth exact
 Deep consultation in the highest King :
 For in one subject, death's unjust affrights,

Passions, and pains, though he be ne'er so poor,
Ask more remorse, than the voluptuous spleens
Of all Kings in the world deserve respect.
He should be born grey-headed, that will bear
The weight of Empire. Judgment of the life,
Free state, and reputation, of a Man,
(If it be just and worthy) dwells so dark,
That it denies access to sun and moon :
The soul's eye, sharpen'd with that sacred light
Of whom the sun itself is but a beam,
Must only give that judgment. O how much
Err those Kings then, that play with life and death ;
And nothing put into their serious states
But humour and their lusts ; for which alone
Men long for kingdoms : whose huge counterpoise
In cares and dangers could a fool comprise,
He would not be a King, but would be wise.

[The Selections which I have made from this Poet are sufficient to give an idea of that " full and heightened style" which Webster makes characteristic of Chapman. Of all the English Play-writers, Chapman perhaps approaches nearest to Shakspeare in the descriptive and didactic, in passages which are less purely dramatic. Dramatic Imitation was not his talent. He could not go out of himself, as Shakspeare could shift at pleasure, to inform and animate other existences, but in himself he had an eye to perceive and a soul to embrace all forms. He would have made a great Epic Poet, if, indeed, he has not abundantly shown himself to be one ; for his Homer is not so properly a Translation as the Stories of Achilles and Ulysses re-written. The earnestness and passion which he has put into every part of these poems would be incredible to a reader of mere modern translations. His almost Greek zeal for the honor of his heroes is only paralleled by that fierce spirit of Hebrew bigotry, with which Milton, as if personating one of the Zealots of the old law, clothed himself when he sate down to paint the acts of Sampson against the Uncircumcised. The great obstacle to Chapman's Translations being read is their unconquerable quaintness. He pours out in the same breath the most just and natural and the most violent and forced expressions. He seems to grasp whatever words come first to hand during the impetus of inspiration, as if all other must be inadequate to the divine meaning. But passion (the all in all in Poetry) is everywhere present, raising the low, dignifying the mean, and putting sense into the absurd. He makes his readers glow, weep, tremble, take any affection which he pleases, be moved by words or in spite of them, be disgusted and overcome their disgust. I have often thought that the vulgar misconception of Shakspeare, as of a wild irregular genius "in whom great faults are compensated by great beauties," would be really true, applied to Chapman. But there is no scale by which to balance such disproportionate subjects as the faults and beauties of a great genius. To set off the former with any fairness against the latter, the pain which they give us should be in some proportion to the pleasure which we receive from the other. As these transport us to the highest heaven, those should steep us in agonies infernal.]

A CHALLENGE FOR BEAUTY. BY THOMAS HEYWOOD.

Petrocella a fair Spanish Lady loves Montferrers an English Sea Captain, who is Captive to Valladaura a noble Spaniard. —Valladaura loves the Lady; and employs Montferrers to be the Messenger of his Love to her.

PETROCELLA. MONTFERRERS.

Pet. What art thou in thy country?

Mont. There, a man.

Pet. What here?

Mont. No better than you see; a slave.

Pet. Whose?

Mont. His that hath redeem'd me.

Pet. Valladaura's?

Mont. Yes, I proclaim 't; I that was once mine own,
Am now become his creature.

Pet. I perceive,
Your coming is to make me think you noble.
Would you persuade me deem your friend a God?
For only such make men. Are you a Gentleman?

Mont. Not here; for I am all dejectedness,
Captive to fortune, and a slave to want;
I cannot call these clothes I wear mine own,
I do not eat but at another's cost,
This air I breathe is borrow'd; ne'er was man
So poor and abject. I have not so much
In all this universe as a thing to leave,
Or a country I can freely boast is mine.
My essence and my being is another's.
What should I say? I am not any thing;
And I possess as little.

Pet. Tell me that?
Come, come, I know you to be no such man.
You are a soldier valiant and renown'd;
Your carriage tried by land, and prov'd at sea;
Of which I have heard such full expression,
No contradiction can persuade you less;
And in this faith I am constant.

Mont. A meer worm,
Trod on by every fate.

Pet. Rais'd by your merit
To be a common argument through Spain,
And speech at Princes' tables, for your worth;
Your presence when you please to expose't abroad
Attracts all eyes, and draws them after you;
And those that understand you, call their friends,
And pointing through the street, say, This is he,
This is that brave and noble Englishman,
Whom soldiers strive to make their precedent,
And other men their wonder.

Mont. This your scorn

Makes me appear more abject to myself,
Than all diseases I have tasted yet
Had power to asperse upon me ; and yet, Lady,
I could say something, durst I.

Pet. Speak 't at once.

Mont. And yet ——

Pet. Nay, but we'll admit no pause.

Mont. I know not how my phrase may relish you,
And loth I were to offend ; even in what's past
I must confess I was too bold. Farewell ;
I shall no more distaste you.

Pet. Sir, you do not ;
I do proclaim you do not. Stay, I charge you ;
Or, as you say you have been fortune's scorn,
So ever prove to woman.

Mont. You charge deeply,
And yet now I bethink me ——

Pet. As you are a soldier,
And Englishman, have hope to be redeem'd
From this your scorned bondage you sustain,
Have comfort in your mother and fair sister,
Renown so blazed in the ears of Spain,
Hope to rebreathe that air you tasted first,
So tell me ——

Mont. What ?

Pet. Your apprehension catch'd,
And almost was in sheaf ——

Mont. Lady, I shall.

Pet. And in a word.

Mont. I will.

Pet. Pronounce it then.

Mont. I love you.

Pet. Ha, ha, ha.

Mont. Still it is my misery
Thus to be mock'd in all things.

Pet. Pretty, faith.

Mont. I look'd thus to be laught at ; my estate
And fortunes, I confess, deserve no less ;
That made me so unwilling to denounce
Mine own derisions : but alas ! I find
No nation, sex, complexion, birth, degree,
But jest at want, and mock at misery.

Pet. Love me ?

Mont. I do, I do ; and maugre Fate,
And spite of all sinister evil, shall.
And now I charge you, by that filial zeal
You owe your father, by the memory
Of your dear mother, by the joys you hope
In blessed marriage, by the fortunate issue
Stored in your womb, by these and all things else
That you can style with goodness ; instantly
Without evasion, trick, or circumstance,
Nay, least premeditation, answer me,
Affect you me, or no ?

Pet. How speak you that ?

Mont. Without demur or pause.

Pet. Give me but time

To sleep upon 't.

Mont. I pardon you no minute ; not so much,
As to apparel the least phrase you speak.
Speak in the shortest sentence.

Pet. You have vanquish'd me,
At mine own weapon : noble sir, I love you :
And what my heart durst never tell my tongue,
Lest it should blab my thoughts, at last I speak,
And iterate ; I love you.

Mont. Oh, my happiness !
What wilt thou feel me still ? art thou not weary
Of making me thy May-game, to possess me
Of such a treasure's mighty magazine,

Not suffer me to enjoy it ; tane with this hand,
With that to give 't another ?

Pet. You are sad, Sir ;
Be so no more : if you have been dejected,
It lies in me to mount you to that height
You could not aim at greater. I am yours.
These lips, that only witness it in air,
Now with this truth confirm it. [Kisses him.

Mont. I was born to 't ;
And it shall out at once.

Pet. Sir, you seem passionate ;
As if my answer pleas'd not.

Mont. Now my death ;
For mine own tongue must kill me : noble Lady,
You have endear'd me to you, but my vow
Was, ne'er to match with any, of what state
Or birth soever, till before the contract
Some one thing I impose her.

Pet. She to do it ?

Mont. Or, if she fail me in my first demand,
I to abjure her ever.

Pet. I am she,
That beg to be imploy'd so : name a danger,
Whose very face would fright all womanhood,
And manhood put in trance, nay, whose aspect
Would ague such as should but hear it told ;
But to the sad beholder, prove like those
That gaz'd upon Medusa's snaky locks,
And turn'd them into marble : these and more,
Should you but speak 't, I'd do.

Mont. And swear to this ?

Pet. I vow it by my honour, my best hopes,
And all that I wish gracious : name it then,
For I am in a longing in my soul,
To shew my love's expression.

Mont. You shall then——

Pet. I'll do it, as I am a Virgin :
Lie it within mortality, I'll do it.

Mont. You shall——

Pet. I will : that which appears in you
So terrible to speak, I'll joy to act ;
And take pride in performance.

Mont. Then you shall——

Pet. What, soldier, what ?

Mont. — love noble Valladaura ;
And at his soonest appointment marry him.

Pet. Then I am lost.——

Miracle of Beauty.

I remember *,

There lived a Spanish Princess of our name,
An Isabella too, and not long since,
Who from her palace windows stedfastly
Gazing upon the Sun, her hair took fire.
Some augurs held it as a prodigy :
I rather think she was Latona's brood,
And that Apollo courted her bright hair ;
Else, envying that her tresses put down his,
He scorcht them off in envy : nor dare I
(From her deriv'd) expose me to his beams ;
Lest, as he burns the Phœnix in her nest,
Made of the sweetest aromatic wood,
Either in love, or envy, he agree
To use the like combustion upon me.

* A proud Spanish Princess relates this.

THE ROYAL KING AND THE LOYAL SUBJECT. BY THOMAS HEYWOOD.Noble Traitor.

A Persian History

I read of late, how the great Sophy once
 Flying a noble Falcon at the Herne,
 In comes by chance an Eagle sousing by:
 Which when the Hawk espies, leaves her first game,
 And boldly ventures on the King of Birds;
 Long tugg'd they in the air, till at the length
 The Falcon (better breath'd) seiz'd on the Eagle,
 And struck it dead. The Barons prais'd the Bird,
 And for her courage she was peerless held.
 The Emperor, after some deliberate thoughts,
 Made her no less; he caus'd a crown of gold
 To be new fram'd, and fitted to her head,
 In honour of her courage: then the Bird,
 With great applause, was to the market place
 In triumph borne; where, when her utmost worth
 Had been proclaim'd, the common executioner
 First by the King's command took off her crown,
 And after with a sword struck off her head,
 As one no better than a noble Traitor
 Unto the King of Birds.

A WOMAN KILL'D WITH KINDNESS: A TRAGEDY.
BY THOMAS HEYWOOD.

Mr. Frankford discovers that his Wife has been unfaithful to him.

Mrs. Fra. O by what words, what title, or what name
Shall I entreat your pardon? Pardon! oh!
I am as far from hoping such sweet grace,
As Lucifer from heaven. To call you husband!
(O me most wretched!) I have lost that name,
I am no more your wife.

Fran. Spare thou thy tears, for I will weep for thee,
And keep thy countenance, for I'll blush for thee.
Now, I protest, I think, 'tis I am tainted,
For I am most asham'd; and 'tis more hard
For me to look upon thy guilty face,
Than on the sun's clear brow: what wouldst thou speak?

Mrs. Fra. I would I had no tongue, no ears, no eyes,
No apprehension, no capacity.
When do you spurn me like a dog? when tread me
Under feet? when drag me by the hair?
Tho' I deserve a thousand thousand fold
More than you can inflict: yet, once my husband,
For womanhood, to which I am a shame,
Though once an ornament; even for his sake
That hath redeem'd our souls, mark not my face,
Nor hack me with your sword: but let me go
Perfect and undeformed to my tomb.
I am not worthy that I should prevail
In the least suit; no, not to speak to you,
Nor look on you, nor to be in your presence:
Yet as an abject this one suit I crave,
This granted, I am ready for my grave.

Fran. My God, with patience arm me ! rise, nay rise,
And I'll debate with thee. Was it for want
Thou plaid'st the strumpet ? Was't thou not supply'd
With every pleasure, fashion, and new toy ;
Nay even beyond my calling ?

Mrs. Fra. I was.

Fran. Was it then disability in me ?
Or in thine eye seem'd he a properer man ?

Mrs. Fra. O no.

Fran. Did not I lodge thee in my bosom ?
Wear thee in my heart ?

Mrs. Fra. You did.

Fran. I did indeed, witness my tears I did.
Go bring my infants hither. O Nan, O Nan ;
If neither fear of shame, regard of honour,
The blemish of my house, nor my dear love,
Could have with-held thee from so leud a fact,
Yet for these infants, these young harmless souls,
On whose white brows thy shame is character'd,
And grows in greatness as they wax in years ;
Look but on them, and melt away in tears.
Away with them ; lest as her spotted body
Hath stain'd their names with stripe of bastardy,
So her adulterous breath may blast their spirits
With her infectious thoughts. Away with them.

Mrs. Fra. In this one life I die ten thousand deaths.

Fran. Stand up, stand up, I will do nothing rashly.
I will retire awhile into my study,
And thou shalt hear thy sentence presently. [Exit.

He returns with CRANWELL his friend. She falls on her knees.

Fran. My words are register'd in heaven already.
With patience hear me. I'll not martyr thee,
Nor mark thee for a strumpet ; but with usage

Of more humility torment thy soul,
And kill thee even with kindness.

Cran. Mr. Frankford.

Fran. Good mr. Cranwel.—Woman; hear thy judgment;

Go make thee ready in thy best attire;
Take with thee all thy gowns, all thy apparel:
Leave nothing that did ever call thee mistress,
Or by whose sight, being left here in the house,
I may remember such a woman was.
Chuse thee a bed and hangings for thy chamber;
Take with thee every thing which hath thy mark,
And get thee to my manor seven miles off;
Where live; 'tis thine, I freely give it thee,
My tenants by shall furnish thee with wains
To carry all thy stuff within two hours;
No longer will I limit thee my sight.
Chuse which of all my servants thou lik'st best,
And they are thine to attend thee.

Mrs. Fra. A mild sentence.

Fran. But as thou hop'st for heaven, as thou believ'st
Thy name's recorded in the book of life,
I charge thee never after this sad day
To see me or to meet me; or to send
By word, or writing, gift, or otherwise,
To move me, by thyself, or by thy friends;
Nor challenge any part in my two children.
So farewell, Nan; for we will henceforth be
As we had never seen, ne'er more shall see.

Mrs. Fra. How full my heart is, in mine eyes appears;
What wants in words, I will supply in tears.

Fran. Come, take your coach, your stuff; all must along:

Servants and all make ready, all be gone.
It was thy hand cut two hearts out of one.

CRANWEL, FRANKFORD, and NICHOLAS, a Servant.

Cran. Why do you search each room about your house,
Now that you have dispatch'd your wife away?

Fran. O sir, to see that nothing may be left
That ever was my wife's: I lov'd her dearly,
And when I do but think of her unkindness,
My thoughts are all in hell; to avoid which torment,
I would not have a bodkin nor a cuff,
A bracelet, necklace, or rebato wire,
Nor any thing that ever was call'd her's,
Left me, by which I might remember her.
Seek round about.

Nic. Here's her lute flung in a corner.

Fran. Her lute? Oh God! upon this instrument
Her fingers have ran quick division,
Swifter than that which now divides our hearts.
These frets have made me pleasant, that have now,
Frets of my heart-strings made. O master Cranwel,
Oft hath she made this melancholy wood
(Now mute and dumb for her disastrous chance)
Speak sweetly many a note, sound many a strain
To her own ravishing voice, which being well strung,
What pleasant strange airs have they jointly rung!
Post with it after her; now nothing's left;
Of her and her's I am at once bereft.

NICHOLAS overtakes Mrs. FRANKFORD on her journey, and delivers the Lute.

Mrs. Fra. I know the lute; oft have I sung to thee:
We both are out of tune, both out of time.

Nic. My master commends him unto ye;
There's all he can find that was ever yours.
He prays you to forget him, and so he bids you farewell.

Mrs. Fra. I thank him, he is kind, and ever was.
All you that have true feeling of my grief,
That know my loss, and have relenting hearts,
Gird me about ; and help me with your tears
To wash my spotted sins : my lute shall groan ;
It cannot weep, but shall lament my moan.
If you return unto your master, say,
(Tho' not from me, for I am unworthy
To blast his name so with a strumpet's tongue)
That you have seen me weep, wish myself dead.
Nay you may say too (for my vow is past)
Last night you saw me eat and drink my last.
This to your master you may say and swear :
For it is writ in heaven, and decreed here.
Go break this lute on my coach's wheel,
As the last music that I e'er shall make ;
Not as my husband's gift, but my farewell
To all earth's joy ; and so your master tell.

Nic. I'll do your commendations.

Mrs. Fra. O no :

I dare not so presume ; nor to my children :
I am disclaim'd in both, alas, I am.
O never teach them, when they come to speak,
To name the name of mother ; chide their tongue
If they by chance light on that hated word ;
Tell them 'tis naught, for when that word they name
(Poor pretty souls) they harp on their own shame.
So, now unto my coach, then to my home,
So to my death-bed ; for from this sad hour,
I never will nor eat, nor drink, nor taste
Of any cates that may preserve my life :
I never will nor smile, nor sleep, nor rest.
But when my tears have wash'd my black soul white,
Sweet Saviour to thy hands I yield my sprite.

Mrs. FRANKFORD (dying). Sir FRANCIS ACTON,
(her brother). Sir CHARLES MOUNTFORD. Mr.
MALBY, and other of her husband's friends.

Mal. How fare you, mrs. Frankford?

Mrs. Fra. Sick, sick, o sick: give me some air. I pray

Tell me, oh tell me, where is mr. Frankford.

Will he not deign to see me e'er I die?

Mal. Yes, mrs. Frankford: divers gentlemen
Your loving neighbours, with that just request
Have mov'd and told him of your weak estate:
Who, tho' with much ado to get belief,
Examining of the general circumstance,
Seeing your sorrow and your penitence,
And hearing therewithal the great desire
You have to see him ere you left the world,
He gave to us his faith to follow us;
And sure he will be here immediately.

Mrs. Fra. You have half reviv'd me with the pleasing news:

Raise me a little higher in my bed.

Blush I not, brother Acton? blush I not, sir Charles?

Can you not read my fault writ in my cheek?

Is not my crime there? tell me, gentlemen.

Char. Alas! good mistress, sickness hath not left you
Blood in your face enough to make you blush.

Mrs. Fra. Then sickness like a friend my fault would hide.

Is my husband come? my soul but tarries

His arrival, then I am fit for heaven.

Acton. I came to chide you, but my words of hate
Are turn'd to pity and compassionate grief.

I came to rate you, but my brawls, you see,
Melt into tears, and I must weep by thee.
Here's mr. Frankford now.

Mr. FRANKFORD enters.

Fran. Good-morrow, brother ; morrow, gentlemen :
God, that hath laid this cross upon our heads,
Might (had he pleas'd) have made our cause of meeting
On a more fair and more contented ground :
But he that made us, made us to this woe.

Mrs. Fra. And is he come ? methinks that voice I know.

Fran. How do you, woman ?

Mrs. Fra. Well, mr. Frankford, well ; but shall be better

I hope within this hour. Will you vouchsafe
(Out of your grace, and your humanity)
To take a spotted strumpet by the hand ?

Fran. This hand once held my heart in faster bonds
Than now 'tis grip'd by me. God pardon them
That made us first break hold.

Mrs. Fra. Amen, amen.

Out of my zeal to heaven, whither I'm now bound,
I was so impudent to wish you here ;

And once more beg your pardon. Oh ! good man,
And father to my children, pardon me.

Pardon, O pardon me : my fault so heinous is,
That if you in this world forgive it not,
Heaven will not clear it in the world to come.

Faintness hath so usurp'd upon my knees
That kneel I cannot : but on my heart's knees
My prostrate soul lies thrown down at your feet
To beg your gracious pardon. Pardon, O pardon me !

Fran. As freely from the low depth of my soul
As my Redeemer hath for us given his death,

I pardon thee ; I will shed tears for thee ;
Pray with thee :

And, in mere pity of thy weak estate,
I'll wish to die with thee.

All. So do we all.

Fran. Even as I hope for pardon at that day,
When the great judge of heaven in scarlet sits,
So be thou pardon'd. Tho' thy rash offence
Divorc'd our bodies, thy repentant tears
Unite our souls.

Char. Then comfort, mistress Frankford ;
You see your husband hath forgiven your fall ;
Then rouse your spirits, and cheer your fainting soul.

Susan. How is it with you ?

Acton. How d'ye feel yourself ?

Mrs. Fra. Not of this world.

Fran. I see you are not, and I weep to see it.
My wife, the mother to my pretty babes ;
Both those lost names I do restore thee back,
And with this kiss I wed thee once again :
Tho' thou art wounded in thy honour'd name,
And with that grief upon thy death bed liest ;
Honest in heart, upon my soul, thou diest.

Mrs. Fra. Pardon'd on earth, soul, thou in heaven art free

Once more. Thy wife dies thus embracing thee.

[Heywood is a sort of prose Shakspeare. His scenes are to the full as natural and affecting. But we miss the Poet, that which in Shakspeare always appears out and above the surface of the nature. Heywood's characters, his Country Gentlemen, &c. are exactly what we see (but of the best kind of what we see) in life. Shakspeare makes us believe, while we are among his lovely creations, that they are nothing but what we are familiar with, as in dreams new things seem old : but we awake, and sigh for the difference.]

THE ENGLISH TRAVELLER. BY THOMAS HEYWOOD.

Young Geraldine comes home from his Travels, and finds his Playfellow, that should have been his Wife, married to old Wincott. The old Gentleman receives him hospitably, as a Friend of his Father's ; takes delight to hear him tell of his Travels, and treats him in all respects like a second Father ; his House being always open to him. Young Geraldine and the Wife agree not to wrong the old Gentleman.

WIFE. GERALDINE.

Ger. We now are left alone.

Wife. Why, say we be ; who should be jealous of us ?
 This is not first of many hundred nights,
 That we two have been private, from the first
 Of our acquaintance ; when our tongues but clipt
 Our mother's tongue, and could not speak it plain,
 We knew each other : as in stature, so
 Increast our sweet society. Since your travel,
 And my late marriage, through my husband's love,
 Mid-night has been as mid-day, and my bed-chamber
 As free to you, as your own father's house,
 And you as welcome to it.

Ger. I must confess,
 It is in you, your noble courtesy ;
 In him, a more than common confidence,
 And, in his age, can scarce find precedent.

Wife. Most true : it is withal an argument,
 That both our virtues are so deep imprest
 In his good thoughts, he knows we cannot err.

Ger. A villain were he, to deceive such trust,
 Or (were there one) a much worse character.

Wife. And she no less, whom either beauty, youth,
Time, place, or opportunity could tempt
To injure such a husband.

Ger. You deserve,
Even for his sake, to be for ever young ;
And he, for yours, to have his youth renew'd :
So mutual is your true conjugal love.
Yet had the fates so pleas'd—

Wife. I know your meaning.
It was once voic'd, that we two should have matcht ;
The world so thought and many tongues so spake ;
But heaven hath now dispos'd us other ways :
And being as it is (a thing in me
Which I protest was never wisht nor sought)
Now done, I not repent it.

Ger. In those times
Of all the treasures of my hopes and love
You were th' Exchequer, they were stored in you ;
And had not my unfortunate Travel crost them,
They had been here reserv'd still.

Wife. Troth they had,
I should have been your trusty Treasurer.

Ger. However, let us love still, I entreat ;
That, neighbourhood and breeding will allow ;
So much, the laws divine and human both
Twixt brother and a sister will approve :
Heaven then forbid that they should limit us
Wish well to one another.

Wife. If they should not,
We might proclaim they were not charitable,
Which were a deadly sin but to conceive.

Ger. Will you resolve me one thing ?

Wife. As to one,
That in my bosom hath a second place,
Next my dear husband.

Ger. That's the thing I crave,
And only that ; to have a place next him.

Wife. Presume on that already, but perhaps
You mean to stretch it further.

Ger. Only thus far :
Your husband's old ; to whom my soul does wish
A Nestor's age, so much he merits from me ;
Yet if (as proof and nature daily teach,
Men cannot always live, especially
Such as are old and crazed ;) he be called hence,
Fairly, in full maturity of time,
And we two be reserv'd to after life ;
Will you confer your widow-hood on me ?

Wife. You ask the thing I was about to beg ;
Your tongue hath spoke mine own thoughts.

Ger. 'Tis enough, that word
Alone instates me happy : now, so please you,
We will divide ; you to your private chamber,
I to find out my friend.

Wife. You are now my brother ;
But then, my second husband.

[They part.

Young Geraldine absents himself from the House of Mr. Wincott longer than is usual to him. The old Gentleman sends for him, to find out the reason.—He pleads his Father's commands.

WINCOTT. GERALDINE.

Ger. With due acknowledgment
Of all your more than many courtesies :
You have been my second father, and your wife
My noble and chaste mistress ; all your servants
At my command ; and this your bounteous table
As free and common as my father's house :
Neither 'gainst any or the least of these
Can I commence just quarrel.

Win. What might then be
The cause of this constraint, in thus absenting
Yourself from such as love you?

Ger. Out of many,
I will propose some few : the care I have
Of your (as yet unblemished) renown ;
The untoucht honour of your virtuous wife ;
And (which I value least, yet dearly too)
My own fair reputation.

Win. How can these
In any way be question'd?

Ger. Oh, dear sir,
Bad tongues have been too busy with us all ;
Of which I never yet had time to think,
But with sad thoughts and griefs unspeakable.
It hath been whisper'd by some wicked ones,
But loudly thunder'd in my father's ears,
By some that have malign'd our happiness ;
(Heaven, if it can brook slander, pardon them)
That this my customary coming hither,
Hath been to base and sordid purposes ;
To wrong your bed, injure her chastity,
And be mine own undoer : which, how false—

Win. As heaven is true, I know it—

Ger. Now this calumny
Arriving first unto my father's ears,
His easy nature was induced to think
That these things might perhaps be possible :
I answer'd him, as I would do to heaven,
And clear'd myself in his suspicious thoughts
As truly, as the high all-knowing judge
Shall of these stains acquit me ; which are merely Aspersions and untruths. The good old man
Possess with my sincerity, and yet careful
Of your renown, her honour, and my fame,

To stop the worst that scandal could inflict,
And to prevent false rumours, charges me,
The cause remov'd, to take away the effect ;
Which only could be, to forbear your house :
And this upon his blessing. You hear all.

Win. And I of all acquit you : this your absence,
With which my love most cavill'd, orators
In your behalf. Had such things pass'd betwixt you,
Not threats nor chidings could have driv'n you hence ;
It pleads in your behalf, and speaks in her's ;
And arms me with a double confidence
Both of your friendship and her loyalty.
I am happy in you both, and only doubtful
Which of you two doth most impart my love.
You shall not hence to-night.

Ger. Pray, pardon, sir.

Win. You are in your lodging.

Ger. But my father's charge.

Win. My conjuration shall dispense with that ;
You may be up as early as you please,
But hence to-night you shall not.

Ger. You are powerful.

Travellers' Stories.

Sir, my husband
Hath took much pleasure in your strange discourse
About Jerusalem and the Holy Land ;
How the new city differs from the old ;
What ruins of the Temple yet remain ;
And whether Sion, and those hills about,
With these adjacent towns and villages,
Keep that proportion'd distance as we read :
And then in Rome, of that great Pyramis
Rear'd in the front, on four lions mounted ;
How many of those Idol temples stand,

First dedicated to their heathen gods,
Which ruin'd, which to better use repair'd ;
Of their Pantheon, and their Capitol ;
What structures are demolish'd, what remain.
—— And what more pleasure to an old man's ear,
That never drew save his own country's air,
Than hear such things related ?

Shipwreck by Drink.

This Gentleman and I
Past but just now by your next neighbour's house,
Where, as they say, dwells one young Lionel,
An unthrift youth : his father now at sea.
—— There this night
Was a great feast.
In the height of their carousing, all their brains
Warm'd with the heat of wine, discourse was offer'd
Of ships and storms at sea : when suddenly,
Out of his giddy wildness, one conceives
The room wherein they quaff'd to be a Pinnacle,
Moving and floating, and the confus'd noise
To be the murmuring winds, gusts, mariners ;
That their unsteadfast footing did proceed
From rocking of the vessel : This conceiv'd,
Each one begins to apprehend the danger,
And to look out for safety. Fly, saith one,
Up to the main top, and discover. He
Climbs up the bed-post to the tester there,
Reports a turbulent sea and tempest towards ;
And wills them, if they'll save their ship and lives,
To cast their lading over-board. At this
All fall to work, and hoist into the street,
As to the sea, what next came to their hand,
Stools, tables, tressels, trenchers, bed-steds, cups,
Pots, plate, and glasses. Here a fellow whistles ;

They take him for the boatswain : one lies struggling
 Upon the floor, as if he swum for life :
 A third takes the base-viol for the cock-boat,
 Sits in the belly on't, labours, and rows ;
 His oar, the stick with which the fidler plaid :
 A fourth bestrides his fellow, thinking to scape
 (As did Arion) on the dolphin's back,
 Still fumbling on a gittern.—The rude multitude,
 Watching without, and gaping for the spoil
 Cast from the windows, went by th' ears about it ;
 The Constable is call'd to atone the broil ;
 Which done, and hearing such a noise within
 Of eminent ship-wreck, enters th' house, and finds them
 In this confusion : they adore his Staff,
 And think it Neptune's Trident ; and that he Comes with his Tritons (so they call'd his watch)
 To calm the tempest and appease the waves :
 And at this point we left them.

[This piece of pleasant exaggeration (which, for its life and humour might have been told, or acted, by Petruchio himself) gave rise to the title of Cowley's Latin Play, Naufragium Joculare, and furnished the idea of the best scene in it.—Heywood's Preface to this Play is interesting, as it shows the heroic indifference about posterity, which some of these great writers seem to have felt. There is a magnanimity in Authorship as in everything else.

“ If Reader thou hast of this play been an Auditor, there is less apology to be used by intreating thy patience. This Tragic-comedy (being one reserved amongst 220 in which I had either an entire hand, or at the least a main finger) coming accidentally to the press, and I having intelligence thereof, thought it not fit that it should pass as filius populi, a Bastard without a father to acknowledge it : true it is that my plays are not exposed to the world in volumes, to bear the title of works (as others*) : one reason is, that many of them by shifting and change of companies, have been negligently lost. Others of them are still retained in the hands of some actors, who think it against their peculiar profit to have them come in print, and a third that it never was any great ambition in me to be in this kind voluminously read. All that I have further to say at this time is only this: censure I entreat as favourably as it is exposed to thy view freely.

* He seems to glance at Ben Jonson.

“ Ever

“ Studious of thy Pleasure and Profit

“ TH. HEYWOOD.”

Of the 220 pieces which he here speaks of having been concerned in, only 25, as enumerated by Dodsley, have come down to us, for the reasons assigned in the preface. The rest have perished, exposed to the casualties of a theatre. Heywood's ambition seems to have been confined to the pleasure of hearing the Players speak his lines while he lived. It does not appear that he ever contemplated the possibility of being read by after ages. What a slender pittance of fame was motive sufficient to the production of such Plays as the English Traveller, the Challenge for Beauty, and the Woman Killed with Kindness! Posterity is bound to take care that a Writer loses nothing by such a noble modesty.]

THE LATE LANCASHIRE WITCHES: A COMEDY. BY THOMAS HEYWOOD, AND RICHARD BROOME.

Mr. Generous by taking off a Bridle from a seeming Horse in his Stable, discovers it to be his Wife, who has transformed herself by Magical Practices, and is a Witch.

MR. GENEROUS. WIFE. ROBIN, a groom.

Gen. My blood is turn'd to ice, and all my vitals
Have ceas'd their working. Dull stupidity
Surpriseth me at once, and hath arrested
That vigorous agitation, which till now
Exprest a life within me. I, methinks,
Am a meer marble statue, and no man.

Unweave my age, O time, to my first thread ;
Let me lose fifty years, in ignorance spent ;
That, being made an infant once again,
I may begin to know. What, or where am I,
To be thus lost in wonder ?

Wife. Sir.

Gen. Amazement still pursues me, how am I chang'd,
Or brought ere I can understand myself
Into this new world !

Rob. You will believe no witches ?

Gen. This makes me believe all, aye, any thing ;
And that myself am nothing. Prithee, Robin,
Lay me to myself open ; what art thou,
Or this new transform'd creature ?

Rob. I am Robin ;
And this your wife, my mistress.

Gen. Teil me, the earth
Shall leave its seat, and mount to kiss the moon ;
Or that the moon, enamour'd of the earth,
Shall leave her sphere, to stoop to us thus low.
What, what's this in my hand, that at an instant
Can from a four-legg'd creature make a thing
So like a wife ?

Rob. A bridle ; a jugling bridle, Sir.

Gen. A bridle ! Hence, enchantment.
A viper were more safe within my hand,
Than this charm'd engine.—
A witch ! my wife a witch !
The more I strive to unwind
Myself from this meander, I the more
Therein am intricated. Prithee, woman,
Art thou a witch ?

Wife. It cannot be denied,
I am such a curst creature.

Gen. Keep aloof :

And do not come too near me. O my trust;
Have I, since first I understood myself,
Been of my soul so chary, still to study
What best was for its health, to renounce all
The works of that black fiend with my best force;
And hath that serpent twined me so about,
That I must lie so often and so long
With a devil in my bosom?

Wife. Pardon, Sir. [She looks down.]

Gen. Pardon! can such a thing as that be hoped?
Lift up thine eyes, lost woman, to yon hills;
It must be thence expected: look not down
Unto that horrid dwelling; which thou hast sought
At such dear rate to purchase. Prithee tell me,
(For now I can believe) art thou a witch?

Wife. I am.

Gen. With that word I am thunderstruck,
And know not what to answer; yet resolve me,
Hast thou made any contract with that fiend,
The enemy of mankind.

Wife. O I have.

Gen. What? and how far?

Wife. I have promis'd him my soul.

Gen. Ten thousand times better thy body had
Been promis'd to the stake; aye, and mine too,
To have suffer'd with thee in a hedge of flames,
Than such a compact ever had been made. Oh ——
Resolve me, how far doth that contract stretch?

Wife. What interest in this Soul myself could claim,
I freely gave him; but his part that made it
I still reserve, not being mine to give.

Gen. O cunning devil: foolish woman, know,
Where he can claim but the least little part,
He will usurp the whole. Thou'rt a lost woman.

Wife. I hope, not so.

Gen. Why, hast thou any hope?

Wife. Yes, sir, I have.

Gen. Make it appear to me.

Wife. I hope I never bargain'd for that fire,
Further than penitent tears have power to quench.

Gen. I would see some of them.

Wife. You behold them now

(If you look on me with charitable eyes)
Tinctur'd in blood, blood issuing from the heart.
Sir, I am sorry; when I look towards heaven,
I beg a gracious pardon; when on you,
Methinks your native goodness should not be Less pitiful than they: 'gainst both I have err'd;
From both I beg atonement.

Gen. May I presume 't?

Wife. I kneel to both your mercies.

Gen. Knowest thou what
A witch is?

Wife. Alas, none better;
Or after mature recollection can be
More sad to think on't.

Gen. Tell me, are those tears
As full of true-hearted penitence,
As mine of sorrow to behold what state,
What desperate state, thou r't faln in?

Wife. Sir, they are.

Gen. Rise; and, as I do you, so heaven pardon me;
We all offend, but from such falling off
Defend us! Well, I do remember, wife,
When I first took thee, 'twas for good and bad:
O change thy bad to good, that I may keep thee
(As then we past our faiths) 'till Death us sever.
O woman, thou hast need to weep thyself
Into a fountain, such a penitent spring

As may have power to quench invisible flames ;
In which my eyes shall aid : too little, all*.

Frank Hospitality,

Gentlemen, welcome ; 'tis a word I use ;
From me expect no further compliment ;
Nor do I name it often at one meeting ;
Once spoke, to those that understand me best,
And know I always purpose as I speak,
Hath ever yet sufficed : so let it you.
Nor do I love that common phrase of guests,
As, we make bold, or, we are troublesome,
We take you unprovided, and the like ;
I know you understanding Gentlemen,
And knowing me, cannot persuade yourselves
With me you shall be troublesome or bold.—
Nor shall you find
Being set to meat, that I'll excuse your fare,
Or say, I am sorry it falls out so poor,
And, had I known your coming, we'd have had
Such things and such ; nor blame my Cook, to say
This dish or that hath not been sauc't with care :
Words fitting best a common hostess' mouth,
When there's perhaps some just cause of dislike ;
But not the table of a Gentleman.

* Compare this with a story in the Arabian Nights, where a man discovers his wife to be a goul.

A FAIR QUARREL: A COMEDY. BY THOMAS MIDDLETON
AND WILLIAM ROWLEY.

Captain Ager in a dispute with a Colonel his friend, receives from the Colonel the appellation of Son of a Whore. A challenge is given and accepted: but the Captain, before he goes to the field, is willing to be confirmed of his mother's honor from her own lips. Lady Ager, being questioned by her Son, to prevent a duel, falsely slanders herself of unchastity. The Captain, thinking that he has a bad cause, refuses to fight. But being reproached by the Colonel with cowardice, he esteems that he has now a sufficient cause for a quarrel, in the vindicating of his honor from that aspersion; and draws, and disarms his opponent.

LADY. CAPTAIN, her Son.

La. Where left you your dear friend the Colonel?

Cap. Oh the dear Colonel, I should meet him soon.

La. Oh fail him not then, he's a Gentleman

The fame and reputation of your time

Is much engag'd to.

Cap. Yes, and you knew all, mother.

La. I thought I'd known so much of his fair goodness,
More could not have been look'd for.

Cap. O yes, yes, Madam:
And this his last exceeded all the rest.

La. For gratitude's sake let me know this I prithee.

Cap. Then thus; and I desire your censure freely,
Whether it appear'd not a strange noble kindness in him.

La. Trust me, I long to hear't.

Cap. You know he's hasty;
That by the way.

La. So are the best conditions:
Your father was the like.

Cap. I begin now
To doubt me more : why am not I so too then ?
Blood follows blood through forty generations ;
And I've a slow-pac'd wrath : a shrewd dilemma.—
(aside.)

La. Well, as you were saying, Sir.

Cap. Marry, thus, good Madam.
There was in company a foul-mouth'd villain ——
Stay, stay, ——
Who should I liken him to that you have seen ?
He comes so near one that I would not match him with,
Faith, just o' the Colonel's pitch : he's ne'er the worse
man ;

Usurers have been compar'd to magistrates,
Extortioners to lawyers, and the like,
But they all prove ne'er the worse men for that.

La. That's bad enough, they need not.

Cap. This rude fellow,
A shame to all humanity and manners,
Breathes from the rottenness of his gall and malice,
The foulest stain that ever man's fame blemish'd,
Part of which fell upon your honor, madam,
Which heighten'd my affliction.

La. Mine, my honor, Sir ?

Cap. The Colonel soon enrag'd (as he's all touchwood)
Takes fire before me, makes the quarrel his,
Appoints the field ; my wrath could not be heard,
His was so high pitcht, so gloriously mounted.
Now what's the friendly fear that fights within me,
Should his brave noble fury undertake
A cause that were unjust in our defence,
And so to lose him everlastingly,
In that dark depth where all bad quarrels sink
Never to rise again, what pity 'twere,
First to die here, and never to die there !

La. Why what's the quarrel, speak, Sir, that should rise
Such fearful doubt, my honor bearing part on't?
The words, whate'er they were ——

Cap. Son of a whore.

La. Thou liest:

And were my love ten thousand times more to thee,
Which is as much now as e'er mother's was,
So thou shouldst feel my anger. Dost thou call
That quarrel doubtful? where are all my merits?

[Strikes him.]

Not one stand up to tell this man his error?
Thou might'st as well call the Sun's truth in question,
As thy birth or my honor.

Cap. Now blessings crown you for 't;
It is the joyfull'st blow that e'er flesh felt.

La. Nay, stay, stay, Sir; thou art not left so soon:
This is no question to be slighted off,
And at your pleasure closed up fair again,
As though you'd never touch'd it, no; honor doubted,
Is honor deeply wounded; and it rages
More than a common smart, being of thy making.
For thee to fear my truth it kills my comfort.
Where should fame seek for her reward, when he
That is her own by the great tye of blood
Is farthest off in bounty: O poor Goodness,
That only pay'st thyself with thy own works;
For nothing else looks towards thee. Tell me, pray,
Which of my loving cares dost thou requite
With this vile thought? which of my prayers or wishes?
Many thou ow'st me for. This seven year hast thou known me

A widow, only married to my vow;
That's no small witness of my faith and love
To him that in life was thy honour'd father:
And live I now to know that good mistrusted?

Cap. No, it shall appear that my belief is chearful !
For never was a mother's reputation
Noblier defended ; 'tis my joy and pride
I have a firmness to bestow upon it.

La. What's that you said, Sir ?

Cap. 'Twere too bold and soon yet !
To crave forgiveness of you. I will earn it first.
Dead or alive I know I shall enjoy it.

La. What's all this, Sir ?

Cap. My joy's beyond expression :
I do but think how wretched I had been,
Were this another's quarrel and not mine.

La. Why, is it your's ?

Cap. Mine ? think me not so miserable,
Not to be mine : then were I worse than abject,
More to be loath'd than vileness, or sin's dunghill :
Nor did I fear your goodness, faithful Madam,
But came with greedy joy to be confirm'd in 't,
To give the nobler onset : then shines valour,
And admiration from her fix'd sphere draws,
When it comes burnish'd with a righteous cause ;
Without which I'm ten fathoms under coward,
That now am ten degrees above a man.
Which is but one of virtue's easiest wonders.

La. But pray stay ; all this while I understood you
The Colonel was the man.

Cap. Yes, he's the man,
The man of injury, reproach, and slander,
Which I must turn into his soul again.

La. The Colonel do 't ! that's strange.

Cap. The villain did it :
That's not so strange. Your blessing, and your leave ——

La. Come, come, you shall not go.

Cap. Not go ? were death
Sent now to summon me to my eternity,

I'd put him off an hour: why, the whole world
Has not chains strong enough to bind me from it:
The strongest is my Reverence for you,
Which if you force upon me in this case,
I must be forced to break it.

La. Stay, I say.

Cap. In any thing command me but in this, Madam.

La. 'Las, I shall lose him. You will hear me first?

Cap. At my return I will.

La. You'll never hear me more then.

Cap. How!

La. Come back, I say!

You may well think there's cause, I call so often.

Cap. Ha! cause? what cause?

La. So much, you must not go.

Cap. Must not? why?

La. I know a reason for 't;

Which I could wish you'd yield to, and not know:
If not, it must come forth. Faith, do not know;
And yet obey my will.

Cap. Why, I desire

To know no other than the cause I have,
Nor should you wish it, if you take your injury;
For one more great I know the world includes not.

La. Yes; one that makes this nothing:—yet be ruled,

And if you understand not, seek no farther.

Cap. I must, for this is nothing.

La. Then take all;

And if amongst it you receive that secret
That will offend you, though you condemn me,
Yet blame yourself a little, for perhaps
I would have made my reputation sound
Upon another's hazard with less pity;
But upon yours I dare not.

Cap. How ?

La. I dare not :

'Twas your own seeking, this.

Cap. If you mean evilly,
I cannot understand you, nor for all the riches
This life has, would I.

La. Would you never might !

Cap. Why, your goodness, that I joy to fight for.

La. In that you neither right your joy nor me.

Cap. What an ill orator has virtue got here !
Why, shall I dare to think it a thing possible,
That you were ever false ?

La. Oh, fearfully ;
As much as you come to.

Cap. Oh silence cover me ;
I've felt a deadlier wound than man can give me.
False ?

La. I was betray'd to a most sinful hour
By a corrupted soul I put in trust once,
A kinswoman.

Cap. Where is she ? let me pay her.

La. Oh dead long since.

Cap. Nay then, she has all her wages.
False ? do not say't ; for honor's goodness do not ;
You never could be so : he I call'd father
Deserv'd you at your best ; when youth and merit
Could boast at highest in you, you'd no grace
Or virtue that he match'd not ; no delight
That you invented, but he sent it crown'd
To your full wishing soul.

La. That heaps my guiltiness.

Cap. O were you so unhappy to be false
Both to yourself and me, but to me chiefly ?
What a day's hope is here lost, and with it
The joys of a just cause ! Had you but thought

On such a noble quarrel, you'd ha' died
 Ere you'd ha' yielded, for the sin's hate first,
 Next for the hate of this hour's cowardice.
 Curst be the heat that lost me such a cause,
 A work that I was made for. Quench, my spirit,
 And out with honor's flaming lights within thee :
 Be dark and dead to all respects of manhood ;
 I never shall have use of valour more.
 Put off your vow for shame : why should you hoard up
 Such justice for a barren widowhood,
 That was so injurious to the faith of wedlock ?
 I should be dead : for all my life's work's ended.
 I dare not fight a stroke now, nor engage [Exit Lady.
 The noble resolution of my friends ;

Enter two Friends of Captain AGER's.

That were more vile. They're here. Kill me, my shame.
 I am not for the fellowship of honor.

1. Friend. Captain, fie, come, Sir : we've been seeking for you

Very late to-day ; this was not wont to be,
 Your enemy's in the field.

Cap. Truth enters chearfully.

2. Friend. Good faith, Sir, you've a royal quarrel on't.

Cap. Yes, in some other country, Spain or Italy,
 It would be held so.

1. Friend. How ! and is't not here so ?

Cap. 'Tis not so contumeliously receiv'd
 In these parts, and you mark it.

1. Friend. Not in these ?

Why prithee what is more, or can be ?

Cap. Yes :

That ordinary Commotioner the lye
 Is father of most quarrels in this climate,
 And held here capital, and you go to that.

2. Friend. But, Sir, I hope you will not go to that,
Or change your own for it ; son of a whore !
Why there's the lye down to posterity ;
The lye to birth, the lye to honesty.
Why would you cozen yourself so and beguile
So brave a cause, Manhood's best master piece ?
Do you ever hope for one so brave again ?

Cap. Consider then the man, the Colonel,
Exactly worthy, absolutely noble,
However spleen and rage abuses him :
And 'tis not well nor manly to pursue
A man's infirmity.

1. Friend. O miracle !
So hopeful valiant and complete a Captain
Possess with a tame devil : come out, thou spoilest
The most improv'd young soldier of seven kingdoms,
Made Captain at nineteen ; which was deserv'd
The year before, but honor comes behind still :
Come out, I say : this was not wont to be,
That spirit ne'er stood in need of provocation,
Nor shall it now. Away, Sir.

Cap. Urge me not.

1. Friend. By Manhood's reverend honor but we must.

Cap. I will not fight a stroke.

1. Friend. O blasphemy
To sacred valour.

Cap. Lead me where you list.

1. Friend. Pardon this traiterous slumber, clog'd with evils :
Give Captains rather wives than such tame devils.

The Field.

Enter Captain AGER, with his two Friends.

Cap. Well, your wills now.

1. Friend. Our wills ? our loves, our duties
To honour'd fortitude : what wills have we
But our desires to nobleness and merit,
Valour's advancement, and the sacred rectitude
Due to a valorous cause ?

Cap. Oh, that's not mine.

2. Friend. War has his Court of Justice, that's the field,
Where all cases of Manhood are determined,
And your case is no mean one.

Cap. True, then 'twere virtuous :
But mine is in extremes, foul and unjust.
Well, now ye've got me hither, ye are as far
To seek in your desire as at first minute :
For by the strength and honor of a vow
I will not lift a finger in this quarrel.

1. Friend. How ! not in this ! be not so rash a sinner.
Why, Sir, do you ever hope to fight again then ?
Take heed on't, you must never look for that.
Why, the universal stock of the World's injury
Will be too poor to find a quarrel for you.
Give up your right and title to desert, Sir ;
If you fail virtue here, she needs you not
All your time after ; let her take this wrong,
And never presume then to serve her more :
Bid farewell to the integrity of Arms,
And let that honourable name of soldier
Fall from you like a shiver'd wreath of laurel,
By thunder struck from a desertless forehead
That wears another's right by usurpation.
Good Captain, do not wilfully cast away
At one hour all the fame your life has won.
This is your native seat. Here you should seek
Most to preserve it ; or if you will doat
So much on life, poor life, which in respect

Of life in honor is but death and darkness,
 That you will prove neglectful of yourself
 (Which is to me too fearful to imagine)
 Yet for that virtuous Lady's cause, your Mother,
 Her reputation, dear to nobleness,
 As grace to penitence ; whose fair memory
 E'en crowns fame in your issue : for that blessedness,
 Give not this ill place, but in spite of hell
 And all her base fears be exactly valiant.

Cap. Oh ! oh ! —

2. Friend. Why, well said ; there's fair hope in that.
 Another such a one.

Cap. Came they in thousands,
 'Tis all against you.

1. Friend. Then poor friendless Merit,
 Heav'n be good to thee, thy Professor leaves thee.

Enter Colonel and his two Friends.

He's come ; do you but draw ; we'll fight it for you.

Cap. I know too much to grant that.

1. Friend. O dead manhood !
 Had ever such a cause so faint a servant ?
 Shame brand me if I do not suffer for him.

Col. I've heard, Sir, you've been guilty of much boasting
 For your brave earliness at such a meeting.
 You've lost the glory of that way this morning :
 I was the first to day.

Cap. So were you ever
 In my respect, Sir.

1. Friend. O most base præludium !

Cap. I never thought on victory our mistress
 With greater reverence than I have your worth,
 Nor ever lov'd her better.
 Success in you has been my absolute joy,

And when I've wish'd content I've wish'd your friendship.

Col. I came not hither, Sir, for an encomium.

I came provided

For storms and tempests, and the foulest season

That ever rage let forth, or blew in wildness

From the incensed prison of man's blood.

Cap. 'Tis otherwise with me : I come with mildness,

Peace, constant amity, and calm forgiveness,

The weather of a Christian and a friend.

1. Friend. Give me a valiant Turk, though not worth tenpence.

Cap. Yet, Sir, the world will judge the injury mine,
Insufferable mine, mine beyond injury,

Thousands have made a less wrong reach to hell,

Aye and rejoic'd in his most endless vengeance

(A miserable triumph though a just one)

But when I call to memory our long friendship,

Methinks it cannot be too great a wrong

That then I should not pardon. Why should Man

For a poor hasty syllable or two

(And vented only in forgetful fury)

Chain all the hopes and riches of his soul

To the revenge of that? die lost for ever?

For he that makes his last peace with his Maker

In anger, anger is his peace eternally :

He must expect the same return again,

Whose venture is deceitful. Must he not, Sir?

Col. I see what I must do, fairly put up again,

For here 'll be nothing done, I perceive that.

Cap. What shall be done in such a worthless business
But to be sorry and to be forgiven?

You, Sir, to bring repentance ; and I pardon.

Col. I bring repentance, Sir?

Cap. If 't be too much

To say, repentance ; call it what you please, Sir

Chuse your own word, I know you're sorry for it,
And that's as good.

Col. I sorry? by fame's honor, I am wrong'd :
Do you seek for peace and draw the quarrel larger?

Cap. Then 'tis I 'm sorry that I thought you so.

1. Friend. A Captain! I could gnaw his title off.

Cap. Nor is it any misbecoming virtue, Sir,
In the best manliness, to repent a wrong :
Which made me bold with you.

1. Friend. I could cuff his head off.

2. Friend. Nay, pish.

Col. So once again take thou thy peaceful rest then ;
[To his Sword.

But as I put thee up, I must proclaim
This Captain here, both to his friends and mine,
That only came to see fair valor righted,
A base submissive Coward : so I leave him.

Cap. Oh, heaven has pitied my excessive patience,
And sent me a Cause : now I have a Cause :

A Coward I was never. — Come you back, Sir.

Col. How!

Cap. You left a Coward here.

Col. Yes, Sir, with you.

Cap. 'Tis such base metal, Sir, 'twill not be taken,
It must home again with you.

2. Friend. Should this be true now —

1. Friend. Impossible! Coward do more than Bastard!

Col. I prithee mock me not, take heed you do not,
For if I draw once more I shall grow terrible,
And rage will force me do what will grieve honor.

Cap. Ha, ha, ha.

Col. He smiles, dare it be he? what think ye, Gentlemen?

Your judgments; shall I not be cozen'd in him?
This cannot be the man; why he was bookish,

Made an invective lately against fighting,
 A thing in truth that mov'd a little with me ;
 Put up a fouler contumely far
 Than thousand Cowards came to, and grew thankful.

Cap. Blessed remembrance in time of need :
 I'd lost my honour else.

2. Friend. Do you note his joy ?

Cap. I never felt a more severe necessity :
 Then came thy excellent pity. Not yet ready !
 Have you such confidence in my just manhood
 That you dare so long trust me, and yet tempt me
 Beyond the toleration of man's virtue ?
 Why, would you be more cruel than your injury ?
 Do you first take pride to wrong me, and then think me
 Not worth your fury ? do not use me so :
 I shall deceive you then : Sir, either draw,
 And that not slightly, but with the care
 Of your best preservation, with that watchfulness
 As you'd defend yourself from circular fire,
 Your sin's rage, or her Lord (this will require it)
 Or you'll be too soon lost : for I've an anger,
 Has gather'd mighty strength against you ; mighty,
 Yet you shall find it honest to the last,
 Noble and fair.

Col. I'll venture it once again,
 And if 't be but as true as it is wondrous,
 I shall have that I come for. Your leave, Gentlemen.

[They fight.]

1. Friend. If he should do't indeed, and deceive us all now —

Stay, by this hand he offers ; fights i'faith ;
 Fights : by this light, he fights, Sir.

2. Friend. So methinks, Sir.

1. Friend. An absolute Punto, ha ?

2. Friend. 'Twas a Passado, Sir.

1. Friend. Why, let it pass, and 'twas ; I'm sure 'twas somewhat.

What's that now ?

2. Friend. That's a Punto.

1. Friend. O go to then,
I knew 'twas not far off : What a world's this !
Is Coward a more stirring meat than Bastard ?
—— ho ! I honor thee :

'Tis right and fair, and he that breathes against it,
He breathes against the justice of a man ;
And man to cut him off, 'tis no injustice.

Thanks, thanks, for this most unexpected nobleness.

(The Colonel is disarmed.)

Cap. Truth never fails her servant, Sir, nor leaves him
With the day's shame upon him.

1. Friend. Thou 'st redeemed
Thy worth to the same height 'twas first esteem'd.

[The insipid levelling morality to which the modern stage is tied down would not admit of such admirable passions as these scenes are filled with. A puritanical obtuseness of sentiment, a stupid infantile goodness, is creeping among us, instead of the vigorous passions, and virtues clad in flesh and blood, with which the old dramatists present us. Those noble and liberal casuists could discern in the differences, the quarrels, the animosities of man, a beauty and truth of moral feeling, no less than in the iterately inculcated duties of forgiveness and atonement. With us all is hypocritical meekness. A reconciliation scene (let the occasion be never so absurd or unnatural) is always sure of applause. Our audiences come to the theatre to be complimented on their goodness. They compare notes with the amiable characters in the play, and find a wonderful similarity of disposition between them. We have a common stock of dramatic morality out of which a writer may be supplied without the trouble of copying it from originals within his own breast. To know the boundaries of honour, to be judiciously valiant, to have a temperance which shall beget a smoothness in the angry swellings of youth, to esteem life as nothing when the sacred reputation of a parent is to be defended, yet to shake and tremble under a pious cowardice when that ark of an honest confidence is found to be frail and tottering, to feel the true blows of a real disgrace blunting that sword which the imaginary strokes of a supposed false imputation had put so keen an edge upon but lately: to do, or to imagine this done in a feigned story, asks something more of a moral sense, somewhat a greater delicacy of perception in questions of right and wrong, than goes to the writing of two or three hackneyed sentences about the laws of honour as opposed to the laws of the land, or a common place against duelling. Yet such things would stand a writer now a days in far better stead than Captain Ager and his conscientious honour; and he would be considered as a far better teacher of morality than old Rowley or Middleton if they were living.]

ALL'S LOST BY LUST: A TRAGEDY. BY WILLIAM ROWLEY.

Roderigo King of Spain, takes the opportunity to violate the Daughter of Julianus, while that old General is fighting his Battles against the Moors. Jacinta seeks her Father in the Camp, at the moment of Victory.

JULIANUS. Servant.

Ser. Sir, here's a Woman (forc'd by some tide of sorrow)

With tears intreats your pity, and to see you.

Jul. If any Soldier has done violence to her,

Beyond our military discipline,

Death shall divide him from us: fetch her in.

I have myself a Daughter, on whose face

But thinking, I must needs be pitiful:

And when I ha' told my conquest to my King,

My poor girl then shall know, how for her sake

I did one pious act:

Servant returns with JACINTA veiled.

Is this the creature?

Serv. Yes, my Lord, and a sad one.

Jul. Leave us. A sad one!

The down-cast look calls up compassion in me,
A corse going to the grave looks not more deadly.
Why kneel'st thou? art thou wrong'd by any Soldier?
Rise: for this honor is not due to me.
Hast not a tongue to read thy sorrows out?
This book I understand not.

Jacin. O my dear father!

Jul. Thy father, who has wrong'd him?

Jacin. A great Commander.

Jul. Under me?

Jacin. Above you.

Jul. Above me! who's above a general?
None but the general of all Spain's armies;
And that's the king, king Roderick: he's all goodness,
He cannot wrong thy father.

Jacin. What was Tarquin?

Jul. A king, and yet a ravisher.

Jacin. Such a sin

Was in those days a monster; now 'tis common.

Jul. Prithee be plain.

Jacin. Have not you, Sir, a daughter?

Jul. If I have not, I am the wretched'st man
That this day lives: for all the wealth I have Lives in that child.

Jacin. O for your daughter's sake then hear my woes.

Jul. Rise then, and speak 'em.

Jacin. No, let me kneel still:

Such a resemblance of a daughter's duty
Will make you mindful of a father's love:

For such my injuries must exact from you,
As you would for your own.

Jul. And so they do ;

For whilst I see thee kneeling, I think of my Jacinta.

Jacin. Say your Jacinta then, chaste as the rose
Coming on sweetly in the springing bud,
And ne'er felt heat, to spread the summer sweet ;
But, to increase and multiply it more,
Did to itself keep in its own perfume ;
Say that some rapine hand had pluck'd the bloom *,
Jacinta, like that flower, and ravish'd her,
Defiling her white lawn of chastity
With ugly blacks of lust : what would you do ?

Jul. O 'tis too hard a question to resolve,
Without a solemn council held within
Of man's best understanding faculties :
There must be love, and fatherhood, and grief,
And rage, and many passions : and they must all
Beget a thing call'd vengeance : but they must sit upon't.

Jacin. Say this were done by him that carried
The fairest seeming face of friendship to yourself.

Jul. We should fall out.

Jacin. Would you in such a case respect degrees ?

Jul. I know not that.

Jacin. Say he were noble.

Jul. Impossible : the act's ignoble. The Bee can breed
No poison, though it suck the juice of hemlock.

Jacin. Say a king should do it ; were the act less done,
By the greater power ? does majesty
Extenuate a crime ?

Jul. Augment it rather.

Jacin. Say then that Roderick, your king and master,

* " Cropt this fair Rose, &c.—Otway.

To quit the honors you are bringing home,
Had ravish'd your Jacinta.

Jul. Who has sent

A Fury in this foul-fair shape to vex me?

I ha' seen that face methinks yet know it not:

How darest thou speak this treason 'gainst my king?

Durst any man in the world bring me this lie,

By this, he had been in hell: Roderick a Tarquin!

Jacin. Yes, and thy daughter (had she done her part)
Should be the second Lucrece. View me well:

I am Jacinta.

Jul. Ha!

Jacin. The king my ravisher.

Jul. The king thy ravisher! oh unkingly sound.
He dares not sure; yet in thy sullied eyes
I read a tragic story.

ANTONIO, ALONZO, and other Officers, enter.

Jul. O noble friends,

Our wars are ended, are they not?

All. They are, Sir.

Jul. But Spain has now begun a civil war,
And to confound me only. See you my daughter?
She sounds the trumpet which draws forth my sword
To be revenged.

Alon. On whom? speak loud your wrongs;
Digest your choler into temperance;
Give your considerate thoughts the upper hand
In your hot passions, 'twill assuage the swelling
Of your big heart: if you have injuries done you,
Revenge them, and we second you.

Jacin. Father, dear father.

Jul. Daughter, dear daughter.

Jacin. Why do you kneel to me, Sir?

Jul. To ask thee pardon that I did beget thee.
 I brought thee to a shame, stains all the way
 'Twixt earth and Acheron : not all the clouds
 (The skies' large canopy) could they drown the seas
 With a perpetual inundation,
 Can wash it ever out : leave me, I pray.

[Falls down.]

Alon. His fighting passions will be o'er anon,
 And all will be at peace.

Ant. Best in my judgment
 We wake him with the sight of his won honors.
 Call up the army, and let them present
 His prisoners to him : such a sight as that
 Will brook no sorrow near it.

Jul. 'Twas a good doctor that prescribed that physic.
 I'll be your patient, Sir ; shew me my soldiers,
 And my new honors won : I will truly weigh them
 With my full griefs, they may perhaps o'ercome.

Alon. Why now there's hopes of his recovery.

Jul. Jacinta welcome, thou art my child still :
 No forced stain of lust can alienate
 Our consanguinity.

Jacin. Dear father,
 Recollect your noble spirits : conquer grief,
 The manly way : you have brave foes subdued,
 Then let no female passions thus o'erwhelm you.

Jul. Mistake me not, my child, I am not mad,
 Nor must be idle ; for it were more fit
 (If I could purchase more) I had more wit,
 To help in these designs : I am grown old :
 Yet I have found more strength within this arm,
 Than (without proof) I durst ha' boasted on.
 Roderick, thou king of monsters, couldst thou do this,
 And for thy lust confine me from the court ?
 There's reason in thy shame, thou shouldst not see me.

Ha ! they come, Jacinta, they come, hark, hark ;
Now thou shalt see what cause I have given my king.

Vanquished Moor's address to the Sun.

Descend thy sphere, thou burning Deity.
Haste from our shame, go blushing to thy bed ;
Thy sons * we are, thou everlasting Ball,
Yet never shamed these our impressive brows
Till now : we that are stamp'd with thine own seal,
Which the whole ocean cannot wash away,
Shall those cold ague cheeks that Nature moulds
Within her winter shop, those smooth white skins,
That with a palsy hand she paints the limbs,
Make us recoil ?

Man's Heart.

I would fain know what kind thing a man's heart is.

—— were you never

At Barber Surgeons' Hall to see a dissection ?

I will report it to you : 'tis a thing framed

With divers corners, and into every corner

A man may entertain a friend : (there came

The proverb, A man may love one well, and yet

Retain a friend in a corner.)——

—— tush, 'tis not

The real heart ; but the unseen faculties.——

—— Those I'll decipher unto you : (for surely

The most part are but ciphers.) The heart indeed

For the most part doth keep a better guest

Than himself in him ; that is, the soul. Now the soul

Being a tree, there are divers branches spreading out of it,

As loving-affection, suffering-sorrows, and the like.

Then, Sir, these affections or sorrows being but branches,

* " Children of the Sun."—Zanga in the Revenge.

Are sometimes lopt off, or of themselves wither ;
 And new shoot in their rooms : as for example ;
 Your friend dies, there appears sorrow, but it quickly
 Withers ; then is that branch gone. Again, you love a friend ;
 There affection springs forth ; at last you distaste ;
 Then that branch withers again, and another buds
 In his room.

A NEW WONDER: A WOMAN NEVER VEXT.
 A COMEDY. BY WM. ROWLEY

The Woman never Vext states her Case to a Divine.

WIDOW. DOCTOR.

Doc. You sent for me, gentlewoman ?

Wid. Sir, I did, and to this end.

I have some scruples in my conscience ;
 Some doubtful problems which I cannot answer,
 Nor reconcile ; I'd have you make them plain.

Doc. This is my duty ; pray speak your mind.

Wid. And as I speak, I must remember heaven
 That gave those blessings which I mnst relate :
 Sir, you now behold a wonderous woman ;
 You only wonder at the epithet ;
 I can approve it good : guess at mine age.

Doc. At the half way 'twixt thirty and forty.

Wid. 'Twas not much amiss ; yet nearest to the last.
 How think you then, is not this a Wonder,
 That a Woman lives full seven and thirty years,
 Maid to a wife, and wife unto a widow,
 Now widow'd, and mine own ; yet all this while,
 From the extremest verge of my remembrance,

Even from my weaning hour unto this minute.
Did never taste what was calamity.
I know not yet what grief is, yet have sought
A hundred ways for his acquaintance : with me
Prosperity hath kept so close a watch,
That even those things that I have meant a cross,
Have that way turn'd a blessing. Is it not strange ?

Doc. Unparallel'd ; this gift is singular,
And to you alone belonging : you are the moon,
For there's but one, all women else are stars,
For there are none of like condition.
Full oft and many have I heard complain
Of discontents, thwarts, and adversities ;
But a second to yourself I never knew,
To groan under the superflux of blessings,
To have ever been alien unto sorrow.
No trip of fate ? sure it is wonderful.

Wid. Aye, Sir, 'tis wonderful, but is it well ?
For it is now my chief affliction.
I have heard you say, that the Child of Heaven
Shall suffer many tribulations ;
Nay kings and princes share them with their subjects :
Then I that know not any chastisement,
How may I know my part of childhood ?

Doc. 'Tis a good doubt ; but make it not extreme.
'Tis some affliction, that you are afflicted
For want of affliction : cherish that :
Yet wrest it not to misconstruction ;
For all your blessings are free gifts from heaven,
Health, wealth, and peace ; nor can they turn into Curses, but by abuse. Pray let me question you :
You lost a husband, was it no grief to you ?

Wid. It was, but very small : no sooner I
Had given it entertainment as a sorrow,
But straight it turn'd unto my treble joy :

A comfortable revelation prompts me then,
That husband (whom in life I held so dear)
Had chang'd a frailty to unchanging joys :
Methought I saw him stellified in heaven,
And singing hallelujahs 'mongst a quire
Of white sainted souls : then again it spake,
And said, it was a sin for me to grieve
At his best good, that I esteemed best :
And thus this slender shadow of a grief
Vanish'd again.

Doc. All this was happy, nor
Can you wrest it from a heavenly blessing. Do not Appoint the rod : leave still the stroke unto
The magistrate : the time is not past, but
You may feel enough.—

Wid. One taste more I had, although but little,
Yet I would aggravate to make the most on't :
'Twas thus : the other day it was my hap,
In crossing of the Thames,
To drop that wedlock ring from off my finger,
That once conjoined me and my dear husband :
It sunk ; I prized it dear ; the dearer, 'cause it kept
Still in mine eye the memory of my loss :
Yet I grieved the loss ; and did joy withal,
That I had found a grief. And this is all
The sorrow I can boast of.

Doc. This is but small.

Wid. Nay sure I am of this opinion,
That had I suffer'd a draught to be made for it,
The bottom would have sent it up again ;
I am so wondrously fortunate.

Foster, a wealthy Merchant, has a profligate Brother, Stephen, whom Robert, Son to Foster, relieves out of Prison with some of his Father's Money entrusted to him. For this, his Father turns him out of doors and disinherits him. Meantime by a reverse of fortune, Stephen becomes rich ; and Foster by Losses in Trade is thrown into the same Prison (Ludgate) from which his Brother had been relieved. Stephen adopts his Nephew, on the condition that he shall not assist or go near his Father : but filial piety prevails, above the consideration either of his Uncle's displeasure, or of his Father's late unkindness ; and he visits his Father in Prison.

FOSTER. ROBERT.

Fos. O torment to my soul, what mak'st thou here ?
Cannot the picture of my misery
Be drawn, and hung out to the eyes of men,
But thou must come to scorn and laugh at it ?

Rob. Dear Sir, I come to thrust my back under your load,
To make the burthen lighter.

Fos. Hence from my sight, dissembling villain, go :
Thine uncle sends defiance to my woe,
And thou must bring it : hence, thou Basilisk,
That kill'st me with thine eyes. Nay, never kneel ;
These scornful mocks more than my woes I feel.

Rob. Alas, I mock ye not, but come in love
And natural duty, Sir, to beg your blessing ;
And for mine uncle ——

Fos. Him and thee I curse.
I'll starve ere I eat bread from his purse,
Or from thy hand : out, villain ; tell that cur,
Thy barking uncle, that I lie not here
Upon my bed of riot, as he did,
Cover'd with all the villainies which man
Had ever woven ; tell him I lie not so ;
It was the hand of heaven struck me thus low,
And I do thank it. Get thee gone, I say,
Or I shall curse thee, strike thee ; prithee away :
Or if thou'lt laugh thy fill at my poor state,
Then stay, and listen to the prison grate,

And hear thy father, an old wretched man,
That yesterday had thousands, beg and cry
To get a penny : Oh, my misery.

Rob. Dear Sir, for pity hear me.

Fos. Upon my curse I charge, no nearer come ;
I'll be no father to so vile a son.

Rob. O my abortive fate,
Why for my good am I thus paid with hate ?
From this sad place of Ludgate here I freed
An uncle, and I lost a father for it ;
Now is my father here, whom if I succour,
I then must lose my uncle's love and favour.
My father once being rich, and uncle poor,
I him relieving was thrust forth of doors,
Baffled, reviled, and disinherited.
Now mine own father here must beg for bread,
Mine uncle being rich ; and yet, if I
Feed him, myself must beg. Oh misery ;
How bitter is thy taste ; yet I will drink
Thy strongest poison ; fret what mischief can,
I'll feed my father ; though like the Pelican,
I peck mine own breast for him.

His Father appears above at the Grate, a Box hanging down.

Fos. Bread, bread, one penny to buy a loaf of bread, for the tender mercy.

Rob. O me my shame ! I know that voice full well ;
I'll help thy wants although thou curse me still.

He stands where he is unseen by his Father.

Fos. Bread, bread, some christian man send back
Your charity to a number of poor prisoners.
One penny for the tender mercy—

[Robert puts in Money.

The hand of heaven reward you, gentle Sir,
Never may you want, never feel misery ;

Let blessings in unnumber'd measure grow,
And fall upon your head, where'er you go.

Rob. O happy comfort : curses to the ground
First struck me : now with blessings I am crown'd*.

Fos. Bread, bread, for the tender mercy, one penny for a loaf of bread.

Rob. I'll buy more blessings : take thou all my store ;
I'll keep no coin and see my father poor.

Fos. Good angels guard you, Sir, my prayers shall be
That heaven may bless you for this charity.

Rob. If he knew me, sure he would not say so :
Yet I have comfort, if by any means
I get a blessing from my father's hands.
How cheap are good prayers ! a poor penny buys
That, by which man up in a minute flies
And mounts to heaven.

Enter STEPHEN.

Oh me, mine uncle sees me.

Step. Now, Sir, what makes you here
So near the prison ?

Rob. I was going, Sir,
To buy meat for a poor bird I have,
That sits so sadly in the cage of late,
I think he'll die for sorrow.

Step. So, Sir :
Your pity will not quit your pains, I fear me.
I shall find that bird (I think) to be that churlish wretch
Your father, that now has taken
Shelter here in Ludgate. Go to, Sir ; urge me not,
You'd best ; I have giv'n you warning : fawn not on him,
Nor come not near him if you'll have my love.

Rob. 'Las, Sir ; that lamb
Were most unnatural that should hate the dam.

* A blessing stolen at least as fairly as Jacob's was.

Step. Lamb me no lambs, Sir.

Rob. Good uncle, 'las, you know, when you lay here, I succour'd you : so let me now help him.

Step. Yes, as he did me ;
To laugh and triumph at my misery.
You freed me with his gold, but 'gainst his will :
For him I might have rotted, and lain still.
So shall he now.

Rob. Alack the day !

Step. If him thou pity, 'tis thine own decay.

Fos. Bread, bread, some charitable man remember the poor

Prisoners, bread for the tender mercy, one penny.

Rob. O listen, uncle, that's my poor father's voice.

Step. There let him howl. Get you gone, and come not near him.

Rob. Oh my soul,
What tortures dost thou feel ! earth ne'er shall find
A son so true, yet forc'd to be unkind.

Robert disobeys his Uncle's Injunctions, and again visits his Father.

FOSTER. WIFE. ROBERT.

Fos. Ha ! what art thou ? Call for the keeper there,
And thrust him out of doors, or lock me up.

Wife. O 'tis your son.

Fos. I know him not.

I am no king, unless of scorn and woe,
Why kneel'st thou then, why dost thou mock me so ?

Rob. O my dear father, hither am I come,
Not like a threatening storm to increase your wrack,
For I would take all sorrows from your back,
To lay them all on my own.

Fos. Rise, mischief, rise ; away, and get thee gone.

Rob. O if I be thus hateful to your eye,
I will depart, and wish I soon may die ;
Yet let your blessing, Sir, but fall on me.

Fos. My heart still hates thee.

Wife. Sweet husband.

Fos. Get you both gone ;
That misery takes some rest that dwells alone.
Away, thou villain.

Rob. Heaven can tell ;
Ake but your finger, I to make it well
Would cut my hand off.

Fos. Hang thee, hang thee.

Wife. Husband.

Fos. Destruction meet thee. Turn the key there, ho.

Rob. Good Sir, I'm gone, I will not stay to grieve you.
Oh, knew you, for your woes what pains I feel,
You would not scorn me so. See, Sir, to cool
Your heat of burning sorrow, I have got
Two hundred pounds, and glad it is my lot
To lay it down with reverence at your feet ;
No comfort in the world to me is sweet,
Whilst thus you live in moan.

Fos. Stay.

Rob. Good truth, Sir, I'll have none of it back,
Could but one penny of it save my life.

Wife. Yet stay, and hear him : Oh unnatural strife
In a hard father's bosom.

Fos. I see mine error now : Oh, can there grow
A rose upon a bramble ? did there e'er flow
Poison and health together in one tide ?
I'm born a man : reason may step aside,
And lead a father's love out of the way :
Forgive me, my good boy, I went astray ;
Look, on my knees I beg it : not for joy,
Thou bring'st this golden rubbish ; which I spurn :

But glad in this, the heavens mine eye-balls turn,
 And fix them right to look upon that face,
 Where love remains with pity, duty, grace.
 Oh my dear wronged boy.

Rob. Gladness o'erwhelms

My heart with joy : I cannot speak.

Wife. Crosses of this foolish world

Did never grieve my heart with torments more
 Than it is now grown light
 With joy and comfort of this happy sight.

[The old play-writers are distinguished by an honest boldness of exhibition, they shew every thing without being ashamed. If a reverse in fortune be the thing to be personified, they fairly bring us to the prison-grate and the alms-basket. A poor man on our stage is always a gentleman, he may be known by a peculiar neatness of apparel, and by wearing black. Our delicacy, in fact, forbids the dramatizing of Distress at all. It is never shewn in its essential properties*; it appears but as the adjunct to some virtue, as something which is to be relieved, from the approbation of which relief the spectators are to derive a certain soothing of self-referred satisfaction. We turn away from the real essences of things to hunt after their relative shadows, moral duties : whereas, if the truth of things were fairly represented, the relative duties might be safely trusted to themselves, and moral philosophy lose the name of a science.]

* Guzman de Alfarache in that good old book "The Spanish Rogue," has summed up a few of the properties of poverty—"that poverty, which is not the daughter of the spirit, is but the mother of shame and reproach; it is a disreputation that drowns all the other good parts that are in man; it is a disposition to all kind of evil; it is man's most foe; it is a leprosy full of anguish; it is a way that leads unto hell; it is a sea wherein our patience is overwhelmed, our honor is consumed, our lives are ended, and our souls are utterly lost and cast away for ever. The poor man is a kind of money that is not current; the subject of every idle huswife's chat; the offscum of the people; the dust of the street, first trampled under foot and then thrown on the dunghill; in conclusion, the poor man is the rich man's ass. He dineth with the last, fareth of the worst, and payeth dearest : his sixpence will not go so far as a rich man's threepence; his opinion

WOMEN BEWARE WOMEN: A TRAGEDY. BY THOMAS MIDDLETON.

Livia, the Duke's creature, cajoles a poor Widow with the appearance of Hospitality and neighbourly Attentions, that she may get her Daughter-in-Law (who is left in the Mother's care in the Son's absence) into her trains, to serve the Duke's pleasure.

LIVIA. WIDOW. A Gentleman, Livia's guest.

Liv. Widow, come, come, I have a great quarrel to you, Faith I must chide you that you must be sent for ; You make yourself so strange, never come at us, And yet so near a neighbor, and so unkind ; Troth, you're to blame ; you cannot be more welcome To any house in Florence, that I'll tell you.

Wid. My thanks must needs acknowledge so much, madam.

Liv. How can you be so strange then ? I sit here Sometimes whole days together without company, When business draws this gentleman from home, And should be happy in society is ignorance ; his discretion, foolishness ; his suffrage scorn ; his stock upon the common, abused by many and abhorred of all. If he come in company, he is not heard ; if any chance to meet him, they seek to shun him ; if he advise, though never so wisely, they grudge and murmur at him ; if he work miracles, they say he is a witch ; if virtuous, that he goeth about to deceive ; his venial sin is a blasphemy ; his thought is made treason ; his cause, be it never so just, it is not regarded ; and, to have his wrongs righted, he must appeal to that other life. All men crush him ; no man favoereth him ; there is no man that will relieve his wants ; no man that will comfort him in his miseries ; nor no man that will bear him company, when he is all alone, and oppressed with grief. None help him ; all hinder him ; none give him, all take from him ; he is debtor to none, and yet must make payment to all. O the unfortunate and poor condition of him that is poor, to whom even the very hours are sold, which the clock striketh, and pays custom for the sun-shine in August."

Which I so well affect as that of yours.
I know you're alone too ; why should not we
Like two kind neighbours then supply the wants
Of one another, having tongue-discourse,
Experience in the world, and such kind helps,
To laugh down time and meet age merrily ?

Wid. Age, madam ! you speak mirth : 'tis at my door,
But a long journey from your Ladyship yet.

Liv. My faith, I'm nine and thirty, every stroke, wench :
And 'tis a general observation
'Mongst knights ; wives, or widows, we account ourselves
Then old, when young men's eyes leave looking at us.
Come, now I have thy company, I'll not part with it
Till after supper.

Wid. Yes, I must crave pardon, madam.

Liv. I swear you shall stay supper ; we have no strangers, woman,
None but my sojourners and I, this gentleman
And the young heir his ward ; you know your company.

Wid. Some other time I will make bold with you,
madam.

Liv. Faith she shall not go.
Do you think I'll be forsworn ?

Wid. 'Tis a great while
Till supper time ; I'll take my leave then now, madam,
And come again in the evening, since your ladyship
Will have it so.

Liv. In the evening ! by my troth, wench,
I'll keep you while I have you ; you've great business sure,
To sit alone at home : I wonder strangely
What pleasure you take in't. Were't to me now,
I should be ever at one neighbour's house
Or other all day long ; having no charge,
Or none to chide you, if you go, or stay,
Who may live merrier, aye, or more at heart's ease ?

Come, we'll to chess or draughts, there are an hundred tricks

To drive out time till supper, never fear't, wench.

(A Chess-board is set.)

Wid. I'll but make one step home, and return straight,
madam.

Liv. Come, I'll not trust you, you make more excuses
To your kind friends than ever I knew any.
What business can you have, if you be sure
You've lock'd the doors? and, that being all you have,
I know you're careful on't: one afternoon
So much to spend here! say I should entreat you now
To lie a night or two, or a week, with me,
Or leave your own house for a month together;
It were a kindness that long neighbourhood
And friendship might well hope to prevail in:
Would you deny such a request? i'faith
Speak truly and freely.

Wid. I were then uncivil, madam.

Liv. Go to then, set your men: we'll have whole nights
Of mirth together, ere we be much older, wench.

Wid. As good now tell her then, for she will know it;
I've always found her a most friendly lady. (Aside.)

Liv. Why, widow, where's your mind?

Wid. Troth, even at home, madam.
To tell you truth, I left a gentlewoman
Even sitting all alone, which is uncomfortable,
Especially to young bloods.

Liv. Another excuse.

Wid. No, as I hope for health, madam, that's a truth;
Please you to send and see.

Liv. What gentlewoman? pish.

Wid. Wife to my son indeed.

Liv. Now I beshrew you.

Could you be so unkind to her and me,
To come and not bring her? faith, 'tis not friendly.

Wid. I fear'd to be too bold.

Liv. Too bold! Oh what's become
Of the true hearty love was wont to be
'Mongst neighbours in old time?

Wid. And she's a stranger, madam.

Liv. The more should be her welcome: when is courtesy
In better practice, than when 'tis employ'd
In entertaining strangers. I could chide ye in faith.
Leave her behind, poor gentlewoman, alone too!
Make some amends, and send for her betimes, go.

Wid. Please you command one of your servants,
madam.

Liv. Within there. —

Attend the gentlewoman. ———*

Branca resists the Duke's attempt.

Bran. Oh treachery to honor!

Duke. Prithee tremble not.

I feel thy breast shake like a turtle panting
Under a loving hand that makes much on't.
Why art so fearful?

Bran. Oh my extremity!
My Lord, what seek you?

Duke. Love.

Bran. 'Tis gone already:
I have a husband.

Duke. That's a single comfort;
Take a friend to him.

Bran. That's a double mischief;
Or else there's no religion.

* This is one of those scenes which has the air of being an immediate transcript from life. Livia the "good neighbour" is as real a creature as one of Chaucer's characters. She is such another jolly Housewife as the Wife of Bath.

Duke. Do not tremble
At fears of thy own making.

Bran. Nor, great lord,
Make me not bold with death and deeds of ruin,
Because they fear not you ; me they must fright ;
Then am I best in health : should thunder speak
And none regard it, it had lost the name,
And were as good be still. I'm not like those
That take their soundest sleeps in greatest tempests ;
Then wake I most, the weather fearfullest,
And call for strength to virtue. ———

Winding Sheet.

—— to have a being, and to live 'mongst men,
Is a fearful living and a poor one ; let a man truly think on't.

To have the toil and griefs of fourscore years
Put up in a white sheet, tied with two knots :
Methinks it should strike earthquakes in adulterers,
When even the very sheets they commit sin in
May prove for aught they know all their last garments.

Great Men's looks.

Did not the duke look up ? methought he saw us.—
—— That's every one's conceit that sees a duke,
If he look stedfastly, he looks straight at them :
When he perhaps, good careful gentleman,
Never minds any, but the look he casts
Is at his own intentions, and his object
Only the public good. ———

Weeping in Love.

Why should those tears be fetch'd forth ? cannot love
Be even as well express'd in a good look,
But it must see her face still in a fountain ?
It shews like a country maid dressing her head

By a dish of water : come, 'tis an old custom
To weep for love.

Lover's Chidings.

— prithee forgive me,
I did but chide in jest : the best loves use it
Sometimes ; it sets an edge upon affection.
When we invite our best friends to a feast,
'Tis not all sweetmeats that we set before 'em ;
There's something sharp and salt, both to whet appetite,
And make 'em taste their wine well : so methinks,
After a friendly sharp and savory chiding,
A kiss tastes wondrous well, and full o' the grape.

Wedlock.

O thou the ripe time of man's misery, wedlock ;
When all his thoughts like over-laden trees
Crack with the fruits they bear, in cares, in jealousies.
O that's a fruit that ripens hastily,
After 'tis knit to marriage ; it begins,
As soon as the sun shines upon the bride,
A little to shew color. —

Marrying the Adulteress, the Husband dead

Is not sin sure enough to wretched man,
But he must bind himself in chains to't ? worse !
Must marriage, that immaculate robe of honor,
That renders Virtue glorious, fair, and fruitful,
To her great master, be now made the garment
Of leprosy and foulness ? is this penitence,
To sanctify hot lust ? what is it otherways
Than worship done to devils ? is this the best
Amends that sin can make after her riots ?
As if a drunkard, to appease heaven's wrath,
Should offer up his surfeit for a sacrifice :
If that be comely, then lust's offerings are
On wedlock's sacred altar.

MORE DISSEMBLERS BESIDES WOMEN: A COMEDY.
BY THOMAS MIDDLETON.

Death.

——— when the heart's above, the body walks here
But like an idle servingman below,
Gaping and waiting for his master's coming.
He that lives fourscore years, is but like one
That stays here for a friend: when death comes, then
Away he goes, and is ne'er seen again.

Loving a Woman.

——— of all the frenzies
That follow flesh and blood,
The most ridiculous is to fawn on women;
There's no excuse for that: 'tis such a madness,
There is no cure set down for't; no physician
Ever spent hour about it, for they guess'd
'Twas all in vain, when they first lov'd, themselves,
And never since durst practise: cry heu mihi;
That's all the help they have for't. I'd rather meet
A witch far north than a fine fool in love;
The sight would less afflict me. But for modesty,
I should fall foul in words upon fond man,
That can forget his excellence and honor,
His serious meditations, being the end
Of his creation, to learn well to die;
And live a prisoner to a woman's eye.

Widow's Vow.

Lord Cardinal. Increase of health and a redoubled courage
To chastity's great soldier: what, so sad, Madam?

The memory of her seven years deceas'd Lord
Springs yet into her eyes, as fresh and full
As at the seventh hour after his departure.
What a perpetual fountain is her virtue !
Too much to afflict yourself with ancient sorrow
Is not so strictly for your strength required :
Your vow is charge enough, believe me 'tis, Madam ;
You need no weightier task.

Duch. Religious Sir,
You heard the last words of my dying Lord.
Lord Card. Which I shall ne'er forget.

Duch. May I entreat
Your goodness but to speak 'em over to me,
As near as memory can befriend your utterance :
That I may think awhile I stand in presence
Of my departing Husband.

Lord Card. What's your meaning
In this, most virtuous Madam ?

Duch. 'Tis a courtesy
I stand in need of, Sir, at this time especially ;
Urge it no farther yet : as it proves to me,
You shall hear from me ; only I desire it
Effectually from you, Sir, that's my request.

Lord Card. I wonder ; yet I'll spare to question farther ;
You shall have your desire.

Duch. I thank you, Sir :
A blessing come along with it.

Lord Card. [repeats] " You see, my Lords, what all earth's glory is,
• Rightly defined in me, uncertain breath :
" A dream of threescore years to the long sleeper,
" To most not half the time. Beware ambition ;
" Heaven is not reach'd with pride, but with submission.
" And you Lord Cardinal labor to perfect

" Good purposes begun, be what you seem,
 " Stedfast and uncorrupt, your actions noble,
 " Your goodness simple, without gain or art ;
 " And not in vesture holier than in heart.
 " But 'tis a pain more than the pangs of death
 " To think that we must part, fellows of life. —
 " Thou richness of my joys, kind and dear Princess,
 " Death had no sting, but for our separation ;
 " 'Twould come more calm than an evening's peace,
 " That brings on rest to labours : Thou art so precious,
 " I should depart in everlasting envy
 " Unto the man, that ever should enjoy thee.
 " Oh a new torment strikes his force into me,
 " When I but think on't, I am rack'd and torn
 " (Pity me) in thy virtues."

Duch. " My lov'd Lord,
 " Let your confirm'd opinion of my life,
 " My love, my faithful love, seal an assurance
 " Of quiet to your spirit, that no forgetfulness
 " Can cast a sleep so deadly on my senses,
 " To draw my affections to a second liking."

Lord Card. " It has ever been the promise, and the spring

" Of my great love to thee. For, once to marry
 " Is honorable in woman, and her ignorance
 " Stands for a virtue, coming new and fresh ;
 " But second marriage shews desires in flesh ;
 " Thence lust, and heat, and common custom grows :
 " But she's part virgin, who but one man knows.
 " I here expect a work of thy great faith :
 " At my last parting I can crave no more ;
 " And with thy vow, I rest myself for ever ;
 " My soul and it shall fly to heaven together :
 " Seal to my spirit that quiet satisfaction,
 " And I go hence in peace."

Duch. "Then here I vow, never ——"

Lord Card. Why, Madam ——

Duch. I can go no further.

Lord Card. What, have you forgot your vow?

Duch. I have, too certainly,

Lord Card. Your vow? that cannot be; it follows now,
Just where I left.

Duch. My frailty gets before it :
Nothing prevails but ill.

Lord Card. What ail you, Madam?

Duch. Sir, I'm in love.

NO WIT }
HELP } LIKE A WOMAN'S.

A COMEDY. BY THOMAS MIDDLETON.

Virtuous Poverty.

'Life, had he not his answer? what strange impudence
Governs in man, when lust is lord of him!
Thinks he me mad? 'cause I have no monies on earth,
That I'll go forfeit my estate in heaven,
And live eternal beggar? he shall pardon me :
That's my soul's jointure; I'll starve ere I sell that.

Comfort.

—— husband,
Wake, wake, and let not patience keep thee poor,
Rouse up thy spirit from this falling slumber :
Make thy distress seem but a weeping dream,
And this the opening morning of thy comforts
Wipe the salt dew from off thy careful eyes,
And drink a draught of gladness next thy heart
To expel the infection of all poisonous sorrows.

Good and Ill Fortune.

O my blessing !

I feel a hand of mercy lift me up
Out of a world of waters, and now sets me
Upon a mountain, where the sun plays most,
To cheer my heart even as it dries my limbs.
What deeps I see beneath me ! in whose falls
Many a nimble mortal toils,
And scarce can feed himself: the streams of fortune,
'Gainst which he tugs in vain, still beat him down,
And will not suffer him (past hand to mouth)
To lift his arm to his posterities' blessing.
I see a careful sweat run in a ring
About his temples, but all will not do :
For till some happy means relieve his state,
There he must stick and bide the wrath of fate.

Parting in Amity.

Let our Parting

Be full as charitable as our meeting was ;
That the pale envious world, glad of the food
Of others' miseries, civil dissensions,
And nuptial strifes, may not feed fat with ours.

Meeting with a Wife supposed Dead.

O my reviving joy ! thy quickening presence
Makes the sad night of threescore and ten years
Sit like a youthful spring upon my blood.
I cannot make thy welcome rich enough
With all the wealth of words.

Mother's Forgiveness.

Moth. Why do your words start back ? are they afraid
Of her that ever lov'd them ?

Philip. I have a suit to you, Madam.

Moth. You have told me that already ; pray, what is't ?
If't be so great, my present state refuse it,
I shall be abler, then command and use it.
Whatever 't be, let me have warning to provide for 't.

Philip. Provide forgiveness then, for that's the want
My conscience feels. O, my wild youth has led me
Into unnatural wrongs against your freedom once.
I spent the ransom which my father sent,
To set my pleasures free ; while you lay captive.

Moth. And is this all now ?
You use me like a stranger : pray, stand up.

Philip. Rather fall flat : I shall deserve yet worse.

Moth. Whate'er your faults are, esteem me still a friend ;

Or else you wrong me more in asking pardon
Than when you did the wrong you ask'd it for :
And since you have prepar'd me to forgive you.
Pray let me know for what ; the first fault's nothing.

Philip. Here comes the wrong then that drives home
the rest.

I saw a face at Antwerp, that quite drew me
From conscience and obedience : in that fray
I lost my heart, I must needs lose my way.
There went the ransome, to redeem my mind ;
Stead of the money, I brought over her ;
And to cast mists before my father's eyes,
Told him it was my sister (lost so long)
And that yourself was dead.—You see the wrong.

Moth. This is but youthful still—
I forgive thee
As freely as thou didst it. For alas,
This may be call'd good dealing, to some parts
That love and youth plays daily among sons.

THE WITCH : A TRAGI-COMEDY. BY THOMAS
MIDDLETON.

HECATE, and the other Witches, at their Charms.

Hec. Titty and Tiffin, Suckin
And Pidgen, Liard, and Robin !
White spirits, black spirits, grey spirits, red spirits,
Devil-toad, devil-ram, devil-cat, and devil-dam,
Why Hoppo and Stadlin, Hellwain and Puckle !

Stad. Here, sweating at the vessel.

Hec. Boil it well.

Hop. It gallops now.

Hec. Are the flames blue enough,
Or shall I use a little seeten * more ?

Stad. The nips of Fairies upon maids' white hips
Are not more perfect azure.

Hec. Tend it carefully.
Send Stadlin to me with a brazen dish,
That I may fall to work upon these serpents.
And squeeze 'em ready for the second hour.
Why, when ?

Stad. Here's Stadlin and the dish.

Hec. Here take this unbaptized brat :
Boil it well—preserve the fat :
You know tis precious to transfer
Our 'nointed flesh into the air,
In moonlight nights, o'er steeple tops,
Mountains, and pine trees, that like pricks, or stops,
Seem to our height : high towers, and roofs of princes,
Like wrinkles in the earth : whole provinces

* Seething.

Appear to our sight then even like
 A russet-mole upon some lady's cheek.
 When hundred leagues in air, we feast and sing,
 Dance, kiss, and coll, use every thing :
 What young man can we wish to pleasure us,
 But we enjoy him in an Incubus ?
 Thou know'st it, Stadlin ?'

Stad. Usually that's done.

Hec. Away, in.

Go feed the vessel for the second hour.

Stad. Where be the magical herbs ?

Hec. They're down his throat *,
 His mouth cramm'd full ; his ears and nostrils stuff.
 I thrust in Eleaselinum, lately
 Aconitum, frondes populeas, and soot.
 You may see that, he looks so black i' th' mouth.
 Then Sium, Acharum, Vulgaro too,
 Dentaphillon, the blood of a flitter-mouse,
 Solanum somnificum et oleum.

Stad. Then there's all, Hecate.

Hec. Is the heart of wax
 Stuck full of magic needles ?

Stad. 'Tis done, Hecate.

Hec. And is the farmer's picture, and his wife's,
 Laid down to the fire yet ?

Stad. They are a roasting both too.

Hec. Good ;

Then their marrows are a melting subtilly,
 And three months' sickness sucks up life in 'em.
 They denied me often flour, barm, and milk,
 Goose grease and tar, when I ne'er hurt their churnings,
 Their brew-locks nor their batches, nor forespoke
 Any of their breedings. Now I'll be meet with 'em.

* The dead Child's.

Seven of their young pigs I have bewitch'd already
Of the last litter, nine ducklings, thirteen goslings and a hog

Fell lame last Sunday, after even-song too.

And mark how their sheep prosper ; or what soup.

Each milch-kine gives to th' pail : I'll send these snakes
Shall milk 'em all before hand : the dew'd skirted dairy wenches

Shall stroke dry dugs for this, and go home cursing :

I'll mar their sillabubs, and swarthy feastings

Under cows' bellies, with the parish youths.

SEBASTIAN consults the WITCH for a Charm to be revenged on his successful Rival.

Hec. Urchins, elves, hags, satires, pans, fawns, silence.
Kit with the candlestick ; tritons, centaurs, dwarfs, imps.
The spoon, the mare, the man i' th' oak, the hellwain, the fire-drake, the puckle. A. ab hur. hus.

Seb. Heaven knows with what unwillingness and hate
I enter this damn'd place : but such extremes
Of wrongs in love fight 'gainst religion's knowledge,
That were I led by this disease to deaths
As numberless as creatures that must die,
I could not shun the way.—I know what 'tis
To pity mad men now : they're wretched things
That ever were created, if they be
Of woman's making and her faithless vows.
I fear they're now a kissing : what's a clock ?
'Tis now but supper time : but night will come,
And all new-married couples make short suppers.
What e'er thou art, I have no spare time to fear thee ;
My horrors are so strong and great already
That thou seem'st nothing : Up and laze not :
Hadst thou my business, thou couldst ne'er sit so ;
'Twould firk thee into air a thousand mile,

Beyond thy ointments: I would I were read
 So much in thy black pow'r, as mine own griefs.
 I'm in great need of help: wilt give me any?

Hec. Thy boldness takes me bravely; we are all sworn

To sweat for such a spirit: see; I regard thee,
 I rise, and bid thee welcome. What's thy wish now?

Seb. Oh my heart swells with't. I must take breath first.

Hec. Is't to confound some enemy on the seas?
 It may be done to-night. Stadlin's within;
 She raises all your sudden ruinous storms
 That shipwreck barks; and tears up growing oaks;
 Flies over houses, and takes Anno Domini
 Out of a rich man's chimney (a sweet place for't,
 He would be hang'd ere he would set his own years
 there;

They must be chamber'd in a five pound picture,
 A green silk curtain drawn before the eyes on't,
 His rotten diseas'd years)! Or dost thou envy
 The fat prosperity of any neighbour?
 I'll call forth Hoppo, and her incantation
 Can straight destroy the young of all his cattle:
 Blast vine-yards, orchards, meadows; or in one night
 Transport his dung, hay, corn, by reeks, whole stacks,
 Into thine own ground.

Seb. This would come most richly now
 To many a country grazier: But my envy
 Lies not so low as cattle, corn, or wines:
 'Twill trouble your best pow'rs to give me ease.

Hec. Is it to starve up generation?
 To strike a barrenness in man or woman?

Seb. Hah!

Hec. Hah! Did you feel me there? I knew your grief.

Seb. Can there be such things done?

Hec. Are these the skins
Of serpents ? these of snakes ?

Seb. I see they are.

Hec. So sure into what house these are convey'd
Knit with these charms, and retentive knots,
Neither the man begets, nor woman breeds,
No, nor performs the least desire of wedlock,
Being then a mutual duty ; I could give thee
Chiroconita, Adincantida,
Archimadon, Marmaritin, Calicia,
Which I could sort to villainous barren ends ;
But this leads the same way : More I could instance :
As the same needles thrust into their pillows
That sow and sock up dead men in their sheets :
A privy grissel of a man that hangs
After sun set : Good, excellent : yet all's there, Sir.

Seb. You could not do a man that special kindness
To part them utterly, now ? Could you do that ?

Hec. No : time must do't : we cannot disjoin wedlock ;
'Tis of heaven's fastening : well may we raise jars,
Jealousies, strifes, and heart-burning disagreements,
Like a thick scurf o'er life, as did our master
Upon that patient* miracle ; but the work itself
Our power cannot disjoin.

Seb. I depart happy
In what I have then, being constrain'd to this :
And grant, you greater powers that dispose men,
That I may never need this hag again. [Exit

Hec. I know he loves me not, nor there's no hope on't ;
'Tis for the love of mischief I do this :
And that we are sworn to the first oath we take.

HECATE, STADLIN, HOPPO, with the other Witches, preparing for their midnight journey through the Air. FIRESTONE, HECATE'S Son.

Hec. The moon's a gallant ; see how brisk she rides.

Stad. Here's a rich evening, Hecate.

Hec. Ay, is't not, wenches,

To take a journey of five thousand mile ?

Hop. Ours will be more to-night.

Hec. Oh 'twill be precious.

Heard you the owl yet ?

Stad. Briefly in the copse,

As we came through now.

Hec. 'Tis high time for us then.

Stad. There was a bat hung at my lips three times

As we came through the woods, and drank her fill.

Old Puckle saw her.

Hec. You are fortunate still :

The very screech owl lights upon your shoulder,

And woos you like a pigeon. Are you furnish'd ?

Have you your ointments ?

Stad. All.

Hec. Prepare to flight then :

I'll overtake you swiftly.

Stad. Hie thee, Hecate :

We shall be up betimes.

Hec. I'll reach you quickly.

[The other Witches mount.

Fire. They are all going a birding to-night. They talk of fowls in the air, that fly by day : I am sure, they'll be a company of foul sluts there to-night. If we have not mortality offer'd*, I'll be hanged ; for they are able to putrify it, to infect a whole region. She spies me now.

* Probably the true reading is after't.

Hec. What, Firestone, our sweet son?

Fire. A little sweeter than some of you ; or a dunghill were too good for me.

Hec. How much hast here ?

Fire. Nineteen, and all brave plump ones ; besides six lizards, and three serpentine eggs.

Hec. Dear and sweet boy : what herbs hast thou ?

Fire. I have some Marmartin and Mandragon.

Hec. Marmaritin and Mandragora thou wouldst say.

Fire. Here's Pannax too : I thank thee, my pan akes
I am sure

With kneeling down to cut 'em.

Hec. And Selago,

Hedge hysop too : how near he goes my cuttings !

Were they all cropt by moon-light ?

Fire. Every blade of 'em, or I am a moon-calf, mother.

Hec. Hie thee home with 'em.

Look well to the house to-night : I am for aloft.

Fir. Aloft, quoth you ? I would you would break your neck once, that I might have all quickly.
Hark, hark, mother ; they are above the Steeple already, flying over your head with a noise of musicians.

Hec. They are indeed. Help me, help me ; I'm too late else.

Song in the Air.

Come away, come away ;

Hecate, Hecate, come away.

Hec. I come, I come, I come, I come,

With all the speed I may,

With all the speed I may.

Where's Stadlin ?

[Above.] Here.

Hec. Where's Puckle ?

[Above.]——Here :

And Hoppo too, and Hellwain too :
We lack but you ; we lack but you :
Come away, make up the count.

Hec. I will but 'noint, and then I mount.

(A Spirit like a Cat descends.)

[Above.]——There's one come down to fetch his dues ;
A kiss, a coll, a sip of blood :
And why thou stay'st so long, I muse, I muse,
Since the air's so sweet and good.

Hec. Oh art thou come ?

What news, what news ?

Spirit. All goes still to our delight :

Either come, or else

Refuse, refuse.

Hec. Now I am furnish'd for the flight.

Fire. Hark, hark, the Cat sings a brave treble in her own language.

Hec. [Going up.] Now I go, now I fly,
Malkin my sweet Spirit and I.
Oh what a dainty pleasure 'tis
To ride in the air
When the moon shines fair,
And sing, and dance, and toy, and kiss :
Over woods, high rocks, and mountains,
Over seas (our mistress' fountains)
Over steep towers and turrets,
We fly by night 'mongst troops of Spirits.
No ring of bells to our ears sounds,
No howls of wolves, no yelps of hounds ;
No, not the noise of water's-breach,
Or cannon's throat, our height can reach.

[Above.]——No ring of bells, &c.

Fire. Well, mother, I thank your kindness ; you must be.

Gamboling in the air, and leave me to walk here like a fool and a mortal. * * * * *

A Duchess consults the Witch about inflicting a sudden Death.

DUCHESS. HECATE. FIRESTONE.

Hec. What death is 't you desire for Almachildes ?

Duch. A sudden and a subtle.

Hec. Then I 've fitted you.

Here lie the gifts of both ; sudden and subtle :

His picture made in wax, and gently molten

By a blue fire, kindled with dead men's eyes,

Will waste him by degrees.

Duch. In what time prithee ?

Hec. Perhaps in a moon's progress.

Duch. What, a month ?

Out upon pictures, if they be so tedious :

Give me things with some life.

Hec. Then seek no farther.

Duch. This must be done with speed, dispatch'd this night,

If it be possible.

Hec. I have it for you :

Here's that will do 't : stay but perfection's time,

And that's not five hours hence.

Duch. Canst thou do this ?

Hec. Can I ?

Duch. I mean, so closely ?

Hec. So closely do you mean too ?

Duch. So artfully, so cunningly ?

Hec. Worse and worse. Doubts and incredulities,
They make me mad. Let scrupulous creatures know :

Cum volui, ripis ipsis mirantibus, amnes

In fontes rediere suos ; concussaue sisto,

Stantia concutio cantu freta ; nubila pello,

Nubilaque induco : ventos abigoque, vocoque.

Vipereas rumpo verbis et carmine fauces ;
 Et sylvas moveo, jubeoque tremiscere montes,
 Et mugiere solum, manesque exire sepulchris.
 Te quoque, Luna, traho.

Can you doubt me then, daughter ;
 That can make mountains tremble, miles of woods walk :
 Whole earth's foundation bellow, and the spirits
 Of the entomb'd to burst out from their marbles ;
 Nay, draw yon Moon to my involv'd designs ?

Fire. I know as well as can be when my mother's mad, and our

Great cat angry ; for one spits French then, and the other spits Latin.

Duch. I did not doubt you, mother.

Hec. No ! what, did you ?

My power's so firm, it is not to be question'd.

Duch. Forgive what's past ; and now I know th' offensiveness

That vexes art, I'll shun the occasion ever.

Hec. Leave all to me and my five sisters, daughter.

It shall be convey'd in at howlet-time.

Take you no care. My spirits know their moments :

Raven or screech-owl never fly by the door

But they call in (I thank 'em) and they lose not by't.

I give 'em barley soak'd in infant's blood :

They shall have semina cum sanguine,

Their gorge cramm'd full, if they come once to our house :

We are no niggard. —

Fre. They fare but too well when they come hither :
 they ate up as much the other night as would have made me a good conscionable pudding.

Hec. Give me some lizard's brain, quickly, Firestone.
 Where's grannam Stadlin, and all the rest of the sisters ?

Fire. All at hand, forsooth.

(The other Witches appear.)

Hec. Give me Marmaritin ; some Bear-breech : when ?

Fire. Here's Bear-breech and lizard's-brain, forsooth.

Hec. Into the vessel ;

And fetch three ounces of the red-hair'd girl

I kill'd last midnight.

Fire. Whereabout, sweet mother ?

Hec. Hip ; hip, or flank. Where's the Acopus ?

Fire. You shall have Acopus, forsooth.

Hec. Stir, stir, about ; whilst I begin the charm.

A Charm Song about a Vessel.

Hec. Black spirits and white, red spirits and grey ;
Mingle, mingle, mingle, you that mingle may.

Titty, Tiffin, keep it stiff in ;

Fire-drake, Puckey, make it lucky ;

Liard, Robin, you must bob in.

Round, around, around, about, about ;

All Ill come running in, all Good keep out.

First Witch. Here's the blood of a bat.

Hec. Put in that, oh, put in that.

Sec. Witch. Here's libbard's-bane.

Hec. Put in again.

First Witch. The juice of toad ; the oil of adder.

Sec. Witch. Those will make the younker madder.

Hec. Put in, there's all, and rid the stench.

Fire. Nay, here's three ounces of the red-hair'd wench.

All. Round, around, around, &c.

Hec. So, so, enough : into the vessel with it.

There ; 't hath the true perfection : I am so light*

At any mischief, there's no villainy

But is a tune methinks.

Fire. A tune ! 'tis to the tune of damnation then, I warrant you,

And that song hath a villainous burthen.

* Light-hearted.

Hec. Come my sweet sisters, let the air strike our tune ;

Whilst we show reverence to yon peeping moon.

[The Witches dance, et Exeunt.]

[Though some resemblance may be traced between the Charms in Macbeth, and the Incantations in this Play, which is supposed to have preceded it, this coincidence will not detract much from the originality of Shakspeare. His Witches are distinguished from the Witches of Middleton by essential differences. These are creatures to whom man or woman plotting some dire mischief might resort for occasional consultation. Those originate deeds of blood, and begin bad impulses to men. From the moment that their eyes first meet with Macbeth's, he is spell-bound. That meeting sways his destiny. He can never break the fascination. These Witches can hurt the body ; those have power over the soul.—Hecate in Middleton has a Son, a low buffoon : the hags of Shakspeare have neither child of their own, nor seem to be descended from any parent. They are foul Anomalies, of whom we know not whence they are sprung, nor whether they have beginning or ending. As they are without human passions, so they seem to be without human relations. They come with thunder and lightning, and vanish to airy music. This is all we know of them.—Except Hecate, they have no names ; which heightens their mysteriousness. Their names, and some of the properties, which Middleton has given to his Hags, excite smiles. The Weird Sisters are serious things. Their presence cannot co-exist with mirth. But, in a lesser degree, the Witches of Middleton are fine creations. Their power too is, in some measure, over the mind. They raise jars, jealousies, strifes, like a thick scurf o'er life.]

THE WITCH OF EDMONTON. A TRAGI-COMEDY.
 BY WILLIAM ROWLEY, THOMAS DECKER,
 JOHN FORD, &c.

MOTHER SAWYER, (before she turns Witch) alone.

Saw. And why on me? why should the envious world
 Throw all their scandalous malice upon me?
 'Cause I am poor, deform'd, and ignorant,
 And like a bow buckled and bent together
 By some more strong in mischiefs than myself;
 Must I for that be made a common sink
 For all the filth and rubbish of men's tongues
 To fall and run into? Some call me Witch,
 And being ignorant, of myself, they go
 About to teach me how to be one: urging
 That my bad tongue (by their bad usage made so)
 Forespeaks their cattle, doth bewitch their corn,
 Themselves, their servants, and their babes at nurse:
 This they enforce upon me; and in part
 Make me to credit it*.

BANKS, a Farmer, enters.

Banks. Out, out upon thee, Witch.

Saw. Dost call me Witch?

Banks. I do, Witch, I do:

And worse I would, knew I a name more hateful.
 What makest thou upon my ground?

Saw. Gather a few rotten sticks to warm me.

Banks. Down with them when I bid thee, quickly;
 I'll make thy bones rattle in thy skin else.

* This Soliloquy anticipates all that Addison has said in the conclusion of the 117th Spectator.

Saw. You won't? churl, cut-throat, miser: there they be. Would they stuck cross thy throat, thy bowels, thy maw, thy midriff——

Banks. Say'st thou me so? Hag, out of my ground.

Saw. Dost strike me, slave, curmudgeon? Now thy bones aches, thy joints cramps,
And convulsions stretch and crack thy sinews.

Banks. Cursing, thou hag? take that, and that.

[Exit.

Saw. Strike, do: and wither'd may that hand and arm
Whose blows have lam'd me, drop from the rotten trunk.
Abuse me! beat me! call me hag and witch!
What is the name, where, and by what art learn'd?
What spells, or charms, or invocations,
May the thing call'd Familiar be purchased?

————— I am shunn'd
And hated like a sickness: made a scorn
To all degrees and sexes. I have heard old beldams
Talk of Familiars in the shape of mice,
Rats, ferrets, weasels, and I wot not what,
That have appear'd; and suck'd, some say, their blood.
But by what means they came acquainted with them,
I'm now ignorant. Would some power good or bad
Instruct me which way I might be reveng'd
Upon this churl, I'd go out of myself,
And give this fury leave to dwell within
This ruin'd cottage, ready to fall with age:
Abjure all goodness, be at hate with prayer,
And study curses, imprecations,
Blasphemous speeches, oaths, detested oaths,
Or any thing that's ill; so I might work
Revenge upon this miser, this black cur,
That barks, and bites, and sucks the very blood
Of me, and of my credit. 'Tis all one
To be a witch as to be counted one.

She gets a Familiar which serves her in the likeness of a Black Dog.

MOTHER SAWYER. Familiar.

Saw. I am dried up
With cursing and with madness ; and have yet
No blood to moisten these sweet lips of thine.
Stand on thy hind-legs up. Kiss me, my Tommy ;
And rub away some wrinkles on my brow,
By making my old ribs to shrug for joy
Of thy fine tricks. What hast thou done ? Let's tickle.
Hast thou struck the horse lame as I bid thee ?

Famil. Yes, and nipt the sucking-child.

Saw. Ho, ho, my dainty,
My little pearl. No lady loves her hound,
Monkey, or parakeet, as I do thee.

Famil. The maid has been churning butter nine hours,
but it shall not come.

Saw. Let 'm eat cheese and choak.

Famil. I had rare sport
Among the clowns in the morrice.

Saw. I could dance
Out of my skin to hear thee. But, my curl-pate,
That jade, that foul-tongued —— Nan Ratcliff,
Who, for a little soap lick'd by my sow,
Struck, and had almost lamed it : did not I charge thee
To pinch that quean to the heart ? * * * *

Her Familiar absents himself : she invokes him.

Saw. ————— Not see me in three days ?
I'm lost without my Tomalin ; prithee come ;
Revenge to me is sweeter far than life :
Thou art my raven, on whose coal-black wings
Revenge comes flying to me : Oh, my best love,

I am on fire (even in the midst of ice)
 Raking my blood up, till my shrunk knees feel Thy curl'd head leaning on them. Come then, my darling,
 If in the air thou hover'st, fall upon me
 In some dark cloud ; and, as I oft have seen
 Dragons and serpents in the elements,
 Appear thou now so to me. Art thou i'the sea ?
 Muster up all the monsters from the deep,
 And be the ugliest of them : so that my bulch
 Shew but his swarth cheek to me, let earth cleave,
 And break from hell, I care not : could I run
 Like a swift powder-mine beneath the world,
 Up would I blow it, all to find out thee,
 Though I lay ruin'd in it.—Not yet come ?
 I must then fall to my old prayer : sanctibiceter nomen
 tuum.

He comes in White.

Saw. Why dost thou thus appear to me in white,
 As if thou wert the ghost of my dear love ?

Famil. I am dogged, list not to tell thee, yet to torment thee,

My whiteness puts thee in mind of thy winding sheet.

Saw. Am I near death ?

Famil. Be blasted with the news.

Whiteness is day's footboy, a fore-runner to light, which shews thy old rivel'd face : villainies are stript naked, the witch must be beaten out of her cockpit.

Saw. Why to mine eyes art thou a flag of truce ?

I am at peace with none ; 'tis the black color,
 Or none, which I fight under : I do not like
 Thy puritan-paleness. —

[Mother Sawyer differs from the hags of Middleton or Shakspeare. She is the plain traditional old woman Witch of our ancestors; poor, deformed, and ignorant; the terror of villages, herself amenable to a justice. That should be a hardy sheriff, with the power of the county at his heels, that would lay hands on the Weird Sisters. They are of another jurisdiction. But upon the common and received opinion the author (or authors) have engrafted strong fancy. There is something frightfully earnest in her invocations to the Familiar.]

THE ATHEIST'S TRAGEDY: OR THE HONEST MAN'S REVENGE. BY CYRIL TOURNEUR.

D'Amville (the Atheist) with the aid of his wicked instrument, Borachio, murders his Brother, Montferrers, for his Estate. After the deed is done, Borachio and he talk together of the circumstances which attended the murder.

D'Am. Here's a sweet comedy, begins with O dolentis, and concludes with ha, ha, he.

Bor. Ha, ha, he.

D'Am. O my echo! I could stand reverberating this sweet musical air of joy, till I had perished my sound lungs with violent laughter. Lovely night-raven, thou hast seized a carcase?

Bor. Put him out on's pain. I lay so fitly underneath the bank from whence he fell, that ere his faltering tongue could utter double O, I knocked out his brains with this fair ruby; and had another stone just of this form and bigness ready, that I laid in the broken scull upon the ground for his pillow, against the which they thought he fell and perished.

D'Am. Upon this ground I'll build my manor house, And this shall be chiefest corner stone.

Bor. This crown'd the most judicious murder, that
The brain of man was e'er deliver'd of.

D'Am. Aye, mark the plot. Not any circumstance
That stood within the reach of the design,
Of persons, dispositions, matter, time,
Or place, but by this brain of mine was made
An instrumental help; yet nothing from
The induction to the accomplishment seem'd forced,
Or done o' purpose, but by accident.

[Here they reckon up the several circumstances.]

Bor. Then darkness did
Protect the execution of the work
Both from prevention and discovery.

D'Am. Here was a murder bravely carried through
The eye of observation, unobserved.

Bor. And those that saw the passage of it, made
The instruments; yet knew not what they did.

D'Am. That power of rule, philosophers ascribe
To him they call the Supreme of the Stars,
Making their influences governors
Of sublunary creatures, when themselves
Are senseless of their operations.

[Thunder and Lightning.]

What! dost start at thunder? Credit my belief, 'tis a mere effect of nature, an exhalation hot and dry, involved within a watry vapour in the middle region of the air, whose coldness congealing that thick moisture to a cloud, the angry exhalation shut within a prison of contrary quality, strives to be free; and with the violent eruption through the grossness of that cloud, makes this noise we hear.

Bor. 'Tis a fearful noise.

D'Am. 'Tis a brave noise; and, methinks, graces our accomplished project, as a peal of ordnance does a triumph. It speaks encouragement. Now nature shews thee how it favored our performance: to forbear this noise when we set forth, because it should not terrify my brother's going home, which would have dashed our purpose: to forbear this lightning in our passage, lest it should ha' warned him of the pitfall. Then propitious nature winked at our proceedings; now, it doth express how that forbearance favor'd our success. * * * *

Drowned Soldier.

——— walking upon the fatal shore,
 Among the slaughter'd bodies of their men,
 Which the full-stomach'd sea had cast upon
 The sands, it was my unhappy chance to light
 Upon a face, whose favor when it lived
 My astonish'd mind inform'd me I had seen.
 He lay in his armour, as if that had been
 His coffin; and the weeping sea (like one
 Whose milder temper doth lament the death
 Of him whom in his rage he slew) runs up
 The shore, embraces him, kisses his cheek;
 Goes back again, and forces up the sands
 To bury him; and every time it parts,
 Sheds tears upon him; till at last, (as if
 It could no longer endure to see the man Whom it had slain, yet loth to leave him) with
 A kind of unresolv'd unwilling pace,
 Winding her waves one in another, (like
 A man that folds his arms, or wrings his hands,
 For grief) ebb'd from the body, and descends;

As if it would sink down into the earth,
And hide itself for shame of such a deed *.

Match Refused.

I entertain the offer of this match,
With purpose to confirm it presently.
I have already mov'd it to my daughter ;
Her soft excuses savour'd at the first
Methought but of a modest innocence
Of blood, whose unmov'd stream was never drawn
Into the current of affection. But when I
Replied with more familiar arguments,
Thinking to make her apprehension bold ;
Her modest blush fell to a pale dislike,
And she refus'd it with such confidence,
As if she had been prompted by a love
Inclining firmly to some other man ;
And in that obstinacy she remains.

Love and Courage.

O do not wrong him. 'Tis a generous mind
That led his disposition to the war ;
For gentle love and noble courage are
So near allied, that one begets another :
Or love is sister, and courage is the brother.
Could I affect him better than before,
His soldier's heart would make me love him more.

* This way of description, which seems unwilling ever to leave off, weaving parenthesis within parenthesis, was brought to its height by sir Philip Sidney. He seems to have set the example to Shakspeare. Many beautiful instances may be found all over the Arcadia. These bountiful Wits always give full measure, pressed down and running over.

THE REVENGER'S TRAGEDY. BY CYRIL TOURNEUR.

Findici addresses the Scull of his dead Lady.

Thou sallow picture of my poison'd love,
My study's ornament, thou shell of death,
Once the bright face of my betrothed lady,
When life and beauty naturally fill'd out
These ragged imperfections ;
When two heav'n-pointed diamonds were set
In those unsightly rings —— then 'twas a face
So far beyond the artificial shine
Of any woman's bought complexion,
That the uprightest man (if such there be
That sin but seven times a day) broke custom,
And made up eight with looking after her.
O she was able to ha' made a usurer's son
Melt all his patrimony in a kiss ;
And what his father fifty years told,
To have consum'd, and yet his suit been cold.

Again.

Here's an eye,
Able to tempt a great man—to serve God :
A pretty hanging lip, that has forgot now to dissemble.
Methinks this mouth should make a swearer tremble ;
A drunkard clasp his teeth, and not undo 'em,
To suffer wet damnation to run thro' 'em.
Here's a cheek keeps her colour let the wind go whistle :
Spout rain, we fear thee not : be hot or cold,
All's one with us : and is not he absurd,
Whose fortunes are upon their faces set,
That fear no other God but wind and wet ?

Does the silk-worm expend her yellow labours
 For thee? for thee does she undo herself?
 Are lordships sold to maintain ladyships,
 For the poor benefit of a bewitching minute?
 Why does yon fellow falsify highways,
 And put his life between the judge's lips,
 To refine such a thing? keep his horse and men,
 To beat their valors for her?
 Surely we're all mad people, and they
 Whom we think are, are not.
 Does every proud and self-affecting dame
 Camphire her face for this? and grieve her maker
 In sinful baths of milk, when many an infant starves,
 For her superfluous out-side, all for this?
 Who now bids twenty pound a night? prepares
 Music, perfumes, and sweet meats? all are hush'd.
 Thou may'st lie chaste now! it were fine, methinks,
 To have thee seen at revels, forgetful feasts,
 And unclean brothels: sure 'twould fright the sinner,
 And make him a good coward: put a reveller
 Out of his antick amble,
 And cloy an epicure with empty dishes.
 Here might a scornful and ambitious woman
 Look through and through herself.—See ladies, with false forms
 You deceive men, but cannot deceive worms*.

* The male and female Skeleton in Gondibert, is the finest lecture of mortification which has been read from bones.

This dismal gallery, lofty, long and wide,
 Was hung with Skeletons of every kind;
 Human, and all that learned human pride
 Thinks made to obey man's high immortal mind.
 Yet on that wall hangs He, too, who so thought:
 And She, dried by Him, whom that He obey'd.

Vindici, having disguised himself, makes trial of his Sister Castiza's virtue ; and afterwards, of his Mother's.

VINDICI. CASTIZA.

Vin. Lady, the best of wishes to your sex,
Fair skins and new gowns. [Offers her a Letter.

Cast. Oh they shall thank you, Sir.
Whence this ?

Vin. Oh, from a dear and worthy friend.

Cast. From whom ?

Vin. The duke's son.

Cast. Receive that. [A Box o'the Ear to her Brother.
I swore I would put anger in my hand.
And pass the virgin limits of myself,
To him that next appear'd in that base office,
To be his sin's attorney. Bear to him
That figure of my hate upon thy cheek,
Whilst 'tis yet hot, and I'll reward thee for't ;
Tell him my honor shall have a rich name,
When several harlots shall share his with shame.
Farewell ; commend me to him in my hate. [Exit.

Vin. It is the sweetest box
That e'er my nose came nigh ;
The finest draw-work cuff that e'er was worn ;
I'll love this blow for ever, and this cheek
Shall still hence-forward take the wall of this.
Oh, I'm above my tongue : most constant sister,
In this thou hast right honorable shown ;
Many are call'd by their honor, that have none.
Thou art approv'd for ever in my thoughts.
It is not in the power of words to taint thee.
And yet for the salvation of my oath,
As my resolve in that point, I will lay
Hard siege unto my mother, tho' I know,

A siren's tongue could not bewitch her so.
Mass, fitly here she comes ! thanks, my disguise—

The Mother enters.

Madam, good afternoon.

Moth. Y'are welcome, Sir.

Vin. The next of Italy commends him to you,
Our mighty expectation, the duke's son.

Moth. I think myself much honor'd, that he pleases
To rank me in his thoughts.

Vin. So may you, lady :
One that is like to be our sudden duke ;
The crown gapes for him every tide ; and then
Commander o'er us all, do but think on him,
How blest were they now that could pleasure him.
E'en with any thing almost !

Moth. Ay, save their honor.

Vin. Tut, 'one would let a little of that go too,
And ne'er be seen in't, ne'er be seen in't, mark you,
I'd wink and let it go.

Moth. Marry but I would not.

Vin. Marry but I would, I hope, I know you would too.
If you'd that blood now which you gave your daughter.
To her indeed 'tis, this wheel comes about ;
That man that must be all this, perhaps ere morning,
(For his white father does but mould away)
Has long desir'd your daughter.

Moth. Desir'd ?

Vin. Nay, but hear me,
He desires now, that will command hereafter ;
Therefore be wise, I speak as more a friend
To you than him ; madam, I know you're poor.
And (lack the day !) there are too many poor ladies already ;
Why should you wax the number ? 'tis despised.

Live wealthy, rightly understand the world,
And chide away that foolish country girl
Keeps company with your daughter, Chastity.

Moth. O fie, fie! the riches of the world cannot hire a mother

To such a most unnatural task.

Vin. No, but a thousand angels can;
Men have no power, angels must work you to't:
The world descends into such base-born evils,
That forty angels can make fourscore devils.
There will be fools still I perceive—still fool?
Would I be poor, dejected, scorn'd of greatness,
Swept from the palace, and see others' daughters
Spring with the dew of the court, having mine own
So much desir'd and lov'd—by the duke's son?
No, I would raise my state upon her breast,
And call her eyes my tenants; I would count
My yearly maintenance upon her cheeks;
Take coach upon her lip; and all her parts
Should keep men after men; and I would ride
In pleasure upon pleasure.

You took great pains for her, once when it was,
Let her requite it now, tho' it be but some;
You brought her forth, she may well bring you home.

Moth. O heavens! this o'ercomes me!

Vin. Not I hope already? (Aside.)

Moth. It is too strong for me; men know that know us,
We are so weak their words can overthrow us:
He touch'd me nearly, made my virtues bate,
When his tongue struck upon my poor estate. (Aside.)

Vin. I even quake to proceed, my spirit turns edge,
I fear me she's unmother'd, yet I'll venture. (Aside.)
What think you now, lady? speak, are you wiser?
What said advancement to you? thus it said,
The daughter's fall lifts up the mother's head:

Did it not Madam? but I'll swear it does
In many places; but this age fears no man,
'Tis no shame to be bad, because 'tis common.

Moth. Aye, that's the comfort on't.

Vin. The comfort on't!—

I keep the best for last. Can these persuade you
To forget heaven—and— (Offers her Money.)

Moth. Ay, these are they—

Vin. Oh!

Moth. That enchant our sex;
These are the means that govern our affections,—
That woman
Will not be troubled with the mother long,
That sees the comfortable shine of you:
I blush to think what for your sakes I'll do.

Vin. O suffering heaven! with thy invisible finger,
E'en at this instant turn the precious side
Of both mine eye-balls inward, not to see myself.
(Aside.)

Moth. Look you, Sir.

Vin. Hollo.

Moth. Let this thank your pains.

Vin. O you are a kind Madam.

Moth. I'll see how I can move.

Vin. Your words will sting.

Moth. If she be still chaste, I'll ne'er call her mine.

Vin. Spoke truer than you meant it!

Moth. Daughter Castiza —

Cast. (within.) Madam!

Vin. O she's yonder, meet her.

Troops of celestial soldiers guard her heart.
Your dam has devils enough to take her part.

(Castiza returns.)

Cast. Madam, what makes yon evil-offic'd man
In presence of you?

Moth. Why?

Cast. He lately brought
Immodest writing sent from the duke's son,
To tempt me to dishonorable act.

Moth. Dishonorable act?—good honorable fool.
That wouldst be honest, 'cause thou wouldst be so,
Producing no one reason but thy will;
And it has a good report, prettily commended,
But pray by whom? poor people: ignorant people;
The better sort, I'm sure, cannot abide it.
And by what rule should we square out our lives,
But by our betters actions? oh, if thou knew'st
What 'twere to lose it, thou wouldst never keep it;
But there's a cold curse laid upon all maids,
Whilst others clip the sun, they clasp the shades.
Deny advancement! treasure! the duke's son!

Cast. I cry you mercy, lady, I mistook you;
Pray did you see my mother? which way went you?
Pray God I have not lost her.

Vin. Prettily put by. (Aside.)

Moth. Are you as proud to me, as coy to him?
Do you not know me now?

Cast. Why, are you she?
The world's so chang'd, one shape into another,
It is a wise child now that knows her mother.

Vin. Most right, i'faith. (Aside.)

Moth. I owe your cheek my hand
For that presumption now, but I'll forget it;
Come, you shall leave those childish 'haviours,
And understand your time. Fortunes flow to you.
What will you be a girl?
If all fear'd drowning that spy waves ashore,
Gold would grow rich, and all the merchants poor.

Cast. It is a pretty saying of a wicked one, but methinks now

It does not shew so well out of your mouth ;
Better in his.

Vin. Faith, bad enough in both,
Were I in earnest, as I'll seem no less. (Aside.)

I wonder, lady, your own mother's words
Cannot be taken, nor stand in full force.

'Tis honesty you urge ; what's honesty ?

'Tis but heaven's beggar ; and what woman is so foolish to keep honesty,

And be not able to keep herself ? no,

Times are grown wiser, and will keep less charge.

A maid that has small portion now, intends

To break up house, and live upon her friends.

How blest are you ! you have happiness alone ;

Others must fall to thousands, you to one ;

Sufficient in himself to make your forehead

Dazzle the world with jewels, and petitionary people

Start at your presence.

O think upon the pleasure of the palace !

Secured ease and state ! the stirring meats,

Ready to move out of the dishes, that e'en now quicken
when they're eaten !

Banquets abroad by torch-light ! music ! sports !

Bare-headed vassals, that had ne'er the fortune

To keep on their own hats, but let horns wear 'em !

Nine coaches waiting—hurry, hurry, hurry—

Cast. Aye, to the devil—

Vin. Aye, to the devil ! to the duke, by my faith.

Moth. Aye, to the duke. Daughter, you'd scorn to think

Of the devil, and you were there once.

Vin. Who'd sit at home in a neglected room,

Dealing her short-liv'd beauty to the pictures,

That are as useless as old men, when those

Poorer in face and fortune than herself
Walk with a hundred acres on their backs,
Fair meadows cut into green fore-parts?—
Fair trees, those comely foretops of the field,
Are cut to maintain head-tires :—much untold—
All thrives but chastity, she lies cold.

Nay, shall I come nearer to you? mark but this :
Why are there so few honest women, but because 'tis the poorer profession? that's accounted best, that's best follow'd; least in trade, least in fashion; and that's not honesty, believe it; and do but note the low and dejected price of it:

Lose but a pearl, we search and cannot brook it :
But that once gone, who is so mad to look it

Moth. Troth, he says true.

Cast. False: I defy you both.

I have endur'd you with an ear of fire;
Your tongues have struck hot irons on my face.
Mother, come from that poisonous woman there.

Moth. Where?

Cast. Do you not see her? she's too inward then.
Slave, perish in thy office. You heavens please,
Henceforth to make the mother a disease,
Which first begins with me; yet I've outgone you.

[Exit.

Vin. O angels, clap your wings upon the skies,
And give this virgin crystal plaudities! (Aside.)

Moth. Peevish, coy, foolish!—but return this answer,
My lord shall be most welcome, when his pleasure
Conducts him this way; I will sway mine own;
Women with women can work best alone. [Exit.

Vin. Forgive me, heaven, to call my mother wicked!
O lessen not my days upon the earth.
I cannot honor her.

The Brothers, VINDICI and HIPPOLITO, threaten their Mother with Death for consenting to the Dishonor of their Sister.

Vin. O thou for whom no name is bad enough.

Moth. What mean my sons? what, will you murder me?

Vin. Wicked unnatural parent!

Hip. Friend of women!

Moth. Oh! are sons turn'd monsters! help!

Vin. In vain.

Moth. Are you so barbarous to set iron nipples
Upon the breast that gave you suck?

Vin. That breast

Is turn'd to quarled poison.

Moth. Cut not your days for't. Am not I your mother?

Vin. Thou dost usurp that title now by fraud,
For in that shell of mother breeds a bawd.

Moth. A bawd! O name far loathsomer than hell!

Hip. It should be so, knew'st thou thy office well.

Moth. I hate it.

Vin. Ah, is it possible, you powers on high,
That women should dissemble when they die?

Moth. Dissemble!

Vin. Did not the duke's son direct
A fellow of the world's condition hither,
That did corrupt all that was good in thee?
Made thee uncivilly forget thyself,
And work our sister to his purpose?

Moth. Who I?

That had been monstrous. I defy that man
For any such intent. None lives so pure,
But shall be soil'd with slander.
Good son, believe it not.

Vin. Oh, I'm in doubt
Whether I am myself or no—
Stay, let me look again upon this face.
Who shall be saved when mothers have no grace?

(Resumes his Disguise.)

Hip. 'Twould make one half despair.

Vin. I was the man.

Defy me now, let's see, do't modestly.

Moth. O hell unto my soul !

Vin. In that disguise, I, sent from the duke's son,
Tried you, and found you base metal,
As any villain might have done.

Moth. O no,

No tongue but yours could have bewitch'd me so.

Vin. O nimble in damnation, quick in turn !
There is no devil could strike fire so soon.
I am confuted in a word.

Moth. Oh sons,

Forgive me, to myself I'll prove more true ;
You that should honor me, I kneel to you.

Vin. A mother to give aim to her own daughter !

Hip. True, brother ; how far beyond nature 'tis,
Though many mothers do it.

Vin. Nay, and you draw tears once, go you to bed.
Wet will make iron blush and change to red.
Brother it rains, 'twill spoil your dagger, house it.

Hip. 'Tis done.

Vin. I'faith 'tis a sweet shower, it does much good.
The fruitful grounds and meadows of her soul
Have been long dry : pour down, thou blessed dew.
Rise, mother ; troth this shower has made you higher.

Moth. O you heavens !

Take this infectious spot out of my soul ;
I'll rince it in seven waters of mine eyes.
Make my tears salt enough to taste of grace.

To weep is to our sex naturally given ;
But to weep truly, that's a gift from heaven.

Vin. Nay, I'll kiss you now. Kiss her, brother :
Let's marry her to our souls, wherein's no lust,
And honorably love her.

Hip. Let it be.

Vin. For honest women are so seld and rare,
'Tis good to cherish those poor few that are.
O you of easy wax ! do but imagine
Now the disease has left you, how leproously
That office would have cling'd unto your forehead !
All mothers that had any graceful hue,
Would have worn masks to hide their face at you.
It would have grown to this, at your foul name
Green-color'd maids would have turn'd red with shame.

Hip. And then our sister, full of hire and baseness—

Vin. There had been boiling lead again !
The duke's son's great concubine !
A drab of state, a cloth-o'-silver slut,
To have her train borne up, and her soul trail in the dirt !

Hip. To be great, miserable ; to be rich, eternally wretched.

Vin. O common madness !

Ask but the thriving'st harlot in cold blood,
She'd give the world to make her honor good.
Perhaps you'll say, but only to the duke's son
In private ; why, she first begins with one
Who afterwards to thousands proves a whore :
Break ice in one place, it will crack in more.

Moth. Most certainly applied.

Hip. O brother, you forget our business.

Vin. And well remember'd ; joy's a subtil elf ;
I think man's happiest when he forgets himself.
Farewell, once dry, now holy-water'd mead ;
Our hearts wear feathers, that before wore lead.

Moth. I'll give you this, that one I never knew
Plead better for, and 'gainst the devil than you.

Vin. You make me proud on't.

Hip. Commend us in all virtue to our sister.

Vin. Ay, for the love of heaven, to that true maid.

Moth. With my best words.

Vin. Why that was motherly said *.

Castiza seems to consent to her Mother's wicked motion.

CASTIZA. MOTHER.

Cast. Now, mother, you have wrought with me so strongly,

That, what for my advancement, as to calm
The trouble of your tongue, I am content.

Moth. Content, to what?

Cast. To do as you have wish'd me ;
To prostitute my breast to the duke's son,
And put myself to common usury.

Moth. I hope you will not so.

Cast. Hope you I will not ?
That's not the hope you look to be saved in.

Moth. Truth, but it is,

Cast. Do not deceive yourself.
I am as you, e'en out of marble wrought.
What would you now : are ye not pleas'd yet with me ?
You shall not wish me to be more lascivious,
Than I intend to be.

Moth. Strike not me cold.

* The reality and life of this Dialogue passes any scenical illusion I ever felt. I never read it but my ears tingle, and I feel a hot blush spread my cheeks, as if I were presently about to "proclaim" some such "malefactions" of myself, as the Brothers here rebuke in their unnatural parent; in words more keen and dagger-like than those which Hamlet speaks to his mother. Such power has the passion of shame truly personated, not only to "strike guilty creatures unto the soul" but to "appall" even those that are "free."

Cast. How often have you charg'd me on your blessing
To be a cursed woman ! when you knew
Your blessing had no force to make me lewd,
You laid your curse upon me ; that did more :
The mother's curse is heavy ; where that fights,
Sons set in storm and daughters lose their lights.

Moth. Good child, dear maid, if there be any spark
Of heavenly intellectual light within thee,
O let my breath revive it to a flame.
Put not all out with woman's wilful follies.
I am recover'd of that foul disease
That haunts too many mothers ; kind, forgive me,
Make me not sick in health ! if then
My words prevail'd, when they were wickedness,
How much more now, when they are just and good !

Cast. I wonder what you mean : are not you she,
For whose infect persuasions, I could scarce
Kneel out my prayers ; and had much ado,
In three hours' reading, to untwist so much
Of the black serpent, as you wound about me !

Moth. 'Tis unfruitful held, tedious, to repeat what's past.
I'm now your present mother.

Cast. Pish, now 'tis too late.

Moth. Bethink again, thou know'st not what thou say'st.

Cast. No ! deny advancement ! treasure ! the duke's son !

Moth. O see, I spoke those words, and now they poison me.

What will the deed do then ?

Advancement ! true ; as high as shame can pitch !

For treasure : who e'er knew a Harlot rich ?

Or could build by the purchase of her sin

An hospital to keep their bastards in ?

The duke's son ! oh ; when women are young courtiers,

They are sure to be old beggars.
 To know the miseries most harlots taste,
 Thou'dst wish thyself unborn when thou'rt unchaste.

Cast. O mother, let me twine about your neck,
 And kiss you till my soul melt on your lips;
 I did but this to try you.

Moth. O speak truth.

Cast. Indeed I did not; for no tongue hath force
 To alter me from honest:
 If maidens would, men's words could have no power;
 A virgin's honor is a chrystal tower,
 Which being weak is guarded with good spirits;
 Until she basely yields, no ill inherits.

Moth. O happy child! faith, and thy birth, hath saved me.
 'Mongst thousand daughters, happiest of all others;
 Buy thou a glass for maids, and I for mothers.

Evil Report after Death.

What is it to have
 A flattering false insculption on a tomb,
 And in men's hearts reproach? the 'bowel'd corps
 May be sear'd in, but (with free tongue I speak)
 The faults of great men through their sear-clothes break.

Bastards.

Oh what a grief 'tis that a man should live
 But once in the world, and then to live a Bastard!
 The curse of the womb, the thief of nature,
 Begot against the seventh commandment,
 Half damn'd in the conception by the justice
 Of that unbribed everlasting law.

Too nice respects in Courtship.

Ceremony has made many fools.
 It is as easy way unto a duchess

As to a hatted dame, if her love answer :
But that by timorous honors, pale respects,
Idle degrees of fear, men make their ways
Hard of themselves.

THE DEVIL'S LAW CASE; OR, WHEN WOMEN GO TO LAW, THE DEVIL IS FULL OF BUSINESS. A TRAGI-
COMEDY. BY JOHN WEBSTER.

CONTARINO challenges ERCOLE to fight with him for the possession of JOLENTA, whom they both love.

Con. Sir ; my love to you has proclaim'd you one,
Whose word was still led by a noble thought,
And that thought follow'd by as fair a deed :
Deceive not that opinion : we were students
At Padua together, and have long
To the world's eye shewn like friends.
Was it hearty on your part to me ?

Erc. Unfained.

Con. You are false
To the good thought I held of you ; and now,
Join the worst part of man to you, your malice,
To uphold that falsehood. Sacred innocence
Is fled your bosom. Signior, I must tell you ;
To draw the picture of unkindness truly,
Is to express two that have dearly loved,
And fall'n at variance. 'Tis a wonder to me,
Knowing my interest in the fair Jolenta,
That you should love her.

Erc. Compare her beauty and my youth together,
And you will find the fair effects of love
No miracle at all.

Con. Yes, it will prove
Prodigious to you : I must stay your voyage.

Erc. Your warrant must be mighty.

Con. Tis a seal
From heaven to do it, since you'd ravish from me
What's there intitled mine ; and yet I vow,
By the essential front of spotless virtue,
I have compassion of both our youths :
To approve which, I have not tane the way
Like an Italian, to cut your throat
By practice that had giv'n you now for dead
And never frown'd upon you.
You must fight with me.

Erc. I will, Sir.

Con. And instantly.

Erc. I will haste before you. Point whither.

Con. Why, you speak nobly ; and, for this fair dealing,
Were the rich jewel (which we vary for)
A thing to be divided, by my life,
I would be well content to give you half :
But since 'tis vain to think we can be friends,
Tis needful one of us be tane away
From being the other's enemy.

Erc. Yet, methinks,
This looks not like a quarrel.

Con. Not a quarrel !

Erc. You have not apparelled your fury well ;
It goes too plain, like a scholar.

Con. It is an ornament,
Makes it more terrible ; and you shall find it,
A weighty injury, and attended on
By discreet valour ; because I do not strike you,
Or give you the lie (such foul preparatives
Would shew like the stale injury of wine)
I reserve my rage to sit on my sword's point ;

Which a great quantity of your best blood
Can't satisfy.

Erc. You promise well to yourself.
Shall's have no seconds?

Con. None, for fear of prevention.

Erc. The length of our weapons——

Con. We'll fit them by the way :
So whether our time calls us to live or die,
Let us do both like noble gentlemen,
And true Italians.

Erc. For that, let me embrace you.

Con. Methinks, being an Italian, I trust you
To come somewhat too near me :
But your jealousy gave that embrace, to try
If I were arm'd ; did it not ?

Erc. No, believe me.

I take your heart to be sufficient proof
Without a privy coat : and, for my part,
A taffaty is all the shirt of mail
I am arm'd with.

Con. You deal equally*.

Sitting for a Picture.

Must you have my Picture ?
You will enjoin me to a strange punishment.
With what a compell'd face a woman sits
While she is drawing ! I have noted divers
Either to fain smiles, or suck in the lips,
To have a little mouth ; ruffle the cheeks,
To have the dimple seen ; and so disorder
The face with affectation, at next sitting

* I have selected this scene as the model of a well-managed and gentlemanlike difference.

It has not been the same : I have known others
Have lost the entire fashion of their face
In half an hour's sitting—in hot weather—
The painting on their face has been so mellow,
They have left the poor man harder work by half
To mend the copy he wrought by : But indeed,
If ever I would have mine drawn to the life,
I would have a painter steal it at such a time
I were devoutly kneeling at my prayers ;
There is then a heavenly beauty in't, the soul
Moves in the superficies.

Honorable Employment.

Oh, my lord, lie not idle :
The chiefest action for a man of great spirit
Is never to be out of action. We should think ;
The soul was never put into the body,
Which has so many rare and curious pieces
Of mathematical motion, to stand still.
Virtue is ever sowing of her seeds :
In the trenches for the soldier ; in the wakeful study
For the scholar ; in the furrows of the sea
For men of our profession : of all which Arise and spring up honor.

Selling of Land.

I could wish
That noblemen would ever live in the country,
Rather than make their visits up to the city
About such business. Noble houses
Have no such goodly prospects any way
As into their own land : the decay of that (Next to their begging church-land) is a ruin
Worth all men's pity.

Dirge in a Funeral Pageant.

All the flowers of the spring
Meet to perfume our burying :
These have but their growing prime,
And man does flourish but his time.
Survey our progress from our birth ;
We are set, we grow, we turn to earth.
Courts adieu, and all delights,
All bewitching appetites.
Sweetest breath and clearest eye
(Like perfumes) go out and die ;
And consequently this is done,
As shadows wait upon the sun.
Vain the ambition of kings,
Who seek by trophies and dead things
To leave a living name behind,
And weave but nets to catch the wind.

APPIUS AND VIRGINIA: A TRAGEDY. BY JOHN WEBSTER.

Appius, the Roman Decemvir, not being able to corrupt the Innocence of Virginia, Daughter to Virginius the Roman General, and newly married to Icilius a young and noble Gentleman; to get possession of her person, suborns one Clodius to claim her as the Daughter of a deceased Bond-woman of his, on the testimony of certain forged writings, pretended to be the Deposition of that Woman, on her deathbed, confessing that the Child had been spuriously passed upon Virginius for his own: the Cause is tried at Rome before Appius.

APPIUS. VIRGINIA. VIRGINIUS, her Father. ICILIUS, her Husband. Senators of Rome. Nurse, and other Witnesses.

Virginius. My Lords, believe not this spruce orator*.
Had I but fee'd him first, he would have told
As smooth a tale on our side.

Appius. Give us leave.

Virginius. He deals in formal glosses, cunning shows,
And cares not greatly which way the case goes.
Examine I beseech you this old woman,
Who is the truest witness of her birth.

Appius. Soft you, is she your only witness?

Virginius. She is, my Lord.

Appius. Why, is it possible,
Such a great Lady in her time of child birth
Should have no other witness but a nurse?

Virginius. For aught I know, the rest are dead, my Lord.

* Counsel for Clodius.

Appius. Dead? no, my Lord, belike they were of counsel

With your deceased Lady, and so shamed
Twice to give color to so vile an act.
Thou nurse, observe me, thy offence already
Doth merit punishment above our censure;
Pull not more whips upon thee.

Nurse. I defy your whips, my Lord.

Appius. Command her silence, Lictors.

Virginius. O injustice! you frown away my witness.
Is this law, is this uprightness?

Appius. Have you view'd the writings?
This is a trick to make our slaves our heirs
Beyond prevention.

Virginius. Appius, wilt thou hear me?
You have slander'd a sweet Lady that now sleeps
In a most noble monument. Observe me;
I would have tane her simple word to gage
Before his soul or thine.

Appius. That makes thee wretched.
Old man, I am sorry for thee; that thy love
By custom is grown natural, which by nature
Should be an absolute lothing. Note the sparrow;
That having hatch'd a cuckow, when it sees
Her brood a monster to her proper kind,
Forsakes it, and with more fear shuns the nest
Then she had care i' the spring to have it drest.
Here's witness, most sufficient witness.
Think you, my Lord, our laws are writ in snow,
And that your breath can melt them?

Virginius. No, my Lord,
We have not such hot livers: mark you that?

Virginia. Remember yet the gods, O Appius;
Who have no part in this. Thy violent lust
Shall like the biting of th' invenom'd aspick,

Steal thee to hell. So subtle are thy evils ;
In life they'll seem good angels, in death devils.

Appius. Observe you not this scandal ?

Icilius. Sir, tis none.

I'll shew thy letters full of violent lust
Sent to this Lady.

Appius. My Lords, these are but dilatory shifts.
Sirrah, I know you to the very heart,
And I'll observe you.

Icilius. Do, but do it with justice.
Clear thyself first, O Appius, ere thou judge
Our imperfections rashly, for we wot
The office of a justice is perverted quite
When one thief hangs another.

1. Senator. You are too bold.

Appius. Lictors, take charge of him.

Icilius. 'Tis very good.

Will no man view these papers*, what not one ?
Jove, thou hast found a rival upon earth,
His nod strikes all men dumb.
My duty to you.

The ass that carried Isis on his back,
Thought that the superstitious people kneel'd
To give his dulness humble reverence.
If thou thinkst so, proud judge, I let thee see
I bend low to thy gown but not to thee.

Virginus. There's one in hold already. Noble youth ;

Fetters grace one, being worn for speaking truth.
I'll lie with thee, I swear, though in a dungeon.
The injuries you do us we shall pardon ;
But it is just, the wrongs which we forgive
The gods are charg'd therewith to see revenged.

* The Forgery.

Appius. Your madness wrongs you : by my soul, I love you.

Virginus. Thy soul !

O thy opinion, old Pythagoras :

Whither, O whither should thy black soul fly,

Into what ravenous bird, or beast most vile ?

Only into a weeping crocodile.

Love me !

Thou lov'st me, Appius, as the earth loves rain,

Only to swallow it.

Appius. Know you the place you stand in ?

Virginus. I'll speak freely.

Good men, too much trusting their innocence,

Do not betake them to that just defence

Which gods and nature gave them ; but even wink

In the black tempest, and so fondly sink.

Appius. Let us proceed to sentence.

Virginus. Ere you speak,

One parting farewell let me borrow of you

To take of my Virginia.

Appius. Pray, take your course.

Virginus. Farewell, my sweet Virginia : never, never Shall I taste fruit of the most blessed hope

I had in thee. Let me forget the thought

Of thy most pretty infancy ; when first,

Returning from the wars, I took delight

To rock thee in my target ; when my girl

Would kiss her father in his burganet

Of glittering steel hung 'bout his armed neck,

And, viewing the bright metal, smile to see

Another fair Virginia smile on thee ;

When I first taught thee how to go, to speak ;

And (when my wounds have smarted) I have sung,

With an unskilful yet a willing voice,

To bring my girl asleep. O my Virginia ;

When we begun to be, begun our woes ;
Increasing still, as dying life still grows.
Thus I surrender her into the court
Of all the gods.

[Kills her.

And see, proud Appius, see ;
Although not justly, I have made her free.
And if thy lust with this act be not fed,
Bury her in thy bowels now she's dead.

THE TRAGEDY OF THE DUCHESS OF MALFY.
BY JOHN WEBSTER.

The Duchess of Malfy marries Antonio, her Steward.

DUCHESS. CARIOLA, her Maid.

Duchess. Is Antonio come ?

Cariola. He attends you.

Duch. Good dear soul,

Leave me : but place thyself behind the arras,
Where thou mayst overhear us : wish me good speed,
For I am going into a wilderness,
Where I shall find nor path nor friendly clue
To be my guide.

[Cariola withdraws.

ANTONIO enters.

I sent for you, sit down.

Take pen and ink and write. Are you ready ?

Ant. Yes.

Duch. What did I say ?

Ant. That I should write somewhat.

Duch. Oh, I remember.

After these triumphs and this large expence

It's fit, like thrifty husbands, we enquire
What's laid up for to-morrow.

Ant. So please your beauteous excellence.

Duch. Beauteous indeed ! I thank you ; I look young
For your sake. You have tane my cares upon you.

Ant. I'll fetch your grace the particulars of your revenue and expence.

Duch. Oh, you're an upright treasurer : but you mistook,

For when I said I meant to make enquiry
What's laid up for to-morrow, I did mean
What's laid up yonder for me.

Ant. Where ?

Duch. In heaven.

I'm making my will (as 'tis fit Princes should,)
In perfect memory ; and I pray, sir, tell me,
Were not one better make it smiling, thus,
Than in deep groans and terrible ghastly looks,
As if the gifts we parted with procur'd
That violent distraction ?

Ant. Oh, much better.

Duch. If I had a husband now, this care were quit.
But I intend to make you overseer ;
What good deed shall we first remember, say ?

Ant. Begin with that first good deed, began in the world

After man's creation, the sacrament of marriage.
I'd have you first provide for a good husband ;
Give him all.

Duch. All !

Ant. Yes, your excellent self.

Duch. In a winding sheet ?

Ant. In a couple.

Duch. St. Winifred, that were a strange will.

Ant. 'Twere stranger if there were no will in you
To marry again.

Duch. What do you think of marriage ?

Ant. I take it, as those that deny purgatory ;
It locally contains or heaven or hell,
There's no third place in 't.

Duch. How do you affect it ?

Ant. My banishment, feeding my melancholy,
Would often reason thus.

Duch. Pray, let us hear it.

Ant. Say a man never marry, nor have children,
What takes that from him ? only the bare name
Of being a father, or the weak delight
To see the little wanton ride a cock-horse
Upon a painted stick, or hear him chatter
Like a taught starling.

Duch. Fie, fie, what's all this ?
One of your eyes is blood-shot ; use my Ring to 't.
They say 'tis very sovran, 'twas my wedding ring,
And I did vow never to part with it
But to my second husband.

Ant. You have parted with it now.

Duch. Yes, to help your eye-sight.

Ant. You have made me stark blind.

Duch. How ?

Ant. There is a saucy and ambitious devil,
Is dancing in this circle.

Duch. Remove him.

Ant. How ?

Duch. There needs small conjuration, when your finger
May do it ; thus : is it fit ?

(She puts the Ring on his finger.)

Ant. What said you ?

(He kneels.)

Duch. Sir !

This goodly roof of yours is too low built ;
I cannot stand upright in't nor discourse,
Without I raise it higher : raise yourself ;
Or, if you please my hand to help you : so.

Ant. Ambition, Madam, is a great man's madness,
That is not kept in chains and close-pent rooms,
But in fair lightsome lodgings, and is girt
With the wild noise of prattling visitants,
Which makes it lunatick beyond all cure.
Conceive not I'm so stupid, but I aim
Whereto your favors tend : but he's a fool
That, being a cold, would thrust his hands in the fire
To warm them.

Duch. So, now the ground's broke,
You may discover what a wealthy mine
I make you Lord of.

Ant. Oh my unworthiness.

Duch. You were ill to sell yourself.
This darkning of your worth is not like that
Which tradesmen use in the city ; their false lights
Are to rid bad wares off : and I must tell you,
If you will know where breathes a complete man
(I speak it without flattery) turn your eyes,
And progress through yourself.

Ant. Were there nor heaven nor hell,
I should be honest : I have long serv'd virtue,
And never tane wages of her.—

Duch. Now she pays it.—
The misery of us that are born great !
We are forc'd to woo, because none dare woo us :
And as a tyrant doubles with his words,
And fearfully equivocates ; so we
Are forced to express our violent passions
In riddles, and in dreams, and leave the path
Of simple virtue, which was never made

To seem the thing it is not. Go, go, brag
 You have left me heartless ; mine is in your bosom ;
 I hope 'twill multiply love there : you do tremble :
 Make not your heart so dead a piece of flesh,
 To fear more than to love me ; Sir, be confident.
 What is it distracts you ? This is flesh and blood, Sir,
 'Tis not the figure cut in alabaster,
 Kneels at my husband's tomb. Awake, awake, man.
 I do here put off all vain ceremony,
 And only do appear to you a young widow :
 I use but half a blush in't.

Ant. Truth speak for me ;
 I will remain the constant sanctuary
 Of your good name.

Duch. I thank you, gentle love ;
 And 'cause you shall not come to me in debt
 (Being now my Steward) here upon your lips
 I sign your quietus est : this you should have begg'd now
 I have seen children oft eat sweetmeats thus,
 As fearful to devour them too soon.

Ant. But, for your brothers—

Duch. Do not think of them.
 All discord, without this circumference,
 Is only to be pitied, and not fear'd :
 Yet, should they know it, time will easily
 Scatter the tempest.

Ant. These words should be mine,
 And all the parts you have spoke ; if some part of it
 Would not have savour'd flattery.

(Cariola comes forward.)

Duch. Kneel.

Ant. Hah !

Duch. Be not amaz'd ; this woman's of my council.
 I have heard lawyers say, a contract in a chamber
Per verba præsenti is absolute marriage ;

Bless heaven this sacred Gordian, which let violence
Never untwine.

Ant. And may our sweet affections, like the spheres,
Be still in motion.

Duch. Quickening, and make
The like soft music.

Car. Whether the spirit of greatness, or of woman,
Reign most in her, I know not ; but it shews
A fearful madness : I owe her much of pity.

The Duchess's marriage with Antonio being discovered, her brother Ferdinand shuts her up in a Prison, and torments her with various trials of studied Cruelty. By his command Bosola, the instrument of his Devices, shews her the Bodies of her Husband and Children counterfeited in Wax, as dead.

Bos. He doth present you this sad spectacle,
That now you know directly they are dead,
Hereafter you may wisely cease to grieve
For that which cannot be recovered.

Duch. There is not between heaven and earth one wish
I stay for after this : it wastes me more
Than were't my picture fashion'd out of wax,
Stuck with a magical needle, and then buried
In some foul dunghill ; and yond's an excellent property
For a tyrant, which I would account mercy.

Bos. What's that ?

Duch. If they would bind me to that lifeless trunk,
And let me freeze to death.

Bos. Come, you must live.
Leave this vain sorrow.
Things being at the worst begin to mend.
The Bee,
When he hath shot his sting into your hand,
May then play with your eye-lid.

Duch. Good comfortable fellow,

Persuade a wretch that's broke upon the wheel
 To have all his bones new set ; intreat him live
 To be executed again. Who must dispatch me ?
 I account this world a tedious theatre,
 For I do play a part in't 'gainst my will.

Bos. Come, be of comfort, I will save your life.

Duch. Indeed I have not leisure to attend
 So small a business.

I will go pray.—No : I'll go curse.

Bos. O fie.

Duch. I could curse the stars :

Bos. O fearful.

Duch. And those three smiling seasons of the year
 Into a Russian winter : nay, the world
 To its first chaos.
 Plagues (that make lanes through largest families)
 Consume them*.

Let them like tyrants

Ne'er be remember'd but for the ill they've done.

Let all the zealous prayers of mortified
 Churchmen forget them.

Let heaven a little while cease crowning martyrs,
 To punish them : go, howl them this ; and say, I long to bleed :

It is some mercy when men kill with speed. [Exit.

FERDINAND enters.

Ferd. Excellent, as I would wish : she's plagued in art.
 These presentations are but fram'd in wax,
 By the curious master in that quality
 Vincentio Lauriola, and she takes them
 For true substantial bodies.

Bos. Why do you do this ?

* Her Brothers.

Ferd. To bring her to despair.

Bos. Faith, end here ;

And go no further in your cruelty.

Send her a penitential garment to put on
Next to her delicate skin, and furnish her
With beads and prayer books.

Ferd. Damn her ; that body of her's,
While that my blood ran pure in't, was more worth
Than that, which thou wouldst comfort, call'd a soul.
I'll send her masques of common courtezans,
Have her meat served up by bawds and ruffians,
And ('cause she'll need be mad) I am resolv'd
To remove forth the common hospital
All the mad folk, and place them near her lodging:
There let 'em practise together, sing, and dance,
And act their gambols to the full o' the moon.

She is kept waking with noises of Madmen : and, at last, is strangled by common Executioners.

DUCHESS. CARIOLA.

Duch. What hideous noise was that ?

Car. 'Tis the wild consort
Of madmen, Lady : which your tyrant brother
Hath placed about your lodging : this tyranny
I think was never practis'd till this hour.

Duch. Indeed I thank him ; nothing but noise and folly
Can keep me in my right wits, whereas reason
And silence make me stark mad ; sit down,
Discourse to me some dismal tragedy.

Car. O 'twill increase your melancholy.

Duch. Thou art deceived.
To hear of greater grief would lessen mine.
This is a prison ?

Car. Yes : but thou shalt live
To shake this durance off.

Duch. Thou art a fool.
The Robin-red-breast and the Nightingale
Never live long in cages.

Car. Pray, dry your eyes.
What think you of, Madam ?

Duch. Of nothing :
When I muse thus, I sleep.

Car. Like a madman, with your eyes open ?

Duch. Dost thou think we shall know one another
In the other world ?

Car. Yes, out of question.

Duch. O that it were possible we might
But hold some two days conference with the dead,
From them I should learn somewhat I am sure
I never shall know here. I'll tell thee a miracle ;
I am not mad yet, to my cause of sorrow.
Th' heaven o'er my head seems made of molten brass,
The earth of flaming sulphur, yet I am not mad :
I am acquainted with sad misery,
As the tann'd galley-slave is with his oar ;
Necessity makes me suffer constantly,
And custom makes it easy. Who do I look like now ?

Car. Like to your picture in the gallery ;
A deal of life in show, but none in practice :
Or rather, like some reverend monument
Whose ruins are even pitied.

Duch. Very proper :
And Fortune seems only to have her eyesight,
To behold my tragedy : how now,
What noise is that ?

A Servant enters.

Serv. I am come to tell you,

Your brother hath intended you some sport.
A great physician when the Pope was sick
Of a deep melancholy, presented him
With several sorts of madmen, which wild object
(Being full of change and sport) forc'd him to laugh,
And so th' imposthume broke : the selfsame cure
The duke intends on you.

Duch. Let them come in.

*Here follows a Dance of sundry sorts of Madmen, with Music answerable thereto : after which Bosola
(like an old Man) enters.*

Duch. Is he mad too ?

Bos. I am come to make thy tomb.

Duch. Ha : my tomb ?

Thou speak'st as if I lay upon my deathbed :
Gasping for breath : dost thou perceive me sick ?

Bos. Yes, and the more dangerously, since thy sickness is insensible.

Duch. Thou art not mad sure : dost know me ?

Bos. Yes.

Duch. Who am I ?

Bos. Thou art a box of wormseed ; at best but a salvatory of green mummy. What's this flesh ? a little crudded milk, fantastical puff-paste. Our bodies are weaker than those paper-prisons boys use to keep flies in, more contemptible ; since ours is to preserve earthworms. Didst thou ever see a lark in a cage ? Such is the soul in the body : this world is like her little turf of grass ; and the heaven o'er our heads like her looking glass, only gives us a miserable knowledge of the small compass of our prison.

Duch. Am not I thy duchess ?

Bos. Thou art some great woman sure, for riot begins to sit on thy forehead (clad in grey hairs) twenty years sooner than on a merry milk-maid's. Thou sleepest worse, than if a mouse should be forced to take up her lodging in a cat's ear : a little infant that breeds its teeth, should it lie with thee would cry out, as if thou wert the more unquiet bedfellow.

Duch. I am Duchess of Malfy still.

Bos. That makes thy sleeps so broken :
Glories, like glow-worms, afar off shine bright ;
But, look'd too near, have neither heat nor light.

Duch. Thou art very plain.

Bos. My trade is to flatter the dead, not the living.
I am a tomb-maker.

Duch. And thou comest to make my tomb ?

Bos. Yes.

Duch. Let me be a little merry.
Of what stuff wilt thou make it ?

Bos. Nay, resolve me first ; of what fashion ?

Duch. Why, do we grow fantastical in our death bed ?
Do we affect fashion in the grave ?

Bos. Most ambitiously. Princes' images on their tombs do not lie as they were wont, seeming to pray up to heaven : but with their hands under their cheeks (as if they died of the tooth-ache :) they are not carved with their eyes fixed upon the stars ; but, as their minds were wholly bent upon the world, the self same way they seem to turn their faces.

Duch. Let me know fully therefore the effect
Of this thy dismal preparation,
This talk, fit for a charnel.

Bos. Now I shall.

(A Coffin, Cords, and a Bell, produced.)

Here is a present from your princely brothers ;
And may it arrive welcome, for it brings
Last benefit, last sorrow.

Duch. Let me see it,
I have so much obedience in my blood,
I wish it in their veins to do them good.

Bos. This is your last presence chamber.

Car. O my sweet lady.

Duch. Peace, it affrights not me.

Bos. I am the common bell-man,
That usually is sent to condemn'd persons
The night before they suffer.

Duch. Even now thou saidst,
Thou wast a tomb-maker.

Bos. 'Twas to bring you
By degrees to mortification : Listen.

Dirge.

Hark, now every thing is still ;
This screech-owl, and the whistler shrill,
Call upon our dame aloud,
And bid her quickly d'on her shroud.
Much you had of land and rent ;
Your length in clay's now competent.
A long war disturb'd your mind ;
Here your perfect peace is sign'd.
Of what is 't fools make such vain keeping ?
Sin, their conception ; their birth, weeping :
Their life, a general mist of error,
Their death, a hideous storm of terror.
Strew your hair with powders sweet,
D'on clean linen, bathe your feet :
And (the foul fiend more to check)
A crucifix let bless your neck.

'Tis now full tide 'tween night and day :
End your groan, and come away.

Car. Hence, villains, tyrants, murderers : alas !
What will you do with my lady ? Call for help.

Duch. To whom ; to our next neighbours ? They are mad folks.

Farewell, Cariola.

I pray thee look thou giv'st my little boy
Some syrup for his cold ; and let the girl
Say her pray'rs ere she sleep.—Now what you please ;
What death ?

Bos. Strangling. Here are your executioners.

Duch. I forgive them
The apoplexy, catarrh, or cough o'the lungs,
Would do as much as they do.

Bos. Doth not death fright you ?

Duch. Who would be afraid on't,
Knowing to meet such excellent company
In th' other world.

Bos. Yet methinks,
The manner of your death should much afflict you ;
This cord should terrify you.

Duch. Not a whit.
What would it pleasure me to have my throat cut
With diamonds ? or to be smothered
With cassia ? or to be shot to death with pearls ?
I know, death hath ten thousand several doors
For men to take their exits : and 'tis found
They go on such strange geometrical hinges,
You may open them both ways : any way : (for heav'n sake)
So I were out of your whispering : tell my brothers,
That I perceive, death (now I'm well awake)
Best gift is, they can give or I can take.

I would fain put off my last woman's fault ;
 I'd not be tedious to you.
 Pull, and pull strongly, for your able strength
 Must pull down heaven upon me.
 Yet stay, heaven gates are not so highly arch'd
As princes' palaces ; they that enter there
Must go upon their knees. Come, violent death,
Serve for Mandragora to make me sleep.
 Go tell my brothers ; when I am laid out,
 They then may feed in quiet.

(They strangle her, kneeling.)

FERDINAND enters.

Ferd. Is she dead ?

Bos. She is what you would have her.
 Fix your eye here.

Ferd. Constantly.

Bos. Do you not weep ?
 Other sins only speak ; murder shrieks out.
 The element of water moistens the earth,
 But blood flies upwards and bedews the heavens.

Ferd. Cover her face : mine eyes dazzle : she died young.

Bos. I think not so : her infelicity
 Seem'd to have years too many.

Ferd. She and I were twins :
 And should I die this instant, I had lived
 Her time to a minute*.

* * * * *

* All the several parts of the dreadful apparatus with which the Duchess's death is ushered in, are not more remote from the conceptions of ordinary vengeance, than the strange character of suffering which they seem to bring upon their victims, is beyond the imagination of ordinary poets. As they are not like inflictions of this life, so her language seems not of this world. She has lived among horrors till she is become " native and endowed unto that element." She speaks

Single Life.

O fie upon this single life : forego it.
 We read how Daphne, for her peevish flight,
 Became a fruitless bay-tree : Syrinx turn'd
 To the pale empty reed : Anaxarate
 Was frozen into marble ; whereas those
 Which married, or prov'd kind unto their friends,
 Were, by a gracious influence, trans-shap'd
 Into the olive, pomgranate, mulberry ;
 Became flowers, precious stones, or eminent stars.

Fable.

Upon a time, Reputation, Love, and Death,
 Would travel o'er the world : and 'twas concluded
 That they should part, and take three several ways.
 Death told them, they should find him in great battles,
 Or cities plagued with plagues : Love gives them counsel
 To enquire for him 'mongst unambitious shepherds,
 Where dowries were not talk'd of ; and sometimes'
 'Mongst quiet kindred that had nothing left
 By their dead parents : stay, quoth Reputation ;
 Do not forsake me, for it is my nature,
 If once I part from any man I meet,
 I am never found again.

the dialect of despair, her tongue has a smatch of Tartarus and the souls in bale.—What are “Luke’s iron crown,” the brazen bull of Perillus, Procrustes’ bed, to the waxen images which counterfeit death, to the wild masque of madmen, the tomb-maker, the bell-man, the living person’s dirge, the mortification by degrees! To move a horror skillfully, to touch a soul to the quick, to lay upon fear as much as it can bear, to wean and weary a life till it is ready to drop and then step in with mortal instruments to take its last forfeit : this only a Webster can do. Writers of an inferior genius may “upon horror’s head horrors accumulate” but they cannot do this. They mistake quantity for quality, they “terrify babes with painted devils” but they know not how a soul is capable of being moved ; their terrors want dignity, their affrightments are without decorum.

Another.

A Salmon, as she swam unto the sea,
Met with a Dog-fish ; who encounters her
With his rough language ; why art thou so bold
To mix thyself with our high state of floods ?
Being no eminent courtier, but one
That for the calmest and fresh time of the year
Dost live in shallow rivers, rank'st thyself
With silly Smelts and Shrimps :—and darest thou
Pass by our Dog-ship without reverence ?
O (quoth the Salmon) sister, be at peace,
Thank Jupiter we both have past the net.
Our value never can be truly known,
Till in the fisher's basket we be shewn :
In the market then my price may be the higher ;
Even when I am nearest to the cook and fire.
So to great men the moral may be stretched :
Men oft are valued high when they are most wretched.

THE WHITE DEVIL: OR, VITTORIA COROMBONA,
A LADY OF VENICE. A TRAGEDY.

BY JOHN WEBSTER*.

The arraignment of Vittoria.—Paulo Giordano Ursini, Duke of Brachiano, for the love of Vittoria Corombona, a Venetian Lady, and at her suggestion, causes her Husband Camillo to be murdered. Suspicion falls upon Vittoria, who is tried at Rome, on a double Charge of Murder and Incontinence, in the presence of Cardinal Monticelso, Cousin to the deceased Camillo; Francisco de Medicis, Brother in Law to Brachiano; the Ambassadors of France, Spain, England, &c. As the arraignment is beginning, the Duke confidently enters the Court.

Mon. Forbear, my Lord, here is no place assign'd you :
This business, by his holiness, is left
To our examination.

* The Author's Dedication to this Play is so modest, yet so conscious of self-merit withal, he speaks so frankly of the deservings of others, and by implication insinuates his own deserts so ingenuously, that I cannot forbear inserting it, as a specimen how a man may praise himself gracefully and commend others without suspicion of envy.

“ To the Reader.

In publishing this Tragedy, I do but challenge to myself that liberty which other men have taken before me; not that I affect praise by it, for nos hæc novimus esse nihil; only since it was acted in so open and black a theatre, that it wanted (that which is the only grace and setting-out of a tragedy) a full and understanding auditory; and that, since that time, I have noted, most of the people that come to that play-house resemble those ignorant asses, (who, visiting stationers shops, their use is not to enquire for good books, but new books) I present it to the general view with this confidence,

*Nec rhoncos metues malignorum
Nec scombris tunicas dabis molestas.*

If it be objected this is no true dramatic poem, I shall easily confess it, non potes in nugas dicere plura meas, ipse ego quam dixi; willingly, and not ignorantly, have I faulted. For should a man present, to such an auditory, the most sententious tragedy that ever was written,

Bra. May it thrive with you.

Fra. A chair there for his lordship.

(Lays a rich gown under him.)

Bra. Forbear your kindness; an unbidden guest
Should travel as Dutch women go to church,
Bear their stool with them.

Mon. At your pleasure, Sir.

Stand to the table, gentlewoman.—Now, Signior,
Fall to your plea.

Lawyer. Domine judex converte oculos in hanc pestem mulierum corruptissimam.

Vit. What's he?

Fra. A lawyer, that pleads against you.

observing all the critical laws, as height of style, and gravity of person, enrich it with the sententious chorus, and, as it were, enliven death, in the passionate and weighty Nuntius: yet after all this divine rapture, O dura messorum ilia, the breath that comes from the uncapable multitude is able to poison it; and ere it be acted, let the author resolve to fix to every scene this of Horace:

— Hæc hodie porcis comedenda relinques.

To those who report I was a long time in finishing this Tragedy. I confess, I do not write with a goose-quill wing'd with two feathers; and if they will needs make it my fault, I must answer them with that of Euripides to Alcestides, a tragic writer: Alcestides objecting that Euripides had only, in three days, composed three verses, whereas himself had written three hundred: Thou tell'st truth (quoth he); but here's the difference, thine shall only be read for three days, whereas mine shall continue three ages.

Detraction is the sworn friend to ignorance: for mine own part, I have ever truly cherish'd my good opinion of other men's worthy labours, especially of that full and heighten'd stile of Master Chapman the labor'd and understanding works of Master Jonson, the no less worthy composures of the both worthily excellent Master Beaumont and Master Fletcher; and lastly, (without wrong last to be named,) the right happy and copious industry of Master Shakspeare, Master Decker, and Master Heywood, wishing what I write may be read by their light; protesting that, in the strength of mine own judgment, I know them so worthy, that tho' I rest silent in my own work, yet to most of theirs, I dare (without flattery) fix that of Martial: non norunt hæc monumenta mori."

Vit. Pray, my Lord, let him speak his usual tongue,
I'll make no answer else.

Fra. Why, you understand Latin.

Vit. I do, Sir, but amongst this auditory
Which come to hear my cause, the half or more
May be ignorant in't.

Mon. Go on, Sir.

Vit. By your favor,
I will not have my accusation clouded
In a strange tongue : all this assembly
Shall hear what you can charge me with.

Fra. Signior,
You need not stand on't much ; pray, change your language.

Mon. Oh, for God's sake ! gentlewoman, your credit
Shall be more famous by it.

Law. Well then have at you.

Vit. I am the mark, Sir, I'll give aim to you,
And tell you how near you shoot.

Law. Most literated judges, please your lordships
So to connive your judgments to the view
Of this debauch'd and diversivolent woman ;
Who such a concatenation
Of mischief hath effected, that to extirp
The memory of it, must be the consummation
Of her, and her projections.

Vit. What's all this ?

Law. Hold your peace !
Exorbitant sins must have exulceration.

Vit. Surely, my Lords, this lawyer hath swallowed
Some apothecaries bills, or proclamations ;
And now the hard and undigestible words
Come up like stones we use give hawks for physic.
Why, this is Welch to Latin.

Law. My Lords, the woman
Knows not her tropes, nor is perfect
In the academick derivation
Of grammatical elocution.

Fra. Sir, your pains
Shall be well spared, and your deep eloquence
Be worthily applauded among those
Which understand you.

Law. My good Lord.

Fra. Sir,
Put up your papers in your fustian bag ;
(Francisco speaks this as in scorn.)
Cry mercy, Sir, 'tis buckram, and accept
My notion of your learn'd verbosity.

Law. I most graduatically thank your lordship ;
I shall have use for them elsewhere.

Mon. (to Vittoria.) I shall be plainer with you, and paint out
Your follies in more natural red and white,
Than that upon your cheek.

Vit. O you mistake,
You raise a blood as noble in this cheek
As ever was your mother's.

Mon. I must spare you, till proof cry whore to that.
Observe this creature here, my honor'd Lords,
A woman of a most prodigious spirit.

Vit. My honorable Lord,
It doth not suit a reverend Cardinal
To play the Lawyer thus.

Mon. Oh your trade instructs your language.
You see, my Lords, what goodly fruit she seems,
Yet like those apples travellers report
To grow where Sodom and Gomorrah stood,
I will but touch her, and you straight shall see
She'll fall to soot and ashes.

Vit. Your invenom'd apothecary should do't.

Mon. I am resolved,
Were there a second paradise to lose,
This devil would betray it.

Vit. O poor charity,
Thou art seldom found in scarlet.

Mon. Who knows not how, when several night by night
Her gates were choakt with coaches, and her rooms
Outbrav'd the stars with several kinds of lights ;
When she did counterfeit a Prince's court
In musick, banquets, and most riotous surfeits ;
This whore forsooth was holy.

Vit. Ha ! whore ? what's that ?

Mon. Shall I expound whore to you ? sure I shall.
I'll give their perfect character. They are first,
Sweetmeats which rot the eater : In man's nostrils
Poison'd perfumes. They are cozening alchymy ;
Shipwrecks in calmest weather. What are whores ?
Cold Russian winters, that appear so barren,
As if that nature had forgot the spring.
They are the true material fire of hell.
Worse than those tributes i'th' low countries paid,
Exactions upon meat, drink, garments, sleep ;
Ay even on man's perdition, his sin.
They are those brittle evidences of law,
Which forfeit all a wretched man's estate
For leaving out one syllable. What are whores ?
They are those flattering bells have all one tune,
At weddings and at funerals. Your rich whores
Are only treasuries by extortion fill'd,
And empty'd by curs'd riot. They are worse,
Worse than dead bodies, which are begg'd at th' gallows,
And wrought upon by surgeons, to teach man
Wherein he is imperfect. What's a whore ?
She's like the guilt counterfeited coin,

Which, whosoe'er first stamps it, brings in trouble
All that receive it.

Vit. This character 'scapes me.

Mon. You, gentlewoman?

Take from all beasts and from all minerals
Their deadly poison—

Vit. Well, what then?

Mon. I'll tell thee;

I'll find in thee an apothecary's shop,
To sample them all.

Fra. Emb. She hath lived ill.

En. Emb. True, but the Cardinal's too bitter.

Mon. You know what whore is. Next the devil adult'ry,
Enters the devil murder.

Fra. Your unhappy husband
Is dead.

Vit. O he's a happy husband,
Now he owes Nature nothing.

Fra. And by a vaulting engine.

Mon. An active plot:
He jump't into his grave.

Fra. What a prodigy was't,
That from some two yards high, a slender man
Should break his neck?

Mon. I'th' rushes!

Fra. And what's more,
Upon the instant lose all use of speech,
All vital motion, like a man had lain
Wound up three days. Now mark each circumstance.

Mon. And look upon this creature was his wife.
She comes not like a widow: she comes arm'd
With scorn and impudence: is this a mourning-habit?

Vit. Had I foreknown his death as you suggest,
I would have bespoke my mourning.

Mon. O you are cunning!

Vit. You shame your wit and judgment,
To call it so; what, is my just defence
By him that is my judge call'd impudence?
Let me appeal then from this christian court
To the uncivil Tartar.

Mon. See, my lords,
She scandals our proceedings.

Vit. Humbly thus,
Thus low, to the most worthy and respected
Leiger ambassadors, my modesty
And woman-hood I tender; but withall,
So entangled in a cursed accusation,
That my defence, of force, like Perseus,
Must personate masculine virtue. To the point.
Find me but guilty, sever head from body,
We'll part good friends: I scorn to hold my life
At yours, or any man's intreaty, Sir.

En. Emb. She hath a brave spirit.

Mon. Well, well, such counterfeit jewels
Make true ones oft suspected.

Vit. You are deceived;
For know, that all your strict combined heads,
Which strike against this mine of diamonds,
Shall prove but glassen hammers, they shall break.
These are but feigned shadows of my evils.
Terrify babes, my Lord, with painted devils;
I am past such needless palsy. For your names
Of whore and murther, they proceed from you,
As if a man should spit against the wind;
The filth returns in's face.

Mon. Pray you mistress, satisfy me one question:
Who lodg'd beneath your roof that fatal night
Your husband brake his neck?

Bra. That question
Inforceth me break silence; I was there.

Mon. Your business?

Bra. Why, I came to comfort her,
And take some course for settling her estate,
Because I heard her husband was in debt
To you, my Lord.

Mon. He was.

Bra. And 'twas strangely fear'd
That you would cozen her.

Mon. Who made you overseer?

Bra. Why, my charity, my charity, which should flow
From every generous and noble spirit,
To orphans and to widows.

Mon. Your lust.

Bra. Cowardly dogs bark loudest! sirrah, priest,
I'll talk with you hereafter.—Do you hear?
The sword you frame of such an excellent temper,
I'll sheath in your own bowels.
There are a number of thy coat resemble
Your common post-boys.

Mon. Ha!

Bra. Your mercenary post-boys.
Your letters carry truth, but 'tis your guise
To fill your mouths with gross and impudent lies.

Servant. My Lord, your gown.

Bra. Thou liest, 'twas my stool.
Bestow't upon thy master, that will challenge
The rest o'th' household stuff, for Brachiano
Was ne'er so beggarly to take a stool
Out of another's lodging: let him make
Vallance for his bed on't, or demy foot-cloth
For his most reverend moile. Monticelso, nemo me impune lacessit. [Exit Brachiano.]

Mon. Your champion's gone.

Vit. The wolf may prey the better.

Fra. My Lord, there's great suspicion of the murder,

But no sound proof who did it. For my part,
I do not think she hath a soul so black
To act a deed so bloody : if she have,
As in cold countries husband-men plant vines,
And with warm blood manure them, even so
One summer she will bear unsavory fruit,
And e'er next spring wither both branch and root.
The act of blood let pass, only descend
To matter of incontinence.

Vit. I discern poison
Under your gilded pills.

Mon. Now the Duke's gone I will produce a letter,
Wherein 'twas plotted, he and you shall meet,
At an apothecary's summer-house,
Down by the river Tiber. View't, my Lords :
Where after wanton bathing and the heat
Of a lascivious banquet.—I pray read it.—
I shame to speak the rest.

Vit. Grant I was tempted ;
Temptation proves not the act :
Casta est quam nemo rogavit.
You read his hot love to me, but you want
My frosty answer.

Mon. Frost i'th' dog-days ! strange !

Vit. Condemn you me for that the Duke did love me ?
So may you blame some fair and chrystal river
For that some melancholic distracted man
Hath drown'd himself in't.

Mon. Truly drown'd, indeed.

Vit. Sum up my faults, I pray, and you shall find,
That beauty and gay clothes, a merry heart,
And a good stomach to feast, are all,
All the poor crimes that you can charge me with.
In faith, my Lord, you might go pistol flies,
The sport would be more noble.

Mon. Very good.

Vit. But take you your course, it seems you've begged me first,

And now would fain undo me. I have houses,
Jewels, and a poor remnant of crusadoes ;
Would these would make you charitable.

Mon. If the devil
Did ever take good shape, behold his picture.

Vit. You have one virtue left,
You will not flatter me.

Fra. Who brought this letter ?

Vit. I am not compell'd to tell you.

Mon. My Lord Duke sent to you a thousand ducats,
The twelfth of August.

Vit. 'Twas to keep your cousin *
From prison, I paid use for't.

Mon. I rather think,
'Twas interest for his lust.

Vit. Who says so but yourself ? if you be my accuser,
Pray cease to be my judge ; come from the bench,
Give in your evidence against me, and let these
Be moderators. My Lord Cardinal,
Were your intelligencing ears as loving, .
As to my thoughts, had you an honest tongue,
I would not care though you proclaim'd them all.

Mon. Go to, go to.
After your goodly and vain-glorious banquet,
I'll give you a choak-pear.

Vit. Of your own grafting ?

Mon. You were born in Venice, honorably descended
From the Vittelli ; 'twas my cousin's fate,
Ill may I name the hour, to marry you ;
He bought you of your father.

* Her husband Camillo, who was cousin to Monticelso.

Vit. Ha!

Mon. He spent there in six months
Twelve thousand ducats, and (to my knowledge)
Receiv'd in dowry with you not one julio.
'Twas a hard penny-worth, the ware being so light.
I yet but draw the curtain, now to your picture :
You came from thence a most notorious strumpet,
And so you have continued.

Vit. My Lord !

Mon. Nay hear me,
You shall have time to prate. My Lord Brachiano——
Alas ! I make but repetition,
Of what is ordinary and Ryalto talk,
And ballated, and would be plaid o'th' stage
But that vice many times finds such loud friends,
That preachers are charm'd silent.
Your public fault,
Joyn'd to th' condition of the present time,
Takes from you all the fruits of noble pity,
Such a corrupted trial have you made
Both of your life and beauty, and been styl'd
No less an ominous fate, than blazing stars
To Princes. Hear your sentence ; you are confin'd
Unto a house of converts.

Vit. A house of converts ! what's that ?

Mon. A house of penitent whores.

Vit. Do the Noblemen in Rome
Erect it for their wives, that I am sent
To lodge there ?

Fra. You must have patience.

Vit. I must first have vengeance.
I fain would know if you have your salvation
By patent, that you proceed thus.

Mon. Away with her,
Take her hence.

Vit. A rape ! a rape !

Mon. How ?

Vit. Yes, you have ravish'd justice ;
Forc'd her to do your pleasure.

Mon. Fie, she's mad !

Vit. Die with those pills in your most cursed maw,
Should bring you health ! or while you sit o'th' bench,
Let your own spittle choak you !

Mon. She's turn'd fury.

Vit. That the last day of judgment may so find you,
And leave you the same Devil you were before !
Instruct me some good horse-leach to speak treason,
For since you cannot take my life for deeds,
Take it for words : O woman's poor revenge !
Which dwells but in the tongue. I will not weep.
No ; I do scorn to call up one poor tear
To fawn on your injustice : bear me hence
Unto this house of —— what's your mitigating title ?

Mon. Of converts.

Vit. It shall not be a house of converts ;
My mind shall make it honester to me
Than the Pope's palace, and more peaceable
Than thy soul, though thou art a Cardinal,
Know this, and let it somewhat raise your spight,
Through darkness diamonds spread their richest light*.

* This White Devil of Italy sets off a bad cause so speciously, and pleads with such an innocence-resembling boldness, that we seem to see that matchless beauty of her face which inspires such gay confidence into her ; and are ready to expect, when she has done her pleadings, that her very judges, her accusers, the grave ambassadors who sit as spectators, and all the court, will rise and make proffer to defend her in spite of the utmost conviction of her guilt ; as the shepherds in Don Quixote make proffer to follow the beautiful shepherdess Marcela " without reaping any profit out of her manifest resolution made there in their hearing."—

So sweet and lovely does she make the shame,
Which, like a canker in the fragrant rose,
Does spot the beauty of her budding name !

Marcello and Flaminio, Sons to Cornelia, having quarrelled ; Flaminio slays his Brother Marcello, their Mother being present.

CORNELIA. MARCELLO.

Cor. I hear a whispering all about the court,
You are to fight : who is your opposite ?
What is the quarrel ?

Mar. 'Tis an idle rumour.

Cor. Will you dissemble ? sure you do not well
To fright me thus : you never look thus pale,
But when you are most angry. I do charge you,
Upon my blessing ; nay I'll call the Duke,
And he shall school you.

Mar. Publish not a fear,
Which would convert to laughter : 'tis not so.
Was not this crucifix my father's ?

Cor. Yes.

Mar. I have heard you say, giving my brother suck,
He took the crucifix between his hands,
And broke a limb off.

Cor. Yes ; but 'tis mended.

FLAMINEO enters.

Fla. I have brought your weapon back.

(Flaminio runs Marcello through.)

Cor. Ha, oh my horror !

Mar. You have brought it home, indeed.

Cor. Help, oh he's murder'd !

Fla. Do you turn your gall up ? I'll to sanctuary,
And send a surgeon to you. [Exit Flam.]

HORTENSIUS (an Officer) enters.

Hor. How, o'th' ground ?

Mar. O mother, now remember what I told

Of breaking off the crucifix. Farewell.
There are some sins, which heaven doth duly punish
In a whole family. This it is to rise
By all dishonest means. Let all men know,
That tree shall long time keep a steady foot,
Whose branches spread no wider than the root.

Cor. O my perpetual sorrow !

Hor. Virtuous Marcello !

He's dead. Pray leave him, lady : come, you shall.

Cor. Alas ! he is not dead ; he's in a trance.

Why, here's no body shall get any thing by his death.
Let me call him again, for God's sake !

Hor. I would you were deceived.

Cor. O you abuse me, you abuse me, you abuse me !
How many have gone away thus, for lack of 'tendance !
Rear up's head, rear up's head ; his bleeding inward will kill him.

Hor. You see he is departed.

Cor. Let me come to him ; give me him as he is ; if he be turn'd to earth, let me but give him one heartly kiss, and you shall put us both into one coffin. Fetch a looking-glass, see if his breath will not stain it ; or pull out some feathers from my pillow, and lay them to his lips : will you lose him for a little pains taking ?

Hor. Your kindest office is to pray for him.

Cor. Alas ! I would not pray for him yet. He may live to lay me i'th' ground, and pray for me, if you'll let me come to him.

The DUKE enters with FLAMINEO, and PAGE.

Bra. Was this your handy-work ?

Fla. It was my misfortune.

Cor. He lies, he lies ; he did not kill him : these have kill'd him, that would not let him be better look'd to.

Bra. Have comfort, my griev'd mother.

Cor. O yon' screech-owl!

Hor. Forbear, good Madam.

Cor. Let me go, let me go.

(She runs to FLAMINEO with her knife drawn, and coming to him, lets it fall.)

The God of heaven forgive thee. Dost not wonder
I pray for thee? I'll tell thee what's the reason:
I have scarce breath to number twenty minutes;
I'd not spend that in cursing. Fare thee well:
Half of thyself lies there: and may'st thou live
To fill an hour-glass with his moulder'd ashes,
To tell how thou should'st spend the time to come
In blest repentance.

Bra. Mother, pray tell me

How came he by his death? what was the quarrel?

Cor. Indeed, my younger boy presum'd too much
Upon his manhood, gave him bitter words,
Drew his sword first; and so, I know not how,
For I was out of my wits, he fell with's head
Just in my bosom.

Page. This is not true, Madam.

Cor. I pr'ythee peace.

One arrow's graz'd already: it were vain
To lose this, for that will ne'er be found again.

* * * * *

Francisco describes to Flamineo the grief of Cornelia at the Funeral of Marcello.

Your reverend Mother
Is grown a very old woman in two hours.

I found them winding of Marcello's corse ;
And there is such a solemn melody,
'Tween doleful songs, tears, and sad elegies :
Such as old grandames, watching by the dead,
Were wont to outwear the nights with ; that, believe me,
I had no eyes to guide me forth the room,
They were so o'ercharg'd with water.

Funeral Dirge for Marcello.

(His Mother sings it.)

Call for the Robin-red-breast, and the Wren,
Since o'er shady groves they hover,
And with leaves and flowers do cover
The friendless bodies of unburied men.
Call unto his funeral dole
The Ant, the Field-mouse, and the Mole,
To raise him hillocks that shall keep him warm,
And (when gay tombs are robb'd) sustain no harm ;
But keep the wolf far thence, that's foe to men,
For with his nails he'll dig them up again *.

Folded Thoughts.

Come, come, my Lord, untie your folded thoughts,
And let them dangle loose as a bride's hair.
Your sister's poison'd.

Dying Princes.

To see what solitariness is about dying Princes ! As heretofore they have unpeopled towns, divorced friends, and made great houses unhospitable !
so now, O justice ! where are their flatterers

* I never saw any thing like this Dirge, except the Ditty which reminds Ferdinand of his drowned Father in the Tempest. As that is of the water, watery ; so this is of the earth, earthy. Both have that intenseness of feeling, which seems to resolve itself into the elements which it contemplates.

now? flatterers are but the shadows of princes' bodies, the least thick cloud makes them invisible.

Natural Death.

O thou soft natural death! that art joint twin
To sweetest slumber!—no rough-bearded Comet
Stares on thy mild departure; the dull Owl
Beats not against thy casement; the hoarse Wolf
Scents not thy carrion. Pity winds thy corse,
Whilst horror waits on princes' ———

Few of Murder rebuked.

Miserable creature,
If thou persist in this 'tis damnable.
Dost thou imagine thou canst slide on blood,
And not be tainted with a shameful fall?
Or like the black and melancholic yew-tree,
Dost think to root thyself in dead men's graves
And yet to prosper! ———

Dying Man.

See see how firmly he doth fix his eye
Upon the crucifix.
Oh hold it constant.
It settles his wild spirits: and so his eyes
Melt into tears.

Despair.

O the cursed Devil,
Which doth present us with all other sins
Thrice candied o'er; despair, with gall and stibium,
Yet we carouse it off.

THE LOVER'S MELANCHOLY. BY JOHN FORD.

Contention of a Bird and a Musician.

Passing from Italy to Greece, the tales
Which poets of an elder time have feign'd
To glorify their Tempe, bred in me
Desire of visiting that paradise.
To Thessaly I came, and living private,
Without acquaintance of more sweet companions
Than the old inmates to my love, my thoughts,
I day by day frequented silent groves,
And solitary walks. One morning early
This accident encounter'd me : I heard
The sweetest and most ravishing contention
That art or nature ever were at strife in.
A sound of musick touch'd mine ears, or rather Indeed entranc'd my soul : as I stole nearer,
Invited by the melody, I saw
This youth, this fair fac'd youth, upon his lute
With strains of strange variety and harmony
Proclaiming (as it seem'd) so bold a challenge
To the clear quiristers of the woods, the birds,
That as they flocked about him, all stood silent,
Wond'ring at what they heard. I wonder'd too.
A Nightingale,
Nature's best skill'd musician, undertakes
The challenge ; and, for every several strain
The well-shap'd youth could touch, she sung her down ;
He could not run division with more art
Upon his quaking instrument, than she
The nightingale did with her various notes
Reply to.

Some time thus spent, the young man grew at last
 Into a pretty anger ; that a bird,
 Whom art had never taught cliffs, moods, or notes,
 Should vie with him for mastery, whose study
 Had busied many hours to perfect practice :
 To end the controversy, in a rapture,
 Upon his instrument he plays so swiftly,
 So many voluntaries, and so quick,
 That there was curiosity and cunning,
 Concord in discord, lines of diff'ring method
 Meeting in one full centre of delight.
 The bird (ordain'd to be Musick's first martyr) strove to imitate
 These several sounds : which when her warbling throat
 Fail'd in, for grief down dropt she on his lute
 And brake her heart. It was the quaintest sadness,
 To see the conqueror upon her hearse
 To weep a funeral elegy of tears.
 He looks upon the trophies of his art,
 Then sigh'd, then wiped his eyes, then sigh'd, and cried,
 " Alas, poor creature, I will soon revenge
 This cruelty upon the author of it.
 Henceforth this lute, guilty of innocent blood,
 Shall never more betray a harmless peace
 To an untimely end : " and in that sorrow,
 As he was pashing it against a tree,
 I suddenly stept in.

[This Story, which is originally to be met with in Strada's Prolusions, has been paraphrased in rhyme by Crashaw, Ambrose
 Phillips, and others : but none of those versions can at all compare for harmony and grace with this blank verse of Ford's : It is as fine as any thing in Beaumont and Fletcher ; and almost equals the strife which it celebrates.

THE LADIES TRIAL. BY JOHN FORD.

Auria, in the possession of Honors, Preferment, Fame, can find no peace in his mind while he thinks his Wife unchaste.

AURIA. AURELIO.

Auria. Count of Savona, Genoa's Admiral,
Lord Governor of Corsica, enroll'd
A Worthy of my country, sought and sued to,
Prais'd, courted, flatter'd!—

—————My triumphs
Are echoed under every roof, the air
Is streightned with the sound, there is not room
Enough to brace them in; but not a thought
Doth pierce into the grief that cabins here:
Here through a creek, a little inlet, crawls
A flake no bigger than a sister's thread,
Which sets the region of my heart a fire.
I had a kingdom once, but am depos'd
From all that royalty of blest content,
By a confed'racy 'twixt love and frailty.

Aurelio. Glories in public view but add to misery,
Which travails in unrest at home.

Auria. At home!
That home, Aurelio speaks of, I have lost:
And which is worse, when I have roll'd about.
Toil'd like a pilgrim, round this globe of earth,
Wearied with care, and over-worn with age,
Lodg'd in the grave, I am not yet at home.
'There rots but half of me: the other part
Sleeps, heaven knows where. Would she and I, my wife
I mean, but what, alas, talk I of wife?
The woman, would we had together fed
On any out-cast parings coarse and mouldy,
Not liv'd divided thus!

LOVE'S SACRIFICE. A TRAGEDY. BY JOHN FORD.

Biancha, Wife to Caraffa, Duke of Pavia, loves and is loved by Fernando the Duke's favorite. She long resists his importunate suit ; at length, she enters the room where he is sleeping, and awakens him, to hear her confession of her love for him.

BIANCHA. FERDINAND, sleeping.

Bian. Resolve, and do ; 'tis done. What, are those eyes,

Which lately were so over-drown'd in tears,
So easy to take rest ? O happy man,
How sweetly sleep hath seal'd up sorrows here !
But I will call him : what, my Lord, my Lord,
My Lord Fernando ———

Fer. Who calls ?

Bian. My Lord :

Sleeping, or waking ?

Fer. Ha, who is't ?

Bian. 'Tis I :

Have you forgot my voice ? or is your ear
But useful to your eye ?

Fer. Madam the Duchess !

Bian. She, 'tis she ; sit up :

Sit up and wonder, whiles my sorrow swell :
The nights are short and I have much to say.

Fer. Is't possible 'tis you ?

Bian. 'Tis possible :

Why do you think I come ?

Fer. Why ? to crown joys,

And make me master of my best desires.

Bian. 'Tis true, you guess aright ; sit up and listen.
With shame and passion now I must confess,

Since first mine eyes beheld you, in my heart
 You have been only king. If there can be
 A violence in love, then I have felt
 That tyranny ; be record to my soul
 The justice which I for this folly fear.
 Fernando, in short words, howe'er my tongue
 Did often chide thy love, each word thou spak'st
 Was music to my ear : was never poor
 Poor wretched woman liv'd, that lov'd like me ;
 So truly, so unfeignedly.

Fer. Oh Madam——

Bian. To witness that I speak is truth, look here ;
 Thus singly I adventure to thy bed,
 And do confess my weakness : if thou temp'st
 My bosom to thy pleasures, I will yield.

Fer. Perpetual happiness !

Bian. Now hear me out :
 When first Caraffa, Pavy's Duke, my Lord,
 Saw me, he lov'd me, and (without respect
 Of dower) took me to his bed and bosom,
 Advanc'd me to the titles I possess,
 Not mov'd by counsel, or remov'd by greatness :
 Which to requite, betwixt my soul and heaven
 I vow'd a vow to live a constant wife.
 I have done so : nor was there in the world
 A man created, could have broke that truth,
 For all the glories of the earth, but thou,
 But thou, Fernando. Do I love thee now ?

Fer. Beyond imagination.

Bian. True, I do,
 Beyond imagination : if no pledge
 Of love can instance what I speak is true,
 But loss of my best joys, here, here, Fernando,
 Be satisfied and ruin me.

Fer. What do you mean ?

Bian. To give my body up to thy embraces ;
A pleasure that I never wish'd to thrive in Before this fatal minute : mark me now ;
If thou dost spoil me of this robe of shame,
By my best comforts here, I vow again,
To thee, to heaven, to the world, to time,
Ere yet the morning shall new christen day,
I'll kill myself.

Fer. How, Madam, how !

Bian. I will :
Do what thou wilt, 'tis in thy choice ; what say ye ?

Fer. Pish, do you come to try me ? tell me first,
Will you but grant a kiss ?

Bian. Yes, take it ; that,
Or what thy heart can wish : I am all thine.

Fer. Oh me——come, come, how many women, pray,
Were ever heard or read of, granted love,
And did as you protest you will ?

Bian. Fernando ! (Kneels.)
Jest not at my calamity : I kneel :
By these dishevel'd hairs, these wretched tears,
By all that's good, if what I speak, my heart
Vows not eternally ; then think, my Lord,
Was never man sued to me I denied,
Think me a common and most cunning whore,
And let my sins be written on my grave,
My name rest in reproof. Do as you list.

Fer. I must believe ye ; yet I hope anon,
When you are parted from me, you will say
I was a good cold easy-spirited man,
Nay, laugh at my simplicity : say, will ye ?

Bian. No ; by the faith I owe my bridal vows :
But ever hold thee much much dearer far
Than all my joys on earth ; by this chaste kiss.

Fer. You have prevail'd : and heaven forbid that I

Should by a wanton appetite prophane
This sacred temple. 'Tis enough for me,
You'll please to call me servant.

Bian. Nay, be thine :

Command my power, my bosom, and I'll write
This love within the tables of my heart.

Fer. Enough : I'll master passion, and triumph
In being conquer'd, adding to it this,
In you my love as it begun shall end.

Bian. The latter I new vow—but day comes on :
What now we leave unfinish'd of content,
Each hour shall perfect up. Sweet, let us part.

Fer. Best Life, good rest.

THE CHRONICLE HISTORY OF PERKIN WARBECK.
BY JOHN FORD.

Perkin Warbeck and his Followers are by Lord Dawbney presented to King Henry as Prisoners.

Dawb. Life to the King, and safety fix his throne.
I here present you, royal Sir, a shadow
Of majesty, but in effect a substance
Of pity ; a young man, in nothing grown
To ripeness, but th' ambition of your mercy :
Perkin ; the christian world's strange wonder !

King H. Dawbney,
We observe no wonder ; I behold ('tis true)
An ornament of nature, fine, and polisht,
A handsome youth indeed, but not admire him.
How came he to thy hands ?

Dawb. From sanctuary
At Bewley, near Southampton ; registred,
With these few followers, for persons privileged.

King H. I must not thank you, Sir ; you were to blame
To infringe the liberty of houses sacred :
Dare we be irreligious ?

Dawb. Gracious Lord,
They voluntarily resign'd themselves,
Without compulsion.

King H. So ? 'twas very well ;
'Twas very well. Turn now thine eyes,
Young man, upon thyself and thy past actions.
What revels in combustion through our kingdom
A frenzy of aspiring youth hath danc'd :
Till wanting breath, thy feet of pride have slipt
To break thy neck.

Warb. But not my heart : my heart
Will mount, till every drop of blood be frozen
By death's perpetual winter. If the sun
Of majesty be darkned, let the sun
Of life be hid from me, in an eclipse
Lasting, and universal. Sir ; remember,
There was a shooting in of light, when Richmond
(Not aiming at the crown) retired, and gladly,
For comfort to the Duke of Bretagne's Court.
Richard, who sway'd the sceptre, was reputed
A tyrant then ; yet then, a dawning glimmer'd
To some few wand'ring remnants, promising day,
When first they ventur'd on a frightful shore,
At Milford Haven.

Dawb. Whither speeds his boldness ?
Check his rude tongue, great Sir.

King H. O let him range :
The player's on the stage still ; 'tis his part :
He does but act.—What follow'd ?

Warb. Bosworth field :
Where at an instant, to the world's amazement,
A morn to Richmond and a night to Richard

Appear'd at once. The tale is soon applied :
Fate which crown'd these attempts, when least assur'd,
Might have befriended others, like resolv'd.

King H. A pretty gallant ! thus your Aunt of Burgundy,

Your Duchess Aunt, inform'd her nephew ; so
The lesson prompted, and well conn'd, was moulded
Into familiar dialogue, oft rehears'd,
Till, learnt by heart, 'tis now receiv'd for truth.

Warb. Truth in her pure simplicity wants art
To put a feigned blush on ; scorn wears only
Such fashion, as commends to gazers' eyes
Sad ulcerated novelty, far beneath
The sphere of majesty : in such a court
Wisdom and gravity are proper robes,
By which the sovereign is best distinguish'd
From zanies to his greatness.

King H. Sirrah, shift
Your antick pageantry, and now appear
In your own nature ; or you'll taste the danger
Of fooling out of season.

Warb. I expect
No less than what severity calls justice,
And politicians safety ; let such beg,
As feed on alms : but if there can be mercy
In a protested enemy, then may it
Descend to these poor creatures*, whose engagements
To the bettering of their fortunes, have incurr'd
A loss of all : to them if any charity
Flow from some noble orator, in death
I owe the fee of thankfulness.

King H. So brave ?
What a bold knave is this !

* His Followers.

We trifle time with follies.

Urswick, command the Dukeling, and these fellows,

To Digby the Lieutenant of the Tower :

With safety let them be convey'd to London.

It is our pleasure, no uncivil outrage,

Taunts, or abuse, be suffer'd to their persons :

They shall meet fairer law than they deserve.

Time may restore their wits, whom vain ambition

Hath many years distracted.

Warb. Noble thoughts

Meet freedom in captivity. The Tower :

Our childhood's dreadful nursery !

King H. Was ever so much impudence in forgery ?

The custom sure of being styl'd a King,

Hath fast'ned in his thought that he is such.

Warbeck is led to his death.

Oxford. Look ye, behold your followers, appointed
To wait on ye in death.

Warb. Why, Peers of England,

We'll lead 'em on courageously. I read

A triumph over tyranny upon

Their several foreheads. Faint not in the moment

Of victory ! our ends, and Warwick's head,

Innocent Warwick's head, (for we are prologue

But to his tragedy) conclude the wonder

Of Henry's fears : and then the glorious race

Of fourteen kings Plantagenets, determines

In this last issue male. Heaven be obey'd.

Impoverish time of its amazement, friends ;

And we will prove as trusty in our payments,

As prodigal to nature in our debts.

Death ! pish, 'tis but a sound ; a name of air ;

A minute's storm ; or not so much : to tumble

From bed to bed, be massacred alive

By some physicians for a month or two,
 In hope of freedom from a fever's torments,
 Might stagger manhood ; here, the pain is past
 Ere sensibly 'tis felt. Be men of spirit ;
 Spurn coward passion : so illustrious mention
 Shall blaze our names, and style us Kings o'er Death.

'TIS PITY SHE'S A WHORE: A TRAGEDY.
 BY JOHN FORD.

Giovanni, a Young Gentleman of Parma, entertains an illicit love for his Sister. He asks counsel of Bonaventura, a Friar.*

FRIAR. GIOVANNI.

Friar. Dispute no more in this, for know, young man,
 These are no school-points ; nice philosophy
 May tolerate unlikely arguments,
 But heaven admits no jests ! wits that presumed
 On wit too much, by striving how to prove
 There was no God, with foolish grounds of art,
 Discover'd first the nearest way to hell ;
 And fill'd the world with devilish atheism.
 Such questions, youth, are fond ; far better 'tis
 To bless the sun, than reason why it shines ;
 Yet he thou talk'st of is above the sun.
 No more ; I may not hear it.

Gio. Gentle father,
 To you have I unclasp'd my burthen'd soul,
 Emptied the store-house of my thoughts and heart,
 Made myself poor of secrets ; have not left
 Another word untold, which hath not spoke

* The good Friar in this Play is evidently a Copy of Friar Lawrence in Romeo and Juliet. He is the same kind Physician to the Souls of his young Charges ; but he has more desperate Patients to deal with.

All what I ever durst, or think, or know ;
And yet is here the comfort I shall have ?
Must I not do what all men else may, love ?

Friar. Yes, you may love, fair son.

Gio. Must I not praise
That beauty which, if framed anew, the Gods
Would make a God of, if they had it there ;
And kneel to it, as I do kneel to them ?

Friar. Why, foolish madman !

Gio. Shall a peevish sound,
A customary form, from man to man,
Of brother and of sister, be a bar
'Twixt my perpetual happiness and me ?

Fri. Have done, unhappy youth, for thou art lost.

Gio. No, father : in your eyes I see the change
Of pity and compassion : from your age,
As from a sacred oracle, distils
The life of counsel. Tell me, holy man,
What cure shall give me ease in these extremes ?

Friar. Repentance, son, and sorrow for this sin :
For thou hast moved a majesty above
With thy unguarded almost blasphemy.

Gio. O do not speak of that, dear confessor.

Friar. Art thou, my son, that miracle of wit.
Who once within these three months wert esteem'd
A wonder of thine age throughout Bononia ?
How did the university applaud
Thy government, behaviour, learning, speech,
Sweetness, and all that could make up a man !
I was proud of my tutelage, and chose
Rather to leave my books than part with thee.
I did so ; but the fruits of all my hopes
Are lost in thee, as thou art in thyself.
O Giovanni, hast thou left the schools
Of knowledge, to converse with lust and death ?

For death waits on thy lust.—Look through the world,
 And thou shalt see a thousand faces shine
 More glorious than this idol thou adorest.
 Leave her, and take thy choice ; 'tis much less sin :
 Though in such games as those they lose that win.

Gio. It were more ease to stop the ocean
 From flows and ebbs, than to dissuade my vows.

Friar. Then I have done, and in thy wilful flames
 Already see thy ruin ! heaven is just.
 Yet hear my counsel !

Gio. As a voice of life.

Friar. Hie to thy father's house, there lock thee fast
 Alone within thy chamber, then fall down
 On both thy knees, and grovel on the ground ;
 Cry to thy heart, wash every word thou utter'st
 In tears, and (if't be possible) of blood :
 Beg heaven to cleanse the leprosy of lust
 That rots thy soul ; acknowledge what thou art,
 A wretch, a worm, a nothing : weep, sigh, pray
 Three times a day, and three times every night ;
 For seven days' space do this, then, if thou find'st
 No change in thy desires, return to me ;
 I'll think on remedy. Pray for thyself
 At home, whilst I pray for thee here ; away.—
 My blessing with thee—we have need to pray.

*Giovanni discloses his Passion to his Sister Annabella.—
 They compare their unhappy Loves.*

Anna. Do you mock me, or flatter me ?
(He has been praising her beauty.)

Gio. If you would see a beauty more exact
 Than art can counterfeit, or nature frame,
 Look in your glass and there behold your own.

Anna. O you are a trim youth.

Gio. Here. (Offers his dagger to her.)

Anna. What to do ?

Gio. And here's my breast. Strike home,
Rip up my bosom ; there thou shalt behold
A heart, in which is writ the truth I speak.
Why stand you ?

Anna. Are you in earnest ?

Gio. Yes, most earnest.

You cannot love.

Anna. Whom ?

Gio. Me.—My tortur'd soul
Hath felt affliction in the heat of death.
O Annabella, I am quite undone.
The love of thee, my sister, and the view
Of thy immortal beauty, have untuned
All harmony both of my rest and life.
Why do you not strike ?

Anna. Forbid it, my just fears.

If this be true 'twere fitter I were dead.

Gio. True, Annabella ! 'tis no time to jest ;
I have too long suppress'd my hidden flames,
That almost have consum'd me : I have spent
Many a silent night in sighs and groans,
Ran over all my thoughts, despis'd my fate,
Reason'd against the reasons of my love,
Done all that smooth-cheek'd virtue could advise,
But found all bootless : 'tis my destiny
That you must either love, or I must die.

Anna. Comes this in sadness from you ?

Gio. Let some mischief

Befall me soon, if I dissemble aught.

Anna. You are my brother, Giovanni.

Gio. You

My sister, Annabella, I know this :
And could afford you instance why to love
So much the more for this.—

He gives some sophistical Reasons, and resumes.

Must I now live or die ?

Anna. Live : thou hast won
The field, and never fought. What thou hast urg'd,
My captive heart had long ago resolv'd.
I blush to tell thee (but I tell thee now)
For every sigh that thou hast spent for me,
I have sigh'd ten ; for every tear shed twenty :
And not so much for that I lov'd, as that
I durst not say I lov'd, nor scarcely think it.

Gio. Let not this music be a dream, ye gods,
For pity's sake I beg ye.

Anna. On my knees, (She kneels.)
Brother, even by our mother's dust, I charge you,
Do not betray me to your mirth or hate ;
Love me, or kill me, brother.

Gio. On my knees, (He kneels.)
Sister, even by my mother's dust, I charge you,
Do not betray me to your mirth or hate ;
Love me, or kill me, sister.

Anna. You mean good sooth, then ?

Gio. In good truth I do ;
And so do you, I hope : say, I'm in earnest.

Anna. I'll swear it ; and I.

Gio. And I.
I would not change this minute for Elysium.

Annabella proves pregnant by her Brother. Sorano, her Husband, to whom she is newly married, discovers that she is pregnant, but cannot make her confess by whom. At length by means of Vasques, his servant, he comes to the truth of it. He feigns forgiveness and reconciliation with his Wife : and makes a sumptuous Feast to which are invited Annabella's old Father, with Giovanni, and all the chief Citizens in Parma ; meaning to entrap Giovanni by that bait to his death. —Annabella suspects his drift.

GIOVANNI. ANNABELLA.

Gio. What, chang'd so soon?
— does the fit come on you, to prove treacherous
To your past vows and oaths?

Anna. Why should you jest
At my calamity, without all sense
Of the approaching dangers you are in?

Gio. What danger's half so great as thy revolt?
Thou art a faithless sister, else thou know'st,
Malice or any treachery beside
Would stoop to my bent brows: why, I hold fate
Clasp'd in my fist, and could command the course
Of time's eternal motion, had'st thou been
One thought more steady than an ebbing sea.

Anna. Brother, dear brother, know what I have been;
And know that now there's but a dining time
'Twixt us and our confusion: let's not waste
These precious hours in vain and useless speech.
Alas, these gay attires were not put on
But to some end; this sudden solemn feast
Was not ordain'd to riot and expense;
I that have now been chamber'd here alone,
Barr'd of my guardian, or of any else,
Am not for nothing at an instant freed
To fresh access. Be not deceiv'd, my brother;
This banquet is a harbinger of death
To you and me; resolve yourself it is,
And be prepar'd to welcome it.

Gio. Well, then,
The schoolmen teach that all this globe of earth
Shall be consumed to ashes in a minute.

Anna. So I have read too.

Gio. But 'twere somewhat strange
To see the waters burn. Could I believe

This might be true, I could believe as well
There might be hell or heaven.

Anna. That's most certain.—But,
Good brother, for the present, how do you mean
To free yourself from danger? some way think
How to escape. I'm sure the guests are come.

Gio. Look up, look here; what see you in my face?

Anna. Distraction and a troubled conscience.

Gio. Death and a swift repining wrath—yet look,
What see you in mine eyes?

Anna. Methinks you weep.

Gio. I do indeed; these are the funeral tears
Shed on your grave: these furrow'd up my cheeks,
When first I lov'd and knew not how to woo.
Fair Annabella, should I here repeat
The story of my life, we might lose time.
Be record all the spirits of the air,
And all things else that are, that day and night,
Early and late, the tribute which my heart
Hath paid to Annabella's sacred love,
Hath been these tears which are her mourners now.
Never till now did Nature do her best,
To shew a matchless beauty to the world,
Which in an instant, ere it scarce was seen,
The jealous destinies requir'd again.
Pray, Annabella, pray; since we must part,
Go thou, white in thy soul, to fill a throne
Of innocence and sanctity in heaven.
Pray, pray, my sister.

Anna. Then I see your drift.
Ye blessed angels, guard me!

Gio. Give me your hand. How sweetly life doth run
In these well-color'd veins! how constantly
This pulse doth promise health! But I could chide

With Nature for this cunning flattery !

Forgive me.

Anna. With my heart.

Gio. Farewell.

Anna. Will you be gone?—

Gio. Be dark, bright sun,

And make this mid-day night, that thy guilt rays
May not behold a deed, will turn their splendour
More sooty than the poets feign their Styx.

Anna. What means this? (Stabs her.)

Gio. To save thy fame.—

Thus die, and die by me, and by my hand ;
Revenge is mine, honor doth love command.

Anna. Forgive him, heaven, and me my sins. Farewell.

Brother unkind, unkind—

[Dies.

[Sir Thomas Browne in the last Chapter of his Enquiries into Vulgar and Common Errors, rebukes such Authors as have chosen to relate prodigious and nameless Sins. The Chapter is entitled, Of some Relations whose Truth we fear. His reasoning is solemn and fine.—“ Lastly, as there are many Relations whereto we cannot assent, and make some doubt thereof, so there are divers others whose verities we fear, and heartily wish there were no truth therein. Many other accounts like these we meet sometimes in History, scandalous unto Christianity, and even unto humanity ; whose not only verities but relations honest minds do deprecate. For of sins heteroclital, and such as want either name or precedent, there is oftentimes a sin even in their histories. We desire no records of such enormities ; sins should be accounted new, that so they may be esteemed monstrous. They omit of monstrosity, as they fall from their rarity ; for men count it venial to err with their forefathers, and foolishly conceive they divide a sin in its society. The pens of men may sufficiently expatiate without these singularities of villainy : for, as they increase the hatred of vice in some, so do they enlarge the theory of wickedness in all. And this is one thing that may make latter ages worse than were the former : for the vicious example of ages past, poison the curiosity of these present, affording a hint of sin unto seduceable spirits, and soliciting those unto the imitation of them, whose heads were never so perversely principled as to invent them. In things of this nature silence commendeth History ; 'tis the veniable part of things lost, wherein there must never rise a Pancirollus * nor remain any register but that of Hell."']

THE BROKEN HEART: A TRAGEDY. BY JOHN FORD.

Ithocles loves Calantha, Princess of Sparta ; and would have his sister Penthea plead for him with the Princess. She objects to him her own wretched condition, made miserable by a Match, into which he forced her with Bassanes, when she was precontracted by her dead Father's Will, and by inclination, to Orgilus ; but at last she consents.

ITHOCLES. PENTHEA.

Ith. Sit nearer, sister to me, nearer yet ;
We had one father, in one womb took life,
Were brought up twins together, yet have liv'd
At distance like two strangers. I could wish,
That the first pillow whereon I was cradled
Had prov'd to me a grave.

Pen. You had been happy :
Then had you never known that sin of life
Which blots all following glories with a vengeance ;
For forfeiting the last will of the dead,
From whom you had your being.

Ith. Sad Penthea,
Thou canst not be too cruel ; my rash spleen
Hath with a violent hand pluck'd from thy bosom

* Who wrote De Antiquis Deperditis, or of the Lost Inventions of Antiquity.

A lover-blest heart, to grind it into dust ;
For which mine's now a breaking.

Pen. Not yet, heaven,
I do beseech thee : first let some wild fires
Scorch, not consume it ; may the heat be cherish'd
With desires infinite but hopes impossible.

Ith. Wrong'd soul, thy prayers are heard.

Pen. Here, lo, I breathe,
A miserable creature, led to ruin
By an unnatural brother.

Ith. I consume
In languishing affections for that trespass,
Yet cannot die.

Pen. The handmaid to the wages,
The untroubled* of country toil, drinks streams,
With leaping kids, and with the bleating lambs,
And so allays her thirst secure ; while I
Quench my hot sighs with fleetings of my tears.

Ith. The labourer doth eat his coarsest bread,
Earn'd with his sweat, and lies him down to sleep ;
Which every bit I touch turns in digestion
To gall, as bitter as Penthea's curse.
Put me to any penance for my tyranny,
And I will call thee merciful.

Pen. Pray kill me ;
Rid me from living with a jealous husband ;
Then we will join in friendship, be again
Brother and sister——

Ith. After my victories abroad, at home
I meet despair ; ingratitude of nature
Hath made my actions monstrous : Thou shalt stand
A deity, my sister, and be worshipp'd
For thy resolved martyrdom ; wrong'd maids

* A word seems defective here.

And married wives shall to thy hallow'd shrine
Offer their orisons, and sacrifice
Pure turtles crown'd with mirtle, if thy pity
Unto a yielding brother's pressure lend
One finger but to ease it.

Pen. O no more.

Ith. Death waits to waft me to the Stygian banks,
And free me from this chaos of my bondage ;
And till thou wilt forgive, I must endure.

Pen. Who is the saint you serve ?

Ith. Friendship, or nearness
Of birth, to any but my sister, durst not
Have mov'd that question : as a secret, sister,
I dare not murmur to myself.

Pen. Let me,
By your new protestations I conjure ye,
Partake her name.

Ith. Her name——'tis——'tis—I dare not—

Pen. All your respects are forg'd.

Ith. They are not—Peace.—

Calantha is the princess, the king's daughter,
Sole heir of Sparta. Me most miserable,
Do I now love thee ? For my injuries,
Revenge thyself with bravery, and gossip
My treasons to the king's ears. Do ; Calantha
Knows it not yet, nor Prophilus my nearest.

Pen. Suppose you were contracted to her, would it not Split even your very soul to see her father
Snatch her out of your arms against her will,
And force her on the Prince of Argos ?

Ith. Trouble not
The fountains of mine eyes with thine own story :
I sweat in blood for't.

Pen. We are reconciled.
Alas, Sir, being children, but two branches

Of one stock, 'tis not fit we should divide.
Have comfort, you may find it.

Ith. Yes, in thee,
Only in thee, Penthea mine.

Pen. If sorrows
Have not too much dull'd my infected brain,
I'll cheer invention for an active strain.

Penthea recommends her Brother as a dying bequest to the Princess.

CALANTHA. PENTHEA.

Cal. Being alone, Penthea, you have granted
The opportunity you sought, and might
At all times have commanded.

Pen. 'Tis a benefit
Which I shall owe your goodness even in death for.
My glass of life, sweet princess, hath few minutes
Remaining to run down; the sands are spent:
For by an inward messenger I feel
The summons of departure short and certain.

Cal. You feed too much your melancholy.

Pen. Glories
Of human greatness are but pleasing dreams,
And shadows soon decaying: on the stage
Of my mortality my youth hath acted
Some scenes of vanity, drawn out at length;
By varied pleasures sweetned in the mixture,
But tragical in issue.

Cal. Contemn not your condition, for the proof
Of bare opinion only: to what end
Reach all these moral texts?

Pen. To place before ye
A perfect mirror, wherein you may see
How weary I am of a lingering life,
Who count the best a misery.

Cal. Indeed

You have no little cause ; yet none so great,
As to distrust a remedy.

Pen. That remedy

Must be a winding sheet, a fold of lead,
And some untrod on corner in the earth.
Not to detain your expectation, Princess ;
I have an humble suit.

Cal. Speak, and enjoy it.

Pen. Vouchsafe then to be my Executrix ;
And take that trouble on ye, to dispose
Such legacies as I bequeath impartially :
I have not much to give, the pains are easy ;
Heaven will reward your piety and thank it,
When I am dead : for sure I must not live ;
I hope I cannot.

Cal. Now beshrew thy sadness ;
Thou turnst me too much woman.

Pen. Her fair eyes

Melt into passion : then I have assurance
Encouraging my boldness. In this paper
My will was character'd ; which you, with pardon,
Shall now know from mine own mouth.

Cal. Talk on, prithee ;
It is a pretty earnest.

Pen. I have left me

But three poor jewels to bequeath. The first is
My youth ; for though I am much old in griefs,
In years I am a child.

Cal. To whom that ?

Pen. To virgin wives ; such as abuse not wedlock
By freedom of desires, but covet chiefly
The pledges of chaste beds, for ties of love
Rather than ranging of their blood : and next,
To married maids ; such as prefer the number

Of honorable issue in their virtues,
Before the flattery of delights by marriage ;
May those be ever young.

Cal. A second jewel
You mean to part with ?

Pen. 'Tis my fame ; I trust,
By scandal yet untouch'd : this I bequeath
To Memory and Time's old daughter, Truth.
If ever my unhappy name find mention,
When I am fall'n to dust, may it deserve
Beseeming charity without dishonour.

Cal. How handsomely thou play'st with harmless sport
Of meer imagination ! Speak the last.
I strangely like thy will.

Pen. This jewel, Madam,
Is dearly precious to me ; you must use
The best of your discretion, to employ
This gift as I intend it.

Cal. Do not doubt me.

Pen. 'Tis long ago, since first I lost my heart ;
Long I have liv'd without it : but in stead
Of it, to great Calantha, Sparta's heir,
By service bound, and by affection vow'd,
I do bequeath in holiest rites of love
Mine only brother Ithocles.

Cal. What saidst thou ?

Pen. Impute not, heav'n-blest lady, to ambition,
A faith as humbly perfect as the prayers
Of a devoted suppliant can endow it :
Look on him, Princess, with an eye of pity ;
How like the ghost of what he late appear'd
He moves before you.

Cal. Shall I answer here,
Or lend my ear too grossly ?

Pen. First his heart
Shall fall in cinders, scorch'd by your disdain,
Ere he will dare, poor man, to ope an eye
On these divine looks, but with low-bent thoughts
Accusing such presumption : as for words,
He dares not utter any but of service ;
Yet this lost creature loves you. Be a Princess
In sweetness as in blood ; give him his doom,
Or raise him up to comfort.

Cal. What new change
Appears in my behaviour, that thou darest
Tempt my displeasure ?

Pen. I must leave the world,
To revel in Elysium ; and 'tis just
To wish my brother some advantage here.
Yet by my best hopes, Ithocles is ignorant
Of this pursuit. But if you please to kill him,
Lend him one angry look, or one harsh word,
And you shall soon conclude how strong a power
Your absolute authority holds over
His life and end.

Cal. You have forgot, Penthea,
How still I have a father.

Pen. But remember
I am sister : though to me this brother
Hath been, you know, unkind, O most unkind.

Cal. Christalla, Philema, where are ye ?—Lady,
Your check lies in my silence*.

While Calantha (Princess of Sparta) is celebrating the Nuptials of Prophilus and Euphranea at Court with Music and

* It is necessary to the understanding of the Scene which follows, to know that the Princess is won by these solicitations of Penthea, and by the real deserts of Ithocles, to requite his love, and that they are contracted with the consent of the King her Father.

Cal. Beshrew thee. —

Lead to the next.

Bass. Amazement dulls my senses.

They Dance again : ORGILUS enters.

Org. Brave Ithocles is murder'd, murder'd cruelly.

Cal. How dull this music sounds ! Strike up more sprightly :

Our footings are not active like our heart,
Which treads the nimbler measure.

Org. I am thunder-struck.

They Dance the last Change. The Music ceases.

Cal. So, let us breathe awhile : hath not this motion
Rais'd fresher colour on your cheeks ? (To NEARCHUS.)

Near. Sweet Princess,
A perfect purity of blood enamels
The beauty of your white.

Cal. We all look chearfully :
And, cousin, 'tis methinks a rare presumption
In any, who prefers our lawful pleasures
Before their own sour censure, to interrupt
The custom of this ceremony bluntly.

Near. None dares, Lady.

Cal. Yes, yes ; some hollow voice deliver'd to me
How that the King was dead.

Arm. The King is dead :
That fatal news was mine ; for in mine arms
He breath'd his last, and with his crown bequeath'd you
Your Mother's wedding-ring, which here I tender.

Crot. Most strange.

Cal. Peace crown his ashes : we are Queen then.

Near. Long live Calantha, Sparta's sovereign Queen.

All. Long live the Queen.

Cal. What whisper'd Bassanes ?

Bass. That my Penthea*, miserable soul,
Was starv'd to death.

Cal. She's happy; she hath finish'd
A long and painful progress.—A third murmur
Pierc'd mine unwilling ears.

Org. That Ithocles
Was murder'd.

Cal. By whose hand?

Org. By mine: this weapon
Was instrument to my revenge. The reasons†
Are just and known. Quit him of these, and then Never liv'd gentleman of greater merit,
Hope, or abiliment to steer a kingdom.

Cal. We begin our reign
With a first act of justice: thy confession,
Unhappy Orgilus, dooms thee a sentence;
But yet thy father's or thy sister's presence
Shall be excus'd: give, Crotolon‡, a blessing
To thy lost son; Euphranea§, take a farewell:
And both begone.

(To ORGILUS.) Bloody relater of thy stains in blood;
For that thou hast reported him (whose fortunes
And life by thee are both at once snatch'd from him)
With honorable mention, make thy choice
Of what death likes thee best; there's all our bounty.
But to excuse delays, let me, dear cousin,
Intreat you and these lords see execution
Instant, before ye part.

Near. Your will commands us.

Org. One suit, just Queen; my last. Vouchsafe your clemency,

* Wife to Bassanes.

† Penthea (sister to Ithocles) was betrothed at first to Orgilus, but compelled by her brother to marry Bassanes: by which forced match she becoming miserable, refused to take food, and died.

‡ His Father.

§ His Sister.

That by no common hand I be divided
From this my humble frailty.

Cal. To their wisdoms,
Who are to be spectators of thine end,
I make the reference. Those that are dead,
Are dead; had they not now died, of necessity
They must have paid the debt they owed to nature
One time or other. Use dispatch, my lords.—
We'll suddenly prepare our Coronation. [Exit.

Arm. 'Tis strange these tragedies should never touch on
Her female pity.

Bass. She has a masculine spirit.

The Coronation of the Princess takes place after the execution of Orgilus.—She enters the Temple, dressed in White, having a Crown on her Head. She kneels at the Altar. The dead Body of Ithocles (whom she should have married) is borne on a Hearse, in rich Robes, having a Crown on his Head; and placed by the side of the Altar, where she kneels. Her devotions ended, she rises.—

CALANTHA. NEARCHUS. PROPHILUS. CROTON.
BASSANES. ARMOSTES. EUPHRANEA. AMELUS.
CHRISTALLA. PHILEMA, and others.

Cal. Our orisons are heard, the gods are merciful.
Now tell me, you, whose loyalties pay tribute
To us your lawful sovereign, how unskilful
Your duties, or obedience is, to render
Subjection to the sceptre of a virgin;
Who have been ever fortunate in princes
Of masculine and stirring composition.
A woman has enough to govern wisely
Her own demeanours, passions, and divisions.
A nation warlike, and inured to practice
Of policy and labour, cannot brook

A feminate authority : we therefore
Command your counsel, how you may advise us
In chusing of a husband, whose abilities
Can better guide this kingdom.

Near. Royal Lady,
Your law is in your will.

Arm. We have seen tokens
Of constancy too lately to mistrust it.

Crot. Yet if your Highness settle on a choice
By your own judgment both allow'd and liked of,
Sparta may grow in power and proceed
To an increasing height.

Cal. Cousin of Argos.

Near. Madam.

Cal. Were I presently
To chuse you for my Lord, I'll open freely
What articles I would propose to treat on,
Before our marriage.

Near. Name them, virtuous Lady.

Cal. I would presume you would retain the royalty
Of Sparta in her own bounds : then in Argos
Armostes might be viceroy ; in Messene
Might Crotolon bear sway ; and Bassanes
Be Sparta's marshal :
The multitudes of high employments could not
But set a peace to private griefs. These gentlemen,
Groneas and Lemophil, with worthy pensions,
Should wait upon your person in your chamber.
I would bestow Christalla on Amelus ;
She'll prove a constant wife : and Philema
Should into Vesta's Temple.

Bass. This is a testament ;
It sounds not like conditions on a marriage.

Near. All this should be perform'd.

Cal. Lastly, for Prophilus,

He should be (cousin) solemnly invested
 In all those honors, titles, and preferments,
 Which his dear friend and my neglected husband
 Too short a time enjoy'd.

Proph. I am unworthy
 To live in your remembrance.

Euph. Excellent Lady.

Near. Madam, what means that word, neglected husband?

Cal. Forgive me : Now I turn to thee, thou shadow
 (To the dead Body of Ithocles.)

Of my contracted Lord : bear witness all,
 I put my mother's wedding ring upon
 His finger ; 'twas my father's last bequest :
 Thus I new marry him, whose wife I am ;
 Death shall not separate us. O my lords,
 I but deceiv'd your eyes with antick gesture,
 When one news straight came huddling on another,
 Of death, and death, and death, still I danc'd forward ;
 But it struck home, and here, and in an instant.
 Be such mere women, who with shrieks and outcries
 Can vow a present end to all their sorrows :
 Yet live to vow new pleasures, and out-live them.
 They are the silent griefs which cut the heart-strings :
 Let me die smiling.

Near. 'Tis a truth too ominous.

Cal. One kiss on these cold lips ; my last. Crack, crack.

Argos now's Sparta's King. (Dies.)

[I do not know where to find in any Play a catastrophe so grand, so solemn, and so surprising as this. This is indeed, according to Milton, to "describe high passions and high actions." The fortitude of the Spartan Boy who let a beast gnaw out his bowels till he died without expressing a groan, is a faint bodily image of this dilaceration of the spirit, and exente-

ration of the inmost mind, which Calantha with a holy violence against her nature keeps closely covered, till the last duties of a Wife and a Queen are fulfilled. Stories of martyrdom are but of chains and the stake ; a little bodily suffering ; these torments

On the purest spirits prey
As on entrails, joints, and limbs,
With answerable pains, but more intense.

What a noble thing is the soul in its strengths and in its weaknesses ! who would be less weak than Calantha ? who can be so strong ? the expression of this transcendant scene almost bears me in imagination to Calvary and the Cross ; and I seem to perceive some analogy between the scenical sufferings which I am here contemplating, and the real agonies of that final completion to which I dare no more than hint a reference.

Ford was of the first order of Poets. He sought for sublimity not by parcels in metaphors or visible images, but directly where she has her full residence in the heart of man ; in the actions and sufferings of the greatest minds. There is a grandeur of the soul above mountains, seas, and the elements. Even in the poor perverted reason of Giovanni and Annabella (in the Play which precedes this) we discern traces of that fiery particle, which in the irregular starting from out of the road of beaten action, discovers something of a right line even in obliquity, and shews hints of an improveable greatness in the lowest descents and degradations of our nature.]

HYMEN'S TRIUMPH: A PASTORAL TRAGI-COMEDY.
BY SAMUEL DANIEL.

Love in Infancy.

Ah, I remember well (and how can I
But evermore remember well) when first
Our flame began, when scarce we knew what was
The flame we felt : when as we sat and sigh'd
And look'd upon each other, and conceiv'd
Not what we ail'd, yet something we did ail ;

And yet were well, and yet we were not well,
And what was our disease we could not tell.
Then would we kiss, then sigh, then look : And thus
In that first garden of our simpleness
We spent our childhood : But when years began
To reap the fruit of knowledge ; ah, how then
Would she with graver looks, with sweet stern brow,
Check my presumption and my forwardness ;
Yet still would give me flowers, still would me show
What she would have me, yet not have me know.

Love after Death.

Palæmon. Fie, Thirsis, with what fond remembrances
Dost thou these idle passions entertain !
For shame leave off to waste your youth in vain,
And feed on shadows : make your choice anew ;
You other nymphs shall find, no doubt will be
As lovely, and as fair, and sweet as she.

Thirsis. As fair and sweet as she ! Palæmon, peace :
Ah, what can pictures be unto the life ?
What sweetness can be found in images ?
Which all nymphs else besides her seem to me.
She only was a real creature, she,
Whose memory must take up all of me.
Should I another love, then must I have Another heart, for this is full of her,
And evermore shall be : here is she drawn
At length, and whole : and more, this table is
A story, and is all of her ; and all
Wrought in the liveliest colours of my blood ;
And can there be a room for others here ?
Should I disfigure such a piece, and blot
The perfect'st workmanship that love e'er wrought ?
Palæmon, no, ah no, it cost too dear ;

It must remain entire whilst life remains,
The monument of her and of my pains.

The Story of Isulia.

There was sometimes a nymph,
Isulia named, and an Arcadian born,
Whose mother dying left her very young
Unto her father's charge, who carefully
Did breed her up until she came to years
Of womanhood, and then provides a match
Both rich and young, and fit enough for her.
But she, who to another shepherd had,
Call'd Sirthis, vow'd her love, as unto one
Her heart esteem'd more worthy of her love,
Could not by all her father's means be wrought
To leave her choice, and to forget her vow.
This nymph one day, surcharg'd with love and grief,
Which commonly (the more the pity) dwell
As inmates both together, walking forth
With other maids to fish upon the shore ;
Estrays apart, and leaves her company,
To entertain herself with her own thoughts :
And wanders on so far, and out of sight,
As she at length was suddenly surpriz'd
By pirates, who lay lurking underneath
Those hollow rocks, expecting there some prize.
And notwithstanding all her piteous cries,
Intreaties, tears, and prayers, those fierce men
Rent hair and veil, and carried her by force
Into their ship, which in a little creek
Hard by at anchor lay,
And presently hoisted sail and so away.
When she was thus inshipp'd and woefully
Had cast her eyes about to view that hell
Of horror, whereinto she was so suddenly emplung'd,

She spies a woman sitting with a child
Sucking her breast, which was the captain's wife.
To her she creeps, down at her feet she lies ;
" O woman, if that name of a woman may
" Move you to pity, pity a poor maid ;
" The most distressed soul that ever breath'd ;
" And save me from the hands of those fierce men.
" Let me not be defil'd and made unclean,
" Dear woman, now, and I will be to you
" The faithfull'st slave that ever mistress serv'd ;
" Never poor soul shall be more dutiful,
" To do whatever you command, than I.
" No toil will I refuse ; so that I may
" Keep this poor body clean and undeflower'd,
" Which is all I will ever seek. For know
" It is not fear of death lays me thus low,
" But of that stain will make my death to blush."
All this would nothing move the woman's heart,
Whom yet she would not leave, but still besought ;
" O woman, by that infant at your breast,
" And by the pains it cost you in the birth,
" Save me, as ever you desire to have
" Your babe to joy and prosper in the world :
" Which will the better prosper sure, if you
" Shall mercy shew, which is with mercy paid !"
Then kisses she her feet, then kisses too
The infant's feet ; and, " Oh, sweet babe," (said she)
" Could'st thou but to thy mother speak for me,
" And crave her to have pity on my case,
" Thou might'st perhaps prevail with her so much
" Although I cannot ; child, ah, could'st thou speak."
The infant, whether by her touching it,
Or by instinct of nature, seeing her weep,
Looks earnestly upon her, and then looks
Upon the mother, then on her again,

And then it cries, and then on either looks :
Which she perceiving, ; "blessed child," (said she)
"Although thou canst not speak, yet dost thou cry
"Unto thy mother for me. Hear thy child,
"Dear mother, it's for me it cries,
"It's all the speech it hath. Accept those cries,
"Save me at his request from being defil'd :
"Let pity move thee, that thus moves the child."
The woman, tho' by birth and custom rude,
Yet having veins of nature, could not be
But pierceable, did feel at length the point
Of pity enter so, as out gush'd tears,
(Not usual to stern eyes) and she besought
Her husband to bestow on her that prize,
With safeguard of her body at her will.
The captain seeing his wife, the child the nymph,
All crying to him in this piteous sort,
Felt his rough nature shaken too, and grants
His wife's request, and seals his grant with tears ;
And so they wept all four for company :
And some beholders stood not with dry eyes ;
Such passion wrought the passion of their prize.
Never was there pardon, that did take Condemned from the block more joyful than
This grant to her. For all her misery
Seem'd nothing to the comfort she receiv'd,
By being thus saved from impurity :
And from the woman's feet she would not part,
Nor trust her hand to be without some hold
Of her, or of the child, so long as she remain'd
Within the ship, which in few days arrives
At Alexandria, whence these pirates were ;
And there this woeful maid for two years space
Did serve, and truly serve this captain's wife,
(Who would not lose the benefit of her

Attendance, for her profit otherwise)
But daring not in such a place as that
To trust herself in woman's habit, crav'd
That she might be apparel'd like a boy ;
And so she was, and as a boy she served.
At two years end her mistress sends her forth
Unto the port for some commodities,
Which whilst she sought for, going up and down,
She heard some merchantmen of Corinth talk,
Who spake that language the Arcadians did,
And were next neighbours of one continent.
To them, all rapt with passion, down she kneels,
Tells them she was a poor distressed boy,
Born in Arcadia, and by pirates took,
And made a slave in Egypt ; and besought
Them, as they fathers were of children, or Did hold their native country dear, they would Take pity on her, and relieve her youth
From that sad servitude wherein she liv'd :
For which she hop'd that she had friends alive
Would thank them one day, and reward them too ;
If not, yet that she knew the heav'ns would do.
The merchants moved with pity of her case,
Being ready to depart, took her with them,
And landed her upon her country coast :
Where when she found herself, she prostrate falls,
Kisses the ground, thanks gives unto the gods,
Thanks them who had been her deliverers,
And on she trudges through the desert woods,
Climbs over craggy rocks, and mountains steep,
Wades thorough rivers, struggles thorough bogs,
Sustained only by the force of love ;
Until she came unto the native plains,
Unto the fields where first she drew her breath.
There she lifts up her eyes, salutes the air,

Salutes the trees, the bushes, flow'rs and all :
 And, " Oh, dear Sirthis, here I am," said she,
 " Here, notwithstanding all my miseries,
 " I am the same I was to thee ; a pure,
 " A chaste, and spotless maid."

ALAHAM: A TRAGEDY. BY FULKE GREVILLE,
 LORD BROOKE.

Alaham, second Son to the King of Ormus, deposes his Father : whose Eyes, and the Eyes of his elder Brother Zophi, (acting upon a maxim of Oriental Policy), he causes to be put out. They, blind, and fearing for their Lives, wander about. In this Extremity they are separately met by the King's Daughter Cælica, who conducts them to places of Refuge ; hiding her Father amid the Vaults of a Temple, and guiding her Brother to take Sanctuary at the Altar.

KING. CÆLICA.

King. Cælica ; thou only child, whom I repent
 Not yet to have begot, thy work is vain :
 Thou run'st against my destiny's intent.
 Fear not my fall ; the steep is fairest plain ;
 And error safest guide unto his end,
 Who nothing but mischance can have to friend.
 We parents are but nature's nursery ;
 When our succession springs, then ripe to fall.
 Privation unto age is natural.
 Age there is also in a prince's state,
 Which is contempt, grown of misgovernment ;
 Where love of change begetteth princes' hate :
 For hopes must wither, or grow violent,
 If fortune bind desires to one estate.
 Then mark ! Blind, as a man : scorn'd, as a king ;

A father's kindness loath'd, and desolate :
 Life without joy, or light : what can it bring,
 But inward horror unto outward hate ?
 O safety ! thou art then a hateful thing,
 When children's death assures the father's state.
 No, safe I am not, though my son were slain,
 My frailty would beget such sons again.
 Besides, if fatal be the heavens' will,
 Repining adds more force to destiny ;
 Whose iron wheels stay not on fleshly wit,
 But headlong run down steep necessity.
 And as in danger, we do catch at it
 That comes to help ; and unadvisedly
 Oft do our friends to our misfortune knit :
 So with the harm of those who would us good
 Is destiny impossibly withstood.

Cælica, then cease ; importune me no more :
 My son, my age, the state where things are now,
 Require my death. Who would consent to live
 Where love cannot revenge, nor truth forgive ?

Cælica. Though fear see nothing but extremity,
 Yet danger is no deep sea, but a ford,
 Where they that yield can only drowned be.
 In wrongs, and wounds, Sir, you are too remiss.
 To thrones a passive nature fatal is.

King. Occasion to my son hath turn'd her face ;
 My inward wants all outward strengths betray ;
 And so make that impossible I may.

Cælica. Yet live :
 Live for the state.

King. Whose ruins glasses are,
 Wherein see errors of myself I must,
 And hold my life of danger, shame, and care.

Cælica. When fear propounds, with loss men ever chuse.

King. Nothing is left me but myself to lose.

Cælica. And is it nothing then to lose the state?

King. Where chance is ripe, there counsel comes too late.

Cælica, by all thou ow'st the gods and me,

I do conjure thee, leave me to my chance.

What's past was error's way ; the truth it is,

Wherein I wretch can only go amiss.

If nature saw no cause of sudden ends,

She, that but one way made to draw our breath,

Would not have left so many doors to death.

Cælica. Yet, Sir, if weakness be not such a sand

As neither wrong nor counsel can manure ;

Chuse and resolve what death you will endure.

King. This sword, thy hands, may offer up my breath,

And plague my life's remissness in my death.

Cælica. Unto that duty if these hands be born,

I must think God, and truth, were names of scorn.

Again, this justice were if life were loved,

Now merely grace ; since death doth but forgive

A life to you, which is a death to live.

Pain must displease that satisfies offence.

King. Chance hath left death no more to spoil but sense.

Cælica. Then sword, do justice' office thorough me :

I offer more than that he hates to thee.

(Offers to kill herself.)

King. Ah ! stay thy hand. My state no equal hath,

And much more matchless my strange vices be :

One kind of death becomes not thee and me.

Kings' plagues by chance or destiny should fall ;

Headlong he perish must that ruins all.

Cælica. No cliff or rock is so precipitate,

But down it eyes can lead the blind away ;

Without me live, or with me die you may.

King. Cælica, and wilt thou Alaham exceed?
His cruelty is death, you torments use;
He takes my crown, you take myself from me;
A prince of this fall'n empire let me be.

Cælica. Then be a king, no tyrant of thyself:
Be; and be what you will: what nature lent
Is still in hers, and not our government.

King. If disobedience, and obedience both,
Still do me hurt; in what strange state am I?
But hold thy course: it well becomes my blood,
To do their parents mischief with their good.

Cælica. Yet, Sir, hark to the poor oppressed tears;
The just men's moan, that suffer by your fall;
A prince's charge is to protect them all.
And shall it nothing be that I am yours?
The world without, my heart within, doth know,
I never had unkind, unreverent powers.
If thus you yield to Alaham's treachery,
He ruins you: 'tis you, Sir, ruin me.

King. Cælica, call up the dead; awake the blind;
Turn back the time; bid winds tell whence they come:
As vainly strength speaks to a broken mind.
Fly from me, Cælica, hate all I do:
Misfortunes have in blood successions too.

Cælica. Will you do that which Alaham cannot?
He hath no good; you have no ill, but he:
This mar-right yielding's honor's tyranny.

King. Have I not done amiss? am I not ill,
That ruin'd have a king's authority?
And not one king alone; since princes all
Feel part of those scorns, whereby one doth fall.
Treason against me cannot treason be:
All laws have lost authority in me.

Cælica. The laws of power chain'd to men's humors be.
The good have conscience; the ill (like instruments)

Are, in the hands of wise authority,
Moved, divided, used, or laid down ;
Still, with desire, kept subject to a crown.
Stir up all states, all spirits : hope and fear,
Wrong and revenge, are current every where.

King. Put down my son : for that must be the way :
A father's shame ; a prince's tyranny ;
The sceptre ever shall misjudged be.

Cælica. Let them fear rumour that do work amiss ;
Blood, torments, death, horrors of cruelty,
Have time, and place. Look through these skins of fear,
Which still persuade the better side to bear.
And since thy son thus trait'rously conspires,
Let him not prey on all thy race, and thee :
Keep ill example from posterity.

King. Danger is come, and must I now unarm,
And let in hope to weaken resolution ?
Passion ! be thou my legacy and will ;
To thee I give my life, crown, reputation ;
My pomps to clouds ; and (as forlorn with men)
My strength to women ; hoping this alone,
Though fear'd, sought, and a king, to live unknown.
Cælica, all these to thee ; do thou bestow
This living darkness, wherein I do go.

Cælica. My soul now joys. Doing breathes horror out.
Absence must be our first step. Let us fly :
A pause in rage makes Alaham to doubt ;
Which doubt may stir in people hope, and fear,
With love, or hate, to seek you every where.
For princes' lives are fortune's misery :
As dainty sparks, which till men dead do know,
To kindle for himself each man doth blow.
But hark ! what's this ? Malice doth never sleep :
I hear the spies of power drawing near.
Sir, follow me : Misfortune's worst is come ;

Her strength is change : and change yields better doom.
 Choice now is past. Hard by there is a pile,
 Built under color of a sacrifice ;
 If God do grant, it is a place to save ;
 If God denies, it is a ready grave.

ZOPHI appears.

Cælica. What see I here ? more spectacles of woe !
 And are my kindred only made to be
 Agents and patients in iniquity ?
 Ah forlorn wretch ! ruin's example right !
 Lost to thyself, not to thy enemy,
 Whose hand even while thou fliest thou fall'st into ;
 And with thy fall thy father dost undo.
 Save one I may : Nature would save them both ;
 But Chance hath many wheels, Rage many eyes.
 What, shall I then abandon Innocents* ?
 Not help a helpless brother thrown on me ?
 Is nature narrow to adversity ?
 No, no. Our God left duty for a law ;
 Pity, at large ; love, in authority ;
 Despair, in bonds ; fear, of itself in awe :
 That rage of time, and power's strange liberty,
 Oppressing good men, might resistance find :
 Nor can I to a brother be less kind.
 Dost thou, that canst not see, hope to escape ?
 Disgrace can have no friend ; contempt no guide ;
 Right is thy guilt ; thy judge iniquity ;
 Which desolation casts on them that see.

Zophi. Make calm thy rage : pity a ghost distress :
 My right, my liberty, I freely give :
 Give him, that never harm'd thee, leave to live.

Cælica. Nay, God, the world, thy parents it deny ;

* Zophi is represented as a prince of weak understanding.

A brother's jealous heart ; usurped might
Grows friends with all the world, except thy right.

Zophi. Secure thyself. Exile me from this coast :
My fault, suspicion is ; my judge, is fear ;
Occasion, with myself, away I bear.

Cælica. Fly unto God : for in humanity
Hope there is none. Reach me thy fearful hand :
I am thy sister ; neither fiend, nor spy
Of tyrant's rage ; but one that feels despair
Of thy estate, which thou dost only fear.
Kneel down ; embrace this holy mystery ;
A refuge to the worst for rape and blood,
And yet, I fear, not hallow'd for the good.

Zophi. Help, God ! defend thine altar ! since thy might,
In earth, leaves innocents no other right.

Cælica. Eternal God ! that see'st thyself in us,
If vows be more than sacrifice of lust,
Rais'd from the smokes of hope and fear in us,
Protect this Innocent, calm Alaham's rage ;
By miracles faith goes from age to age.
Affection trembles ; reason is oppress ;
Nature, methinks, doth her own entrails tear :
In resolution ominous is fear.

Alaham causes Search to be made after his Father and Brother.

Zophi is discovered, and Cælica ; who, being questioned by Alaham where she has hid her Father, dissembles as though she thought that the King was dead ; but being threatened with the rack, her Exclamations call her Father from his hiding-place ; who, together with her, and her Brother Zophi, are sentenced by Alaham to the Flames.

ALAHAM. Attendants.

Alaham. Sirs, seek the city, examine, torture, rack ;
Sanctuaries none let there be ; make darkness known ;

Pull down the roofs, dig, burn, put all to wrack ;
 And let the guiltless for the guilty groan.
 Change, shame, misfortune, in their 'scaping lie,
 And in their finding our prosperity.

He sees Cælica.

Good fortune welcome ! We have lost our care,
 And found our loss : Cælica distract I see.
 The king is near : She is her father's eyes.

He sees Zophi.

Behold ! the forlorn wretch, half of my fear,
 Takes sanctuary at holy altar's feet :
 Lead him apart, examine, force, and try ;
 These bind the subject not the monarchy.
 Cælica ! awake : that God of whom you crave
 Is deaf, and only gives men what they have.

Cælica. Ah cruel wretch ! guilty of parent's blood !
 Might I, poor innocent, my father free,
 My murder yet were less impiety.
 But on ; devour : fear only to be good :
 Let us not scape : thy glory then doth rise,
 When thou at once thy house dost sacrifice.

Alaham. Tell me where thy father is.

Cælica. O bloody scorn,
 Must he be kill'd again that gave thee breath ?
 Is duty nothing else in thee but death ?

Alaham. Leave off this mask ; deceit is never wise ;
 Though he be blind, a king hath many eyes.

Cælica. O twofold scorn ! God be reveng'd for me.
 Yet since my father is destroy'd by thee,
 Add still more scorn, it sorrow multiplies.

Alaham. Passions are learn'd, not born within the heart,
 That method keep : Order is quiet's art.

Tell where he is : for look what love conceals,
Pain out of nature's labyrinths reveals.

Cælica. This is reward which thou dost threaten me :
If terror thou wilt threaten, promise joys.

Alaham. Smart cools these boiling styles of vanity.

Cælica. And if my father I no more shall see,
Help me unto the place where he remains :
To hell below, or to the sky above,
The way is easy where the guide is love.

Alaham. Confess ; where is he hid ?

Cælica. Rack not my woe.
Thy glorious pride of this unglorious deed
Doth mischief ripe, and therefore falling, shew.

Alaham. Bodies have place, and blindness must be led.

Graves be the thrones of kings when they be dead.

Cælica. He was (unhappy) cause that thou art now ;
Thou art, ah wicked ! cause that he is not,
And fear'st thou parricide can be forgot ?
Bear witness, though Almighty God on high,
And you black powers inhabiting below,
That for his life myself would yield to die.

Alaham. Well, Sirs, go seek the dark and secret caves,
The holy temples, sanctified cells,
All parts wherein a living corpse may dwell.

Cælica. Seek him amongst the dead, you placed him
there :

Yet lose no pains, good souls, go not to hell ;
And, but to heaven, you may go every where.
Guilty, with you, of his blood let me be,
If any more I of my father know,
Than that he is where you would have him go.

Alaham. Tear up the vaults. Behold her agonies !
Sorrow substracts, and multiplies, the spirits ;
Care, and desire, do under anguish cease ;

Doubt curious is, affecting piety ;
 Woe loves itself ; fear from itself would fly.
 Do not these trembling motions witness bear,
 That all these protestations be of fear ?

Cælica. If aught be quick in me, move it with scorn :
 Nothing can come amiss to thoughts forlorn.

Alaham. Confess in time. Revenge is merciless.

Cælica. Reward and pain, fear and desire too,
 Are vain in things impossible to do.

Alaham. Tell yet where thou thy father last did see.

Cælica. Even where he by his loss of eyes hath won
 That he no more shall see his monstrous son.
 First in perpetual night thou mad'st him go ;
 His flesh the grave ; his life the stage, where sense
 Plays all the tragedies of pain and woe.
 And wouldst thou trait'rously thyself exceed,
 By seeking thus to make his ghost to bleed ?

Alaham. Bear her away : devise ; add to the rack
 Torments, that both call death and turn it back.

Cælica. The flattering glass of power is others' pain.
 Perfect thy work ; that heaven and hell may know,
 To worse I cannot, going from thee, go.
 Eternal life, that ever liv'st above !
 If sense there be with thee of hate, or love ;
 Revenge my king and father's overthrow.
 O father ! if that name reach up so high,
 And be more than a proper word of art,
 To teach respects in our humanity ;
 Accept these pains, whereof you feel no smart.

The KING comes forth.

King. What sound is this of Cælica's distress ?
 Alaham, wrong not a silly sister's faith.
 'Tis plague enough that she is innocent ;
 My child, thy sister ; born (by thee and me)

With shame and sin to have affinity.
 Break me ; I am the prison of thy thought :
 Crowns dear enough with fathers' blood are bought.

Alaham. Now feel thou shalt, thou ghost unnatural,
 Those wounds which thou to my heart did'st give,
 When, in despite of God, this state, and me,
 Thou did'st from death mine elder brother free.
 The smart of king's oppression doth not die :
 Time rusteth malice ; rust wounds cruelly.

King. Flatter thy wickedness ; adorn thy rage ;
 To wear a crown, tear up thy father's age.
 Kill not thy sister : it is lack of wit
 To do an ill that brings no good with it.

Alaham. Go, lead them hence. Prepare the funeral.
 Hasten the sacrifice and pomp of woe.
 Where she did hide him, thither let them go.

A Nuntius (or Messenger) relates to Alaham the manner of his Father's, Brother's, and Sister's deaths ; and the popular discontents which followed. Alaham by the sudden working of Remorse is distracted, and imagines that he sees their Ghosts.

ALAHAM. Nuntius.

Nuntius. The first which burnt, as Cain* his next of kin,
 In blood your brother, and your prince in state,
 Drew wonder from men's hearts, brought horror in.
 This innocent, this soul too meek for sin,
 Yet made for others to do harm withal,
 With his self-pity tears drew tears from us ;
 His blood compassion had ; his wrong stirr'd hate :

* The execution, to make it plausible to the people, is colored with the pretext, that the being burnt is a voluntary sacrifice of themselves by the victims at the funeral of Cain a bashaw and relative.

Deceit is odious in a king's estate.
Repiningly he goes unto his end :
Strange visions rise ; strange furies haunt the flame ;
People cry out, Echo repeats, his name.
These words he spake, even breathing out his breath :
" Unhappy weakness ! never innocent !
" If in a crown, yet but an instrument.
" People ! observe ; this fact may make you see,
" Excess hath ruin'd what itself did build :
" But ah ! the more opprest the more you yield."
The next was He whose age had reverence,
His gesture something more than privateness ;
Guided by One, whose stately grace did move
Compassion, even in hearts that could not love.
As soon as these approached near the flame,
The wind, the steam, or furies, rais'd their veils ;
And in their looks this image did appear :
Each unto other, life to neither, dear.
These words he spake. " Behold one that hath lost
" Himself within ; and so the world without ;
" A king, that brings authority in doubt :
" This is the fruit of power's misgovernment.
" People ! my fall is just ; yet strange your fate,
" That, under worst, will hope for better state."
Grief roars aloud. Your sister yet remain'd ;
Helping in death to him in whom she died ;
Then going to her own, as if she gain'd,
These mild words spake with looks to heaven bent.
" O God ! 'Tis thou that suff'rest here, not we :
" Wrong doth but like itself in working thus :
" At thy will, Lord ! revenge thyself, not us."
The fire straight upward bears the souls in breath :
Visions of horror circle in the flame
With shapes and figures like to that of Death,

But lighter-tongued and nimbler wing'd than Fame :
Some to the church ; some to the people fly :

A voice cries out ; " revenge and liberty.

" Princes, take heed ; your glory is your care ;

" And power's foundations, strengths, not vices, are."

Alaham. What change is this, that now I feel within ?

Is it disease that works this fall of spirits ?

Or works this fall of spirits my disease ?

Things seem not as they did ; horror appears.

What Sin embodied, what strange sight is this ?

Doth sense bring back but what within me is ?

Or do I see those shapes which haunt the flame ?

What summons up remorse ? Shall conscience rate

Kings' deeds, to make them less than their estate ?

Ah silly ghost ! is't you that swarm about ?

Would'st thou, that art not now, a father be ?

These body laws do with the life go out.

What thoughts be these that do my entrails tear ?

You wand'ring spirits frame in me your hell ;

I feel my brother and my sister there.

MUSTAPHA: A TRAGEDY. BY FULKE GREVILLE,
LORD BROOKE.

Rossa, Wife to Solyman the Turkish Emperor, persuades her Husband, that Mustapha, his Son by a former Marriage, and Heir to his Crown, seeks his life : that she may make way, by the death of Mustapha, for the advancement of her own children, Zanger and Camena. Camena the virtuous Daughter of Rossa defends the Innocence of Mustapha, in a Conference which she holds with the Emperor.

CAMENA. SOLYMAN.

Cam. They that from youth do suck at fortune's breast,

And nurse their empty hearts with seeking higher,
Like dropsy-fed, their thirst doth never rest ;
For still, by getting, they beget desire :
Till thoughts, like wood, while they maintain the flame
Of high desires, grow ashes in the same.
But virtue ! those that can behold thy beauties,
Those that suck, from their youth, thy milk of goodness,
Their minds grow strong against the storms of fortune,
And stand, like rocks in winter-gusts, unshaken ;
Not with the blindness of desire mistaken.
O virtue therefore ! whose thrall I think fortune,
Thou who despisest not the sex of women,
Help me out of these riddles of my fortune,
Wherein (methinks) you with yourself do pose me :
Let fates go on : sweet virtue ! do not lose me.
My mother and my husband have conspired,
For brother's good, the ruin of my brother :
My father by my mother is inspired,
For one child to seek ruin of another.
I that to help by nature am required,

While I do help, must needs still hurt a brother.
While I see who conspire, I seem conspired
Against a husband, father, and a mother.
Truth bids me run, by truth I am retired ;
Shame leads me both the one way, and the other.
In what a labyrinth is honour cast,
Drawn divers ways with sex, with time, with state,
In all which, error's course is infinite,
By hope, by fear, by spite, by love, and hate ;
And but one only way unto the right,
A thorny way, where pain must be the guide,
Danger the light, offence of power the praise :
Such are the golden hopes of iron days.
Yet virtue, I am thine, for thy sake grieved
(Since basest thoughts, for their ill-plac'd desires,
In shame, in danger, death, and torment, glory)
That I cannot with more pains write thy story.
Chance, therefore, if thou scornest those that scorn thee ;
Fame, if thou hatest those that force thy trumpet
To sound aloud, and yet despise thy sounding ;
Laws, if you love not those that be examples
Of nature's laws, whence you are fall'n corrupted ;
Conspire that I, against you all conspired,
Joined with tyrant virtue, as you call her,
That I, by your revenges may be named,
For virtue, to be ruin'd, and defamed.
My mother oft and diversly I warned,
What fortunes were upon such courses builded :
That fortune still must be with ill maintained,
Which at the first with any ill is gained.
I Rosten* warn'd, that man's self-loving thought
Still creepeth to the rude-embracing might
Of princes' grace : a lease of glories let,

* Her Husband.

Which shining burns ; breeds serenes when tis set.
And, by this creature of my mother's making,
This messenger, I Mustapha have warn'd,
That innocence is not enough to save,
Where good and greatness, fear and envy have.
Till now, in reverence I have forborn
To ask, or to presume to guess, or know
My father's thoughts ; whereof he might think scorn :
For dreadful is that power that all may do ;
Yet they, that all men fear, are fearful too.
Lo where he sits ! Virtue, work thou in me,
That what thou seekest may accomplish'd be.

Solym. Ah death ! is not thyself sufficient anguish,
But thou must borrow fear, that threatning glass,
Which, while it goodness hides, and mischief shows,
Doth lighten wit to honor's overthrows ?
But hush ! methinks away Camena steals ;
Murther, belike, in me itself reveals.
Camena ! whither now ? why haste you from me ?
Is it so strange a thing to be a father ?
Or is it I that am so strange a father ?

Cam. My lord, methought, nay, sure I saw you busy :
Your child presumes, uncall'd, that comes unto you.

Solym. Who may presume with fathers, but their own,
Whom nature's law hath ever in protection,
And gilds in good belief of dear affection ?

Cam. Nay, reverence, Sir, so children's worth doth hide,
As of the fathers it is least espy'd.

Solym. I think 'tis true, who know their children least,
Have greatest reason to esteem them best.

Cam. How so, my lord ? since love in knowledge lives,
Which unto strangers therefore no man gives.

Solym. The life we gave them soon they do forget,
While they think our lives do their fortunes let.

Cam. The tenderness of life it is so great,
As any sign of death we hate too much ;
And unto parents sons, perchance, are such.
Yet nature meant her strongest unity
Twixt sons and fathers ; making parents cause
Unto the sons, of their humanity ;
And children pledge of their eternity.
Fathers should love this image in their sons.

Solym. But streams back to their springs do never run.

Cam. Pardon, my lord, doubt is succession's foe :
Let not her mists poor children overthrow.
Though streams from springs do seem to run away,
Tis nature leads them to their mother sea.

Solym. Doth nature teach them, in ambition's strife,
To seek his death, by whom they have their life ?

Cam. Things easy, to desire impossible do seem :
Why should fear make impossible seem easy ?

Solym. Monsters yet be, and being are believed.

Cam. Incredible hath some inordinate progression :
Blood, doctrine, age, corrupting liberty,
Do all concur, where men such monsters be.
Pardon me, Sir, if duty do seem angry :
Affection must breathe out afflicted breath,
Where imputation hath such easy faith.

Solym. Mustapha is he that hath defil'd his nest ;
The wrong the greater for I loved him best.
He hath devised that all at once should die.
Rosten, and Rossa, Zanger, thou, and I.

Cam. Fall none but angels suddenly to hell ?
Are kind and order grown precipitate ?
Did ever any other man but he
In instant lose the use of doing well ?
Sir, these be mists of greatness. Look again :
For kings that, in their fearful icy state,

Behold their children as their winding-sheet,
Do easily doubt; and what they doubt, they hate.

Solym. Camena! thy sweet youth, that knows no ill
Cannot believe thine elders, when they say,
That good belief is great estates' decay.
Let it suffice, that I, and Rossa too,
Are privy what your brother means to do.

Cam. Sir, pardon me, and nobly, as a father,
What I shall say, and say of holy mother;
Know I shall say it, but to right a brother.
My mother is your wife: duty in her
Is love: she loves: which not well govern'd, bears
The evil angel of misgiving fears;
Whose many eyes, whilst but itself they see,
Still makes the worst of possibility:
Out of this fear she Mustapha accuseth:
Unto this fear, perchance, she joins the love
Which doth in mothers for their children move.
Perchance, when fear hath shew'd her yours must fall,
In love she sees that hers must rise withall.
Sir, fear a frailty is, and may have grace,
And over-care of you cannot be blamed;
Care of our own in nature hath a place;
Passions are oft mistaken and misnamed;
Things simply good grow evil with misplacing.
Though laws cut off, and do not care to fashion,
Humanity of error hath compassion.
Yet God forbid, that either fear, or care,
Should ruin those that true and faultless are.

Solym. Is it no fault, or fault I may forgive,
For son to seek the father should not live?

Cam. Is it a fault, or fault for you to know,
My mother doubts a thing that is not so?
These ugly works of monstrous parricide,
Mark from what hearts they rise, and where they bide:

Violent, despair'd, where honor broken is ;
Fear lord, time death ; where hope is misery ;
Doubt having stopt all honest ways to bliss ;
And custom shut the windows up of shame,
That craft may take upon her wisdom's name.
Compare now Mustapha with this despair :
Sweet youth, sure hopes, honor, a father's love,
No infamy to move, or banish fear,
Honor to stay, hazard to hasten fate :
Can horrors work in such a child's estate ?
Besides, the gods, whom kings should imitate,
Have placed you high to rule, not overthrow ;
For us, not for yourselves, is your estate :
Mercy must hand in hand with power go.
Your sceptre should not strike with arms of fear,
Which fathoms all men's imbecility,
And mischief doth, lest it should mischief bear.
As reason deals within with frailty,
Which kills not passions that rebellious are,
But adds, subtracts, keeps down ambitious spirits.
So must power form, not ruin instruments :
For flesh and blood, the means 'twixt heav'n and hell,
Unto extremes extremely racked be ;
Which kings in art of government should see :
Else they, which circle in themselves with death,
Poison the air wherein they draw their breath.
Pardon, my lord, pity becomes my sex :
Grace with delay grows weak, and fury wise.
Remember Theseus' wish, and Neptune's haste,
Kill'd innocence, and left succession waste.

Solym. If what were best for them that do offend,
Laws did enquire, the answer must be grace.
If mercy be so large, where's justice' place ?

Cam. Where love despairs, and where God's promise ends.

For mercy is the highest reach of wit,

A safety unto them that save with it :
 Born out of God, and unto human eyes,
 Like God, not seen, till fleshly passion dies.

Solym. God may forgive, whose being, and whose harms

Are far removed from reach of fleshly arms :
 But if God equals or successors had,
 Even God of safe revenges would be glad.

Cam. While he is yet alive, he may be slain ;
 But from the dead no flesh comes back again.

Solym. While he remains alive, I live in fear.

Cam. Though he were dead, that doubt still living were.

Solym. None hath the power to end what he begun.

Cam. The same occasion follows every son.

Solym. Their greatness, or their worth, is not so much.

Cam. And shall the best be slain for being such ?

Solym. Thy mother, or thy brother, are amiss ;

I am betray'd, and one of them it is.

Cam. My mother if she errs, errs virtuously ;
 And let her err, ere Mustapha should die.

Solym. Kings for their safety must not blame mistrust.

Cam. Nor for surmises sacrifice the just.

Solym. Well, dear Camena, keep this secretly :
 I will be well advised before he die.

Heli a Priest acquaints Mustapha with the intentions of his Father towards him, and counsels him to seek his safety in the Destruction of Rossa and her Faction. Mustapha refuses to save his Life at the Expense of the Public Peace ; and being sent for by his Father, obeys the Mandate to his Destruction.

Priest. Thy father purposeth thy death.

Must. What have I to my father done amiss ?

Priest. That wicked Rossa thy step-mother is.

Must. Wherein have I of Rossa ill-deserved ?

Priest. In that the empire is for thee reserved.

Must. Is it a fault to be my father's son ?

Ah foul ambition ! which like water floods
Not channel-bound dost neighbours over-run,
And growest nothing when thy rage is done.

Must Rossa's heirs out of my ashes rise ?

Yet, Zanger, I acquit thee of my blood ;

For I believe, thy heart hath no impression

To ruin Mustapha for his succession.

But tell what colors they against me use,

And how my father's love they first did wound ?

Priest. Of treason towards him they thee accuse :
Thy fame and greatness gives their malice ground,

Must. Good world, where it is danger to be good !

Yet grudge I not power of myself to power :

This baseness only in mankind I blame,

That indignation should give laws to fame.

Shew me the truth.—To what rules am I bound ?

Priest. No man commanded is by God to die,
As long as he may persecution fly.

Must. To fly, hath scorn,—it argues guiltiness,
Inherits fear, weakly abandons friends,
Gives tyrants fame, takes honor from distress——
Death do thy worst ! thy greatest pains have end.

Priest. Mischief is like the cockatrice's eyes,
Sees first, and kills ; or is seen first, and dies.

Fly to thy strength, which makes misfortune vain.

Rossa intends thy ruin. What is she ?

Seek in her bowels for thy father lost :

Who can redeem a king with viler cost ?

Must. O false and wicked colors of desire !

Eternal bondage unto him that seeks

To be possess of all things that he likes !

Shall I, a son and subject, seem to dare,

For any selfness, to set realms on fire ;
Which golden titles to rebellions are ?
Heli, even you have told me, wealth was given
The wicked, to corrupt themselves and others ;
Greatness and health to make flesh proud and cruel,
Where in the good, sickness mows down desire,
Death glorifies, misfortune humbles.
Since therefore life is but the throne of woe,
Which sickness, pain, desire, and fear inherit,
Ever most worth to men of weakest spirit ;
Shall we, to languish in this brittle jail,
Seek, by ill deeds, to shun ill destiny ;
And so, for toys, lose immortality ?

Priest. Fatal necessity is never known
Until it strike ; and till that blow be come,
Who falls is by false visions overthrown.

Must. Blasphemous love ! safe conduct of the ill !
What power hath given man's wickedness such skill ?

Priest. Ah servile men ! how are your thoughts bewitch'd

With hopes and fears, the price of your subjection
That neither sense nor time can make you see,
The art of power will leave you nothing free !

Must. Is it in us to rule a Sultan's will ?

Priest. We made them first for good, and not for ill.

Must. Our Gods they are, their God remains above.
To think against anointed power is death.

Priest. To worship tyrants is no work of faith.

Must. 'Tis rage of folly that contends with fate.

Priest. Yet hazard something to preserve the state.

Must. Sedition wounds what should preserved be.

Priest. To wound power's humors, keeps their honors free.

Must. Admit this true : what sacrifice prevails ?

Priest. Force the petition is that never fails.

Must. Where then is nature's place for innocence ?

Priest. Prosperity, that never makes offence.

Must. Hath destiny no wheels but mere occasion ?

Priest. Could east upon the west else make invasion ?

Must. Confusion follows where obedience leaves.

Priest. The tyrant only that event deceives.

Must. And are the ways of truth and honor such ?

Priest. Weakness doth ever think it owes too much.

Must. Hath fame her glorious colors out of fear ?

Priest. What is the world to him that is not there ?

Must. Tempt me no more. Good-will is then a pain,
When her words beat the heart and cannot enter.
I constant in my counsel do remain,
And more lives for my own life will not venture.
My fellows, rest : our Alcoran doth bind,
That I alone should first my father find.

A Messenger enters.

Messenger. Sir, by our lords commandment, here I wait,

To guide you to his presence,
Where, like a king and father, he intends
To honor and acquaint you with his ends.

Must. Heli, farewell, all fates are from above
Chain'd unto humors that must rise or fall.
Think what we will : men do but what they shall.

Achmat describes the manner of Mustapha's Execution to Zanger.

ACHMAT. ZANGER.

Achm. When Solyman, by cunning spite
Of Rossa's witchcrafts, from his heart had banish'd
Justice of kings, and lovingness of fathers,
To wage and lodge such camps of heady passions,
As that sect's cunning practices could gather ;

Envy took hold of worth : doubt did misconstrue ;
Renown was made a lie, and yet a terror :
Nothing could calm his rage, or move compassion :
Mustapha must die. To which end fetch'd he was,
Laden with hopes and promises of favor.
So vile a thing is craft in every heart,
As it makes power itself descend to art.
While Mustapha, that neither hoped nor feared,
Seeing the storms of rage and danger coming,
Yet came ; and came accompanied with power.
But neither power, which warranted his safety,
Nor safety, that makes violence a justice,
Could hold him from obedience to this throne :
A gulph, which hath devoured many a one.

Zang. Alas ! could neither truth appease his fury,
Nor his unlook'd humility of coming,
Nor any secret-witnessing remorse ?
Can nature from herself make such divorces ?
Tell on, that all the world may rue and wonder.

Achm. There is a place environed with trees,
Upon whose shadow'd centre there is pitch'd
A large embroider'd sumptuous pavilion ;
The stately throne of tyranny and murder ;
Where mighty men are slain, before they know
That they to other than to honor go.
Mustapha no sooner to the port did come,
But thither he is sent for and conducted
By six slave eunuchs, either taught to color
Mischief with reverence, or forced, by nature,
To reverence true virtue in misfortune.
While Mustapha, whose heart was now resolved,
Not fearing death, which he might have prevented ;
Nor craving life, which he might well have gotten,
If he would other duties have forgotten ;
Yet glad to speak his last thoughts to his father,

Desired the eunuchs to entreat it for him.
They did ; wept they, and kneeled to his father.
But bloody rage that glories to be cruel,
And jealousy that fears she is not fearful,
Made Solyman refuse to hear, or pity.
He bids them haste their charge : and bloody-eyed
Beholds his son, while he obeying died.

Zang. How did that doing heart endure to suffer ?
Tell on.

Quicken my powers, harden'd and dull to good,
Which, yet unmoved, hear tell of brother's blood.

Achm. While these six eunuchs to this charge appointed (Whose hearts had never used their hands to pity, Whose hands, now only, trembled to do murder)
With reverence and fear stood still amazed ;
Loth to cut off such worth, afraid to save it :
Mustapha, with thoughts resolved and united,
Bids them fulfil their charge and look no further.
Their hearts afraid to let their hands be doing,
The cord, that hateful instrument of murder,
They lifting up let fall, and falling lift it :
Each sought to help, and helping hinder'd other.
Till Mustapha, in haste to be an angel,
With heavenly smiles, and quiet words, foreshows
The joy and peace of those souls where he goes.
His last words were ; " O father now forgive me ;
" Forgive them too that wrought my overthrow :
" Let my grave never minister offences.
" For since my father coveteth my death,
" Behold with joy I offer him my breath."
The eunuchs roar : Solyman his rage is gluttet :
His thoughts divine of vengeance for this murder :
Rumor flies up and down : the people murmur :
Sorrow gives laws before men know the truth :
Fear prophecies aloud, and threatens ruth.

Rosten describes to Achmat the popular Fury which followed upon the Execution of Mustapha.

ROSTEN. ACHMAT.

Ros. When Mustapha was by the eunuchs strangled,
Forthwith his camp grew doubtful of his absence :
The guard of Solyman himself did murmur :
People began to search their prince's counsels :
Fury gave laws : the laws of duty vanisht :
Kind fear of him they lov'd self-fear had banisht.
The headlong spirits were the heads that guided :
He that most disobeyed, was most obeyed.
Fury so suddenly became united,
As while her forces nourished confusion,
Confusion seem'd with discipline delighted.
Towards Solyman they run : and as the waters,
That meet with banks of snow, makes snow grow water :
So, even those guards, that stood to interrupt them,
Give easy passage, and pass on amongst them.
Solyman, who saw this storm of mischief coming,
Thinks absence his best argument unto them :
Retires himself, and sends me to demand,
What they demanded, or what meant their coming ?
I speak : they cry'd for Mustapha and Achmat.
Some bid away ; some kill ; some save ; some hearken.
Those that cried save, were those that sought to kill me.
Who cried hark, were those that first brake silence :
They held that bade me go. Humility was guilty ;
Words were reproach ; silence in me was scornful ;
They answer'd ere they ask'd ; assured, and doubted.
I fled ; their fury follow'd to destroy me ;
Fury made haste ; haste multiplied their fury ;
Each would do all ; none would give place to other.
The hindmost strake ; and while the foremost lifted

Their arms to strike, each weapon hinder'd other :
Their running let their strokes, strokes let their running.
Desire, mortal enemy to desire,
Made them that sought my life, give life unto me.

[These two Tragedies of Lord Brooke might with more propriety have been termed political treatises, than plays. Their author has strangely contrived to make passion, character and interest, of the highest order subservient to the expression of state dogmas and mysteries. He is nine parts Machiavel and Tacitus, for one part Sophocles or Seneca. In this writer's estimate of the faculties of his own mind, the understanding must have held a most tyrannical pre-eminence. Whether we look into his plays, or his most passionate love-poems, we shall find all frozen and made rigid with intellect. The finest movements of the human heart, the utmost grandeur of which the soul is capable, are essentially comprized in the actions and speeches of Cælica and Camena. Shakspeare, who seems to have had a peculiar delight in contemplating womanly perfection, whom for his many sweet images of female excellence all women are in an especial manner bound to love, has not raised the ideal of the female character higher than Lord Brooke in these two women has done. But it requires a study equivalent to the learning of a new language to understand their meaning when they speak. It is indeed hard to hit :

Much like thy riddle, Samson, in one day
Or seven though one should musing sit.

It is as if a being of pure intellect should take upon him to express the emotions of our sensitive natures. There would be all knowledge, but sympathetic expression would be wanting.]

THE CASE IS ALTERED: A COMEDY. BY BEN. JONSON.

The present Humour to be followed.

AURELIA, PHŒNIXELLA, Sisters: their Mother being lately dead.

Aur. Room for a case of matrons, color'd black :
How motherly my mother's death hath made us !
I would I had some girls now to bring up ;
O I could make a wench so virtuous,
She should say grace to every bit of meat,
And gape no wider than a wafer's thickness,
And she should make French court'sies so most low
That every touch should turn her over backward.

Phœn. Sister, these words become not your attire,
Nor your estate ; our virtuous mother's death
Should print more deep effects of sorrow in us,
Than may be worn out in so little time.

Aur. Sister, i'faith you take too much tobacco,
It makes you black within as you're without.
What, true-stitch sister, both your sides alike !
Be of a slighter work ; for, of my word,
You shall be sold as dear, or rather dearer.
Will you be bound to customs and to rites,
Shed profitable tears, weep for advantage ;
Or else do all things as you are inclined ?
Eat when your stomach serves, saith the physician,
Not at eleven and six. So, if your humour
Be now affected with this heaviness,
Give it the reins, and spare not ; as I do
In this my pleasurable appetite.
It is Precisianism to alter that,
With austere judgment, that is giv'n by nature.

I wept (you saw) too, when my mother died ;
 For then I found it easier to do so,
 And fitter with my mode, than not to weep :
 But now 'tis otherwise. Another time
 Perhaps I shall have such deep thoughts of her,
 That I shall weep afresh some twelvemonth hence ;
 And I will weep, if I be so disposed ;
 And put on black as grimly then as now.—
 Let the mind go still with the body's stature :
 Judgment is fit for judges ; give me nature.

Presentiment of Treachery, vanishing at the sight of the person suspected.

Lord PAULO FARNEZE. (Speaking to himself of ANGELO.)

— My thoughts cannot propose a reason
 Why I should fear or faint thus in my hopes
 Of one so much endeared to my love :
 Some spark it is, kindled within the soul,
 Whose light yet breaks not to the outward sense,
 That propagates this timorous suspect.
 His actions never carried any force
 Of change, or weakness ; then I injure him,
 In being thus cold-conceited of his faith.
 O here he comes.

(While he speaks ANGELO enters.)

Angelo. How now, sweet Lord, what's the matter ?

Paul. Good faith, his presence makes me half ashamed
 Of my stray'd thoughts.

Jaques (a Miser) worships his Gold.

Jac. Tis not to be told
 What servile villainies men will do for gold.
 O it began to have a huge strong smell,
 With lying so long together in a place :

I'll give it vent, it shall have shift enough ;
 And if the devil, that envies all goodness,
 Have told them of my gold, and where I kept it,
 I'll set his burning nose once more a work
 To smell where I removed it. Here it is ;
 I'll hide and cover it with this horse-dung.
 Who will suppose that such a precious nest
 Is crown'd with such a dunghill excrement ?
 In, my dear life, sleep sweetly, my dear child,
 Scarce lawfully begotten, but yet gotten,
 And that's enough. Rot all hands that come near thee,
 Except mine own. Burn out all eyes that see thee,
 Except mine own. All thoughts of thee be poison
 To their enamour'd hearts, except mine own.
 I'll take no leave, sweet prince, great emperor,
 But see thee every minute : king of kings,
 I'll not be rude to thee, and turn my back
 In going from thee, but go backward out,
 With my face toward thee, with humble courtesies.

[The passion for wealth has worn out much of its grossness by tract of time. Our ancestors certainly conceived of money as able to confer a distinct gratification in itself, not alone considered simply as a symbol of wealth. The old poets, when they introduce a miser, constantly make him address his gold as his mistress ; as something to be seen, felt, and hugged ; as capable of satisfying two of the senses at least. The substitution of a thin unsatisfying medium for the good old tangible gold, has made avarice quite a Platonic affection in comparison with the seeing, touching, and handling pleasures of the old Chrysophilites. A bank-note can no more satisfy the touch of a true sensualist in this passion, than Creusa could return her husband's embrace in the shades.— See the Cave of Mammon in Spenser : Barabas's contemplation of his wealth, in the Jew of Malta ; Luke's raptures in the City Madam, &c. Above all hear Guzman, in that excellent old Spanish Novel, The Rogue, expatiate on the " ruddy cheeks of your golden Ruddocks, your Spanish Pistolets, your plump and full-faced Portuguese, and your clear-skin'd pieces of eight of Castile," which he and his fellows the beggars kept secret to themselves, and did "privately enjoy in a plentiful manner." "For to have them, for to pay them away, is not to enjoy them; to enjoy them is to have them lying by us, having no other need of them than to use them for the clearing of the eye-sight, and the comforting of our senses. These we did carry about with us, sewing them in some patches of our doublets near unto the heart, and as close to the skin as we could handsomely quilt them in, holding them to be restorative."]

POETASTER; OR, HIS ARRAIGNMENT. A COMICAL
SATYR. BY BEN. JONSON.

Ovid bewails his hard condition in being banished from Court and the Society of the Princess Julia.

OVID.

Banish'd the court? let me be banish'd life,
Since the chief end of life is there concluded.
Within the court is all the kingdom bounded;
And as her sacred sphere doth comprehend
Ten thousand times so much, as so much place
In any part of all the empire else,
So every body, moving in her sphere,
Contains ten thousand times as much in him
As any other her choice orb excludes.
As in a circle a magician, then,
Is safe against the spirit he excites,
But out of it is subject to his rage,
And loseth all the virtue of his art,
So I, exil'd the circle of the court,
Lose all the good gifts that in it I joy'd.
No virtue current is, but with her stamp;
And no vice vicious, blanch'd with her white hand.
The court's the abstract of all Rome's desert,

And my dear Julia th' abstract of the court.
 Methinks, now I come near her, I respire
 Some air of that late comfort I receiv'd :
 And while the evening, with her modest veil,
 Gives leave to such poor shadows as myself
 To steal abroad, I, like a heartless ghost,
 Without the living body of my love,
 Will here walk, and attend her. For I know
 Not far from hence she is imprisoned,
 And hopes of her strict guardian to bribe
 So much admittance, as to speak to me,
 And cheer my fainting spirits with her breath.

JULIA appears above at her Chamber-window.

Jul. Ovid ! my love !

Ovid. Here, heav'nly Julia.

Jul. Here ! and not here ! O how that word doth play
 With both our fortunes, differing, like ourselves ;
 Both one, and yet divided, as opposed ;
 I high, thou low ! O this our plight of place
 Doubly presents the two lets of our love,
 Local and ceremonial height and lowness ;
 Both ways, I am too high, and thou too low.
 Our minds are even, yet : O why should our bodies,
 That are their slaves, be so without their rule ?
 I'll cast myself down to thee ; if I die,
 I'll ever live with thee : no height of birth,
 Of place, of duty, or of cruel power,
 Shall keep me from thee ; should my father lock
 This body up within a tomb of brass,
 Yet I'll be with thee. If the forms, I hold
 Now in my soul, be made one substance with it ;
 That soul immortal ; and the same 'tis now ;
 Death cannot raze the effects she now retaineth :
 And then may she be any where she will.

The souls of parents rule not children's souls ;
When death sets both in their dissolv'd estates,
Then is no child nor father : then eternity
Frees all from any temporal respect.

I come, my Ovid, take me in thine arms ;
And let me breathe my soul into thy breast.

Ovid. O stay, my love ; the hopes thou dost conceive
Of thy quick death, and of thy future life,
Are not authentical. Thou chusest death,
So thou might'st joy thy love in th' other life.
But know, my princely love, when thou art dead,
Thou only must survive in perfect soul ;
And in the soul are no affections :
We pour out our affections with our blood ;
And with our blood's affections fade our loves.
No life hath love in such sweet state as this ;
No essence is so dear to moody sense,
As flesh and blood, whose quintessence is sense.
Beauty, compos'd of blood and flesh, moves more,
And is more plausible to blood and flesh,
Than spiritual beauty can be to the spirit.
Such apprehension as we have in dreams
(When sleep, the bond of senses, locks them up)
Such shall we have when death destroys them quite.
If love be then thy object, change not life ;
Live high and happy still ; I still below,
Close with my fortunes, in thy height shall joy.

Jul. Ay me, that virtue, whose brave eagle's wings
With every stroke blow stars in burning heaven,
Should like a swallow (preying toward storms)
Fly close to earth ; and, with an eager plume
Pursue those objects which none else can see,
But seem to all the world the empty air.
Thus thou, poor Ovid, and all virtuous men,
Must prey like swallows on invisible food ;

Pursuing flies, or nothing : and thus love,
 And every worldly fancy, is transpos'd
 By worldly tyranny to what plight it list.
 O, father, since thou gav'st me not my mind,
 Strive not to rule it ; take but what thou gav'st
 To thy disposure : thy affections
 Rule not in me ; I must bear all my griefs ;
 Let me use all my pleasures : Virtuous love
 Was never scandal to a goddess' state.
 But he's inflexible ! and, my dear love,
 Thy life may chance be shorten'd by the length
 Of my unwilling speeches to depart.
 Farewell, sweet life : though thou be yet exil'd
 Th' officious court, enjoy me amply still :
 My soul, in this my breath, enters thine ears ;
 And on this turret's floor will I lie dead,
 Till we may meet again. In this proud height,
 I kneel beneath thee in my prostrate love,
 And kiss the happy sands that kiss thy feet.
 Great Jove submits a sceptre to a cell ;
 And lovers, ere they part, will meet in hell.

Ovid. Farewell all company, and, if I could,
 All light, with thee : hell's shade should hide my brows,
 Till thy dear beauty's beams redeem'd my vows.

Jul. Ovid, my love : alas ! may we not stay
 A little longer, think'st thou, undiscern'd ?

Ovid. For thine own good, fair goddess, do not stay.
 Who would engage a firmament of fires,
 Shining in thee, for me, a falling star ?
 Begone, sweet life-blood : if I should discern
 Thyself but touch'd for my sake, I should die.

Jul. I will begone then ; and not heav'n itself
 Shall draw me back.

Ovid. Yet, Julia, if thou wilt,
 A little longer stay.

Jul. I am content.

Ovid. O mighty Ovid ! what the sway of heav'n
Could not retire, my breath hath turned back.

Jul. Who shall go first, my love ? my passionate eyes
Will not endure to see thee turn from me.

Ovid. If thou go first, my soul will follow thee.

Jul. Then we must stay.

Ovid. Ay me, there is no stay
In amorous pleasures. If both stay, both die.
I hear thy father. Hence, my deity.

(Julia goes in.)

Fear forgeth sounds in my deluded ears ;
I did not hear him : I am mad with love.
There is no spirit, under heav'n, that works
With such illusion : yet, such witchcraft kill me,
Ere a sound mind, without it, save my life.
Here on my knees I worship the blest place,
That held my goddess ; and the loving air,
That clos'd her body in his silken arms.
Vain Ovid ! kneel not to the place, nor air :
She's in thy heart ; rise then, and worship there.
The truest wisdom, silly men can have,
Is dotage on the follies of their flesh.—

Augustus discourses with his Courtiers concerning Poetry.

CÆSAR, MECÆNAS, GALLUS, TIBULLUS, HORACE.
Equites Romani.

Cæs. We, that have conquer'd still to save the con-
quer'd,
And loved to make inflictions fear'd, not felt ;
Griev'd to reprove, and joyful to reward,
More proud of reconciliation than revenge,
Resume into the late state of our love

Worthy Cornelius Gallus and Tibullus *.
You both are gentlemen ; you Cornelius,
A soldier of renown, and the first provost
That ever let our Roman Eagles fly
On swarthy Egypt, quarried with her spoils.
Yet (not to bear cold forms, nor men's out-terms,
Without the inward fires, and lives of men)
You both have virtues, shining through your shapes ;
To shew, your titles are not writ on posts,
Or hollow statues ; which the best men are,
Without Promethean stuffings reach'd from heaven.
Sweet Poesy's sacred garlands crown your gentry :
Which is, of all the faculties on earth,
The most abstract, and perfect, if she be
True born, and nurst with all the sciences.
She can so mould Rome, and her monuments,
Within the liquid marble of her lines,
That they shall stand fresh and miraculous,
Even when they mix with innovating dust ;
In her sweet streams shall our brave Roman spirits
Chase, and swim after death, with their choice deeds
Shining on their white shoulders ; and therein
Shall Tyber, and our famous rivers, fall
With such attraction, that th' ambitious line
Of the round world shall to her centre shrink,
To hear their music. And for these high parts,
Cæsar shall reverence the Pierian arts.

Mec. Your majesty's high grace to poesy
Shall stand 'gainst all the dull detractions
Of leaden souls ; who for the vain assumings
Of some, quite worthless of her sovereign wreaths,
Contain her worthiest prophets in contempt.

* They had offended the Emperor by concealing the love of Ovid for the Princess Julia.

Gal. Happy is Rome of all earth's other states,
 To have so true and great a president,
 For her inferior spirits to imitate,
 As Cæsar is ; who addeth to the sun
 Influence and lustre, in increasing thus
 His inspirations, kindling fire in us.

Hor. Phœbus himself shall kneel at Cæsar's shrine
 And deck it with bay-garlands dew'd with wine,
 To quit the worship Cæsar does to him :
 Where other princes, hoisted to their thrones
 By Fortune's passionate and disorder'd power,
 Sit in their height like clouds before the sun,
 Hind'ring his comforts ; and (by their excess
 Of cold in virtue, and cross heat in vice)
 Thunder and tempest on those learned heads,
 Whom Cæsar with such honour doth advance.

Tib. All human business Fortune doth command
 Without all order ; and with her blind hand,
 She, blind, bestows blind gifts : that still have nurst,
 They see not who, nor how, but still the worst.

Cæs. Cæsar, for his rule, and for so much stuff
 As Fortune puts in his hand, shall dispose it
 (As if his hand had eyes, and soul, in it)
 With worth and judgement. Hands that part with gifts,

Or will restrain their use, without desert,
 Or with a misery, numb'd to Virtue's right,
 Work, as they had no soul to govern them,
 And quite reject her : sev'ring their estates
 From human order. Whosoever can,
 And will not cherish Virtue, is no man.

Eques. Virgil is now at hand, imperial Cæsar.

Cæs. Rome's honour is at hand then. Fetch a chair,
 And set it on our right-hand ; where 'tis fit,
 Rome's honour and our own should ever sit.

Now he is come out of Campania,
I doubt not he hath finish'd all his Æneids ;
Which, like another soul, I long t' enjoy.
What think you three of Virgil, gentlemen,
(That are of his profession though rank'd higher)
Or, Horace, what sayst thou, that art the poorest,
And likeliest to envy or to detract ?

Hor. Cæsar speaks after common men in this,
To make a difference of me for my poorness :
As if the filth of poverty sunk as deep
Into a knowing spirit, as the bane
Of riches doth into an ignorant soul.
No, Cæsar ; they be pathless moorish minds,
That being once made rotten with the dung
Of damnel riches, ever after sink
Beneath the steps of any villainy.
But knowledge is the nectar, that keeps sweet
A perfect soul, even in this grave of sin ;
And for my soul, it is as free as Cæsar's :
For what I know is due I'll give to all.
He that detracts, or envies virtuous merit,
Is still the covetous and the ignorant spirit.

Cæs. Thanks, Horace, for thy free and wholesome sharpness :

Which pleaseth Cæsar more than servile fawns.
A flatter'd prince soon turns the prince of fools.
And for thy sake, we'll put no difference more
Between the great and good for being poor.
Say then, loved Horace, thy true thought of Virgil.

Hor. I judge him of a rectified spirit,
By many revolutions of discourse,
(In his bright reason's influence) refined
From all the tartarous moods of common men ;
Bearing the nature and similitude
Of a right heavenly body ; most severe

In fashion and collection of himself :

And then as clear and confident as Jove.

Gal. And yet so chaste and tender is his ear,
In suffering any syllable to pass,
That he thinks may become the honour'd name
Of issue to his so examined self ;
That all the lasting fruits of his full merit
In his own poems, he doth still distaste ;
As if his mind's piece, which he strove to paint,
Could not with fleshly pencils have her right.

Tib. But to approve his works of sovereign worth,
This observation (methinks) more than serves ;
And is not vulgar. That which he hath writ,
Is with such judgment labour'd, and distill'd
Through all the needful uses of our lives,
That could a man remember but his lines,
He should not touch at any serious point,
But he might breathe his spirit out of him.

Cæs. You mean he might repeat part of his works,
As fit for any conference he can use ?

Tib. True, royal Cæsar.

Cæs. Worthily observed :
And a most worthy virtue in his works.
What thinks material Horace of his learning ?

Hor. His learning savours not the school-like gloss,
That most consists in echoing words and terms :
And soonest wins a man an empty name :
Nor any long, or far fetch'd circumstance,
Wrapt in the curious general'ties of arts ;
But a direct and analytic sum
Of all the worth and first effects of arts.
And for his poesy, 'tis so ramm'd with life,
That it shall gather strength of life, with being,
And live hereafter more admired than now.

Cæs. This one consent, in all your dooms of him,

And mutual loves of all your several merits,
Argues a truth of merit in you all.

VIRGIL enters.

See here comes Virgil ; we will rise and greet him :
Welcome to Cæsar, Virgil. Cæsar and Virgil
Shall differ but in sound ; to Cæsar, Virgil
(Of his expressed greatness) shall be made
A second sir-name ; and to Virgil, Cæsar.
Where are thy famous Æneids ? do us grace
To let us see, and surfeit on their sight.

Vir. Worthless they are of Cæsar's gracious eyes,
If they were perfect ; much more with their wants :
Which yet are more than my time could supply.
And could great Cæsar's expectation
Be satisfied with any other service,
I would not shew them.

Cæs. Virgil is too modest ;
Or seeks, in vain, to make our longings more.
Shew them, sweet Virgil.

Vir. Then, in such due fear
As fits presenters of great works to Cæsar,
I humbly shew them.

Cæs. Let us now behold
A human soul made visible in life : .
And more refulgent in a senseless paper,
Than in the sensual complement of kings.
Read, read, thyself, dear Virgil ; let not me
Prophane one accent with an untuned tongue :
Best matter, badly shown, shews worse than bad.
See then this chair, of purpose set for thee,
To read thy poem in ; refuse it not.
Virtue, without presumption, place may take
Above best kings, whom only she should make.

Vir. It will be thought a thing ridiculous

To present eyes, and to all future times
 A gross untruth ; that any poet (void
 Of birth, or wealth, or temporal dignity),
 Should, with decorum, transcend Cæsar's chair.
 Poor virtue raised, high birth and wealth set under,
 Crosseth heav'ns courses, and makes wordlings wonder.

Cæs. The course of heaven, and fate itself, in this
 Will Cæsar cross ; much more all wordly custom.

Hor. Custom in course of honour ever errs :
 And they are best, whom fortune least prefers.

Cæs. Horace hath (but more strictly) spoke our thoughts.

The vast rude swinge of general confluence
 Is, in particular ends, exempt from sense :
 And therefore reason (which in right should be
 The special rector of all harmony)
 Shall shew we are a man, distinct by it
 From those, whom custom rapteth in her press.
 Ascend then, Virgil ; and where first by chance
 We here have turn'd thy book, do thou first read.

Vir. Great Cæsar hath his will : I will ascend.
 'Twere simple injury to his free hand,
 That sweeps the cobwebs from un-used virtue,
 And makes her shine proportion'd to her worth,
 To be more nice to entertain his grace,
 Than he is choice and liberal to afford it.

Cæs. Gentlemen of our chamber, guard the doors,
 And let none enter ; peace. Begin, good Virgil.

VIRGIL reads part of his fourth Æneid.

Vir. Mean while, the skies 'gan thunder, &c.

[This Roman Play seems written to confute those enemies of Ben. Jonson in his own days and ours, who have said that he made a pedantical use of his learning. He has here revived the whole court of Augustus, by a learned spell. We are admitted to the society of the illustrious dead. Virgil, Horace, Ovid, Tibullus, converse in our own tongue more finely and poetically than they expressed themselves in their native Latin.—Nothing can be imagined more elegant, refined, and court-like than the scenes between this Lewis the Fourteenth of Antiquity and his Literati.—The whole essence and secret of that kind of intercourse is contained therein. The economical liberality by which greatness, seeming to waive some part of its prerogative, takes care to lose none of the essentials; the prudential liberties of an inferior which flatter by commanded boldness and soothe with complimental sincerity.]

THE SAD SHEPHERD : OR, A TALE OF ROBIN HOOD.
BY BEN. JONSON.

Alken, an old Shepherd, instructs Robin Hood's Men how to find a Witch, and how she is to be hunted.

ROBIN HOOD. TUCK. LITTLE JOHN. SCARLET.
SCATHLOCK. GEORGE. ALKEN. CLARION.

Tuck. Hear you how

Poor Tom, the cook, is taken ! all his joints
Do crack, as if his limbs were tied with points :
His whole frame slackens, and a kind of rack
Runs down along the spondils of his back ;
A gout, or cramp, now seizeth on his head,
Then falls into his feet ; his knees are lead ;
And he can stir his either hand no more
Than a dead stump to his office, as before.

Alk. He is bewitch'd.

Cla. This is an argument
Both of her malice, and her power, we see.

Alk. She must by some device restrained be,
Or she'll go far in mischief.

Rob. Advise how,
Sage shepherd; we shall put it straight in practice.

Alk. Send forth your woodmen then into the walks,
Or let them prick her footing hence; a witch
Is sure a creature of melancholy,
And will be found, or sitting in her fourm,
Or else at relief, like a hare.

Cla. You speak,
Alken, as if you knew the sport of witch-hunting,
Or starting of a hag.

Rob. Go, Sirs, about it,
Take George here with you, he can help to find her.

John. Rare sport, I swear, this hunting of the witch
Will make us.

Scar. Let's advise upon't, like huntsmen.

Geo. An we can spy her once, she is our own.

Scath. First think which way she fourmeth, on what wind:

Or north, or south.

Geo. For, as the shepherd said,
A witch is a kind of hare.

Scath. And marks the weather,
As the hare does.

John. Where shall we hope to find her?

Alk. Know you the witches dell?

Scar. No more than I do know the walks of hell.

Alk. Within a gloomy dimble she doth dwell,
Down in a pit o'er grown with brakes and briars,
Close by the ruins of a shaken abbey,
Torn with an earthquake down unto the ground,
'Mongst graves, and grots, near an old charnel house,
Where you shall find her sitting in her fourm,
As fearful, and melancholic, as that
She is about; with caterpillars' kells,
And knotty cobwebs, rounded in with spells.

Thence she steals forth to relief, in the fogs,
And rotten mists, upon the fens and bogs,
Down to the drowned lands of Lincolnshire ;
To make ewes cast their lambs, swine eat their farrow !
The house-wife's tun not work, nor the milk churn !
Writhe children's wrists, and suck their breath in sleep !
Get vials of their blood ! and where the sea
Casts up his slimy ooze, search for a weed
To open locks with, and to rivet charms,
Planted about her, in the wicked seat
Of all her mischiefs, which are manifold.
- John. I wonder such a story could be told
Of her dire deeds.

Geo. I thought, a witches banks
Had enclosed nothing but the merry pranks
Of some old woman.

Scar. Yes, her malice more.

Scath. As it would quickly appear, had we the store
Of his collects.

Geo. Aye, this good learned man
Can speak her right.

Scar. He knows her shifts and haunts.

Alk. And all her wiles and turns. The venom'd plants
Wherewith she kills ! where the sad mandrake grows,
Whose groans are deathful ! the dead numbing night-
shade !

The stupifying hemlock ! adder's-tongue,
And martegan ! the shrieks of luckless owls,
We hear ! and croaking night-crows in the air !
Green-bellied snakes ! blue fire drakes in the sky !
And giddy flutter-mice with leather wings !
The scaly beetles, with their habergeons
That make a humming murmur as they fly !
There, in the stocks of trees, white fays do dwell,
And span-long elves that dance about a pool,

With each a little changeling in their arms !
 The airy spirits play with falling stars,
 And mount the sphere of fire, to kiss the moon !
 While she sits reading by the glow-worm's light,
 Or rotten wood, o'er which the worm hath crept,
 The baneful schedule of her nocent charms,
 And binding characters, through which she wounds
 Her puppets, the Sigilla of her witchcraft.
 All this I know, and I will find her for you ;
 And shew you her sitting in her fourm ; I'll lay
 My hand upon her ; make her throw her scut
 Along her back, when she doth start before us.
 But you must give her law ; and you shall see her
 Make twenty leaps and doubles, cross the paths,
 And then squat down beside us.

John. Crafty croan,
 I long to be at the sport, and to report it.

Scar. We'll make this hunting of the witch as famous,
 As any other blast of venery.

Geo. If we could come to see her, cry so haw once—

Alk. That I do promise, or I'm no good hag-finder.

SEJANUS HIS FALL: A TRAGEDY. BY BEN. JONSON.

Sejanus, the morning he is condemned by the Senate, receives some tokens which presage his death.

SEJANUS. POMPONIUS. MINUTIUS. TERENTIUS, &c.

Ter. Are these things true ?

Min. Thousands are gazing at it in the streets.

Sej. What's that ?

Ter. Minutius tells us here, my Lord,
 That a new head being set upon your statue,

A rope is since found wreath'd about it ! and
But now a fiery meteor in the form
Of a great ball was seen to roll along
The troubled air, where yet it hangs unperfect,
The amazing wonder of the multitude.

Sej. No more.—

Send for the tribunes ; we will strait have up
More of the soldiers for our guard. Minutius,
We pray you go for Cotta, Latiaris,
Trio the consul, or what senators
You know are sure, and ours. You, my good Natta,
For Laco provost of the watch. Now, Satrius,
The time of proof comes on. Arm all our servants,
And without tumult. You, Pomponius,
Hold some good correspondence with the consul ;
Attempt him, noble friend. These things begin
To look like dangers, now, worthy my fates.
Fortune, I see thy worst : Let doubtful states
And things uncertain hang upon thy will ;
Me surest death shall render certain still.
Yet why is now my thought turn'd toward death,
Whom fates have let go on so far in breath
Uncheckt or unprov'd ? I, that did help
To fell the lofty cedar of the world
Germanicus ; that at one stroke cut down
Drusus that upright elm ; wither'd his vine ;
Laid Silius and Sabinus, two strong oaks,
Flat on the earth ; besides those other shrubs,
Cordus, and Sosia, Claudia, Pulchra,
Furnius, and Gallus, which I have grubb'd up ;
And since, have set my axe so strong and deep
Into the root of spreading Agrippina ;
Lopt off and scatter'd her proud branches, Nero,
Drusus, and Caius too, although replanted :
If you will, destinies, that after all

I faint now ere I touch my period,
 You are but cruel ; and I already have done
 Things great enough. All Rome hath been my slave ;
 The senate sate an idle looker on,
 And witness of my power ; when I have blush'd
 More to command, than it to suffer ; all
 The fathers have sate ready and prepar'd
 To give me empire, temples, or their throats,
 When I would ask 'em ; and (what crowns the top)
 Rome, senate, people, all the world, have seen
 Jove but my equal, Cæsar but my second.
 'Tis then your malice, Fates, who (but your own)
 Envy and fear to have any power long known.

CATILINE HIS CONSPIRACY : A TRAGEDY.
 BY BEN. JONSON.

The morning of the Conspiracy.—Lentulus, Cethegus, and Catiline meet, before the other Conspirators are ready.

Lent. It is methinks a morning full of fate.
 It riseth slowly, as her sullen car
 Had all the weights of sleep and death hung at it.
 She is not rosy-finger'd, but swoln black.
 Her face is like a water turn'd to blood,
 And her sick head is bound about with clouds,
 As if she threaten'd night ere noon of day.
 It does not look as it would have a hail
 Or health wish'd in it, as on other morns.

Cet. Why, all the fitter, Lentulus : our coming
 Is not for salutation : we have business.

Cat. Said nobly, brave Cethegus. Where's Autronius ?

Cet. Is he not come ?

Cat. Not here.

Cet. Not Vargunteius ?

Cat. Neither.

Cet. A fire in their beds and bosoms,
That so well serve their sloth rather than virtue.
They are no Romans, and at such high need
As now —————

Lent. Both they, Longinus, Lecca, Curius,
Fulvius, Gabinus, gave me word last night,
By Lucius Bestia, they would all be here,
And early.

Cet. Yes ! as you, had I not call'd you.
Come, we all sleep, and are mere dormice ; flies
A little less than dead : more dulness hangs
On us than on the morn. We're spirit-bound,
In ribs of ice ; our whole bloods are one stone :
And honour cannot thaw us, nor our wants,
Though they burn hot as fevers to our states.

Cat. I muse they would be tardy at an hour
Of so great purpose.

Cet. If the gods had call'd
Them to a purpose, they would just have come
With the same tortoise speed ; that are thus slow
To such an action, which the gods will envy ;
As asking no less means than all their powers
Conjoin'd to effect. I would have seen Rome burnt
By this time, and her ashes in an urn :
The kingdom of the senate rent asunder :
And the degenerate talking gown run frightened
Out of the air of Italy.

Cat. Spirit of men,
Thou heart of our great enterprise, how much
I love these voices in thee !

Cet. O the days
Of Sylla's sway, when the free sword took leave
To act all that it would !

Cat. And was familiar
With entrails, as our augurs ———

Cet. Sons kill'd fathers,
Brothers their brothers ———

Cat. And had price and praise :
All hate and licence giv'n it ; all rage reins.

Cet. Slaughter bestrid the streets, and stretch'd himself

To seem more huge : whilst to his stained thighs
The gore he drew flow'd up, and carried down
Whole heaps of limbs and bodies through his arch.
No age was spar'd, no sex.

Cat. Nay, no degree ———

Cet. Not infants in the porch of life were free.
The sick, the old, that could but hope a day
Longer by nature's bounty, not let stay.
Virgins and widows, matrons, pregnant wives,
All died.

Cat. 'Twas crime enough that they had lives.
To strike but only those that could do hurt,
Was dull and poor. Some fell, to make the number ;
As some, the prey.

Cet. The rugged Charon fainted,
And ask'd a navy rather than a boat,
To ferry over the sad world that came :
The maws and dens of beasts could not receive
The bodies that those souls were frightened from ;
And even the graves were fill'd with men yet living,
Whose flight and fear had mix'd them with the dead.

Cat. And this shall be again, and more, and more,
Now Lentulus, the third Cornelius,
Is to stand up in Rome.

Lent. Nay, urge not that
Is so uncertain.

Cat. How !

Lent. I mean, not clear'd ;
And therefore not to be reflected on.

Cat. The Sybil's leaves uncertain ! or the comments,
Of our grave, deep, divining men, not clear !

Lent. All prophecies, you know, suffer the torture.

Cat. But this already hath confess'd, without ;
And so been weigh'd, examin'd, and compar'd,
As 'twere malicious ignorance in him
Would faint in the belief.

Lent. Do you believe it ?

Cat. Do I love Lentulus, or pray to see it ?

Lent. The augurs all are constant I am meant.

Cat. They had lost their science else.

Lent. They count from Cinna ——

Cat. And Sylla next——and so make you the third :
All that can say the sun is ris'n, must think it.

Lent. Men mark me more of late as I come forth !

Cat. Why, what can they do less ? Cinna and Sylla
Are set and gone ; and we must turn our eyes
On him that is, and shines. Noble Cethegus,
But view him with me here ! He looks already
As if he shook a sceptre o'er the senate,
And the aw'd purple dropt their rods and axes.
The statues melt again, and household gods
In groans confess the travails of the city :
The very walls sweat blood before the change ;
And stones start out to ruin, ere it comes.

Cet. But he, and we, and all, are idle still.

Lent. I am your creature, Sergius ; and whate'er
The great Cornelian name shall win to be,
It is not augury, nor the Sybil's books,
But Catiline, that makes it.

Cat. I am a shadow
To honour'd Lentulus, and Cethegus here ;
Who are the heirs of Mars. ——

THE NEW INN; OR, THE LIGHT HEART. A COMEDY.
BY BEN. JONSON.

Lovel discovers to the Host of the New Inn, his Love for the Lady Frances, and his reasons for concealing his Passion from her.

Lov. There is no life on earth, but being in love !
There are no studies, no delights, no business,
No intercourse, or trade of sense, or soul,
But what is love ! I was the laziest creature,
The most unprofitable sign of nothing,
The veriest drone, and slept away my life
Beyond the dormouse, till I was in love !
And now I can out-wake the nightingale,
Out-watch an usurer, and out-walk him too,
Stalk like a ghost that haunted 'bout a treasure ;
And all that fancied treasure, it is love !

Host. But is your name Love-ill, sir, or Love-well ?
I would know that.

Lov. I do not know it myself,
Whether it is. But it is love hath been
The hereditary passion of our house,
My gentle host, and, as I guess, my friend ;
The truth is, I have loved this lady long,
And impotently, with desire enough,
But no success : for I have still forborne
To express it in my person to her.

Host. How then ?

Lov. I have sent her toys, verses, and anagrams,
Trials of wit, mere trifles, she has commended,
But knew not whence they came, nor could she guess.

Host. This was a pretty riddling way of wooing !

Lov. I oft have been too in her company,

And look'd upon her a whole day, admir'd her,
 Loved her, and did not tell her so, loved still,
 Look'd still, and loved; and loved, and look'd, and sigh'd;
 But, as a man neglected, I came off,
 And unregarded.

Host. Could you blame her, sir,
 When you were silent and not said a word?

Lov. O but I loved the more; and she might read it Best in my silence, had she been ——

Host. ————— as melancholic,
 As you are. Pray you, why would you stand mute, sir?

Lov. O thereon hangs a history, mine host.
 Did you ever know or hear of the Lord Beaufort,
 Who serv'd so bravely in France? I was his page,
 And, ere he died, his friend! I follow'd him
 First in the wars, and in the times of peace
 I waited on his studies; which were right.
 He had no Arthurs, nor no Rosicleers,
 No Knights of the Sun, nor Amadis de Gauls,
 Primalions, and Pantagruels, public nothings;
 Abortives of the fabulous dark cloister,
 Sent out to poison courts, and infest manners:
 But great Achilles', Agamemnon's acts,
 Sage Nestor's counsels, and Ulysses' sleights,
 Tydides' fortitude, as Homer wrought them
 In his immortal fancy, for examples
 Of the heroic virtue. Or, as Virgil,
 That master of the Epic Poem, limn'd
 Pious Æneas, his religious prince,
 Bearing his aged parent on his shoulders,
 Rapt from the flames of Troy, with his young son.
 And these he brought to practice and to use.
 He gave me first my breeding, I acknowledge,
 Then shower'd his bounties on me, like the Hours,
 That open-handed sit upon the clouds,

And press the liberality of heaven
 Down to the laps of thankful men ! But then,
 The trust committed to me at his death
 Was above all, and left so strong a tye
 On all my powers as time shall not dissolve,
 Till it dissolve itself, and bury all :
 The care of his brave heir and only son !
 Who being a virtuous, sweet, young, hopeful lord,
 Hath cast his first affections on this lady.
 And though I know, and may presume her such,
 As, out of humour, will return no love,
 And therefore might indifferently be made
 The courting-stock for all to practise on,
 As she doth practise on us all to scorn :
 Yet out of a religion to my charge,
 And debt profess'd, I have made a self-decree,
 Ne'er to express my person though my passion
 Burn me to cinders.

*Lovel, in the presence of the Lady Frances, the young Lord
 Beauport, and other Guests of the New Inn, defines what Love is.*

Lov. What else
 Is love, but the most noble, pure affection
 Of what is truly beautiful and fair ?
 Desire of union with the thing beloved ?

Beau. I have read somewhere, that man and woman
 Were, in the first creation, both one piece,
 And being cleft asunder, ever since
 Love was an appetite to be rejoin'd.

Lov. It is a fable of Plato's, in his banquet,
 And utter'd there by Aristophanes.

Host. 'Twas well remember'd here, and to good use.
 But on with your description what love is.
 Desire of union with the thing beloved.

Lov. I meant a definition. For I make
 The efficient cause, what's beautiful and fair.
 The formal cause, the appetite of union.
 The final cause, the union itself.
 But larger, if you'll have it, by description :
 It is a flame and ardour of the mind,
 Dead in the proper corps, quick in another's :
 Transfers the lover into the loved.
 That he, or she, that loves, engraves or stamps
 The idea of what they love, first in themselves :
 Or, like to glasses, so their minds take in
 The forms of their belov'd, and them reflect.
 It is the likeness of affections,
 Is both the parent and the nurse of love.
 Love is a spiritual coupling of two souls,
 So much more excellent as it least relates
 Unto the body ; circular, eternal ;
 Not feign'd, or made, but born : And then, so precious,
 As nought can value it, but itself. So free,
 As nothing can command it but itself.
 And in itself so round and liberal,
 As, where it favours, it bestows itself.
 But we must take and understand this love
 Along still as a name of dignity,
 Not pleasure.
 True love hath no unworthy thought, no light
 Loose unbecoming appetite, or strain ;
 But fixed, constant, pure, immutable.

Beau. I relish not these philosophical feasts ;
 Give me a banquet o' sense, like that of Ovid ;
 A form, to take the eye ; a voice, mine ear ;
 Pure aromatics to my scent ; a soft
 Smooth dainty hand to touch ; and, for my taste,
 Ambrosiac kisses to melt down the palat.

Lov. They are the earthly, lower form of lovers,

Are only taken with what strikes the senses,
And love by that loose scale. Altho' I grant,
We like what's fair and graceful in an object,
And (true) would use it, in them all we tend to,
Both of our civil and domestic deeds,
In ordering of an army, in our style,
Apparel, gesture, building, or what not?
All arts and actions do affect their beauty.
But put the case, in travel I may meet
Some gorgeous structure, a brave frontispiece,
Shall I stay captive in the outer court,
Surpriz'd with that, and not advance to know
Who dwells there, and inhabiteth the house?
There is my friendship to be made, within ;
With what can love me again ; not with the walls,
Doors, windows, architraves, the frieze, and cornice.
My end is lost in loving of a face,
An eye, lip, nose, hand, foot, or other part,
Whose all is but a statue if the mind
Move not, which only can make the return.
The end of love is, to have two made one
In will, and in affection, that the minds
Be first inoculated, not the bodies.
The body's love is frail, subject to change,
And alter still with it : The mind's is firm,
One and the same, proceedeth first from weighing,
And well examining what is fair and good ;
Then what is like in reason, fit in manners ;
That breeds good will : good will desire of union.
So knowledge first begets benevolence,
Benevolence breeds friendship, friendship love :
And where it starts or steps aside from this,
It is a mere degenerated appetite,
A lost, oblique, deprav'd affection,
And bears no mark or character of love.

Nor do they trespass within bounds of pardon,
That giving way and licence to their love,
Divest him of his noblest ornaments,
Which are his modesty and shamefac'dness :
And so they do, that have unfit designs
Upon the parties they pretend to love.
For what's more monstrous, more a prodigy,
Than to hear me protest truth of affection
Unto a person that I would dishonour ?
And what's a more dishonour, than defacing
Another's good with forfeiting mine own,
And drawing on a fellowship of sin ?
From note of which though for a while we may
Be both kept safe by caution, yet the conscience
Cannot be cleans'd. For what was hitherto Call'd by the name of love, becomes destroy'd
Then, with the fact ; the innocency lost,
The bating of affection soon will follow ;
And love is never true that is not lasting :
No more than any can be pure or perfect,
That entertains more than one object.

[These and the preceding extracts may serve to shew the poetical fancy and elegance of mind of the supposed rugged old Bard. A thousand beautiful passages might be adduced from those numerous court masques and entertainments which he was in the daily habit of furnishing, to prove the same thing. But they do not come within my plan. That which follows is a specimen of that talent for comic humour, and the assemblage of ludicrous images, on which his reputation chiefly rests. It may serve for a variety after so many serious extracts.]

THE ALCHEMIST: A COMEDY. BY BEN. JONSON.

Epicure Mammon, a Knight, deceived by the pretensions of Subtle (the Alchemist), glories in the prospect of obtaining the Philosopher's Stone; and promises what rare things he will do with it.

MAMMON. SURLY, his Friend. The Scene, Subtle's House.

Mam. Come on, sir. Now you set your foot on shore
In novo orbe. Here's the rich Peru:
And there within, sir, are the golden mines,
Great Solomon's Ophir! He was sailing to't
Three years, but we have reach'd it in ten months.
This is the day wherein to all my friends
I will pronounce the happy word, Be rich.
This day you shall be spectatissimi.
You shall no more deal with the hollow dye,
Or the frail card. No more be at charge of keeping
The livery punk for the young heir, that must Seal at all hours in his shirt. No more,
If he deny, ha' him beaten to't, as he is
That brings him the commodity. No more
Shall thirst of sattin, or the covetous hunger
Of velvet entrails for a rude-spun cloke
To be display'd at Madam Augusta's, make
The sons of Sword and Hazard fall before
The golden calf, and on their knees whole nights
Commit idolatry with wine and trumpets;
Or go a feasting after drum and ensign.
No more of this. You shall start up young Viceroyes,
And have your punques and punquettees, my Surly:

And unto thee I speak it first, Be rich.
Where is my Subtle there? within ho —

FACE answers from within.

Sir,

He'll come to you by and by.

Mam. That's his fire-drake,
His Lungs, his Zephyrus, he that puffs his coals
Till he firk Nature up in her own centre.
You are not faithful, sir. This night I'll change
All that is metal in thy house to gold:
And early in the morning will I send
To all the plumbers and the pewterers,
And buy their tin and lead up; and to Lothbury,
For all the copper.

Sur. What, and turn that too?

Mam. Yes, and I'll purchase Devonshire and Cornwall,
And make them perfect Indies! You admire now?

Sur. No, faith.

Mam. But when you see the effects of the great medicine!
Of which one part projected on a hundred
Of Mercury, or Venus, or the Moon,
Shall turn it to as many of the Sun;
Nay, to a thousand, so ad infinitum:
You will believe me.

Sur. Yes, when I see't, I will.

Mam. Ha! why,
Do you think I fable with you? I assure you,
He that has once the flower of the Sun,
The perfect Ruby, which we call Elixir,
Not only can do that, but by its virtue
Can confer honour, love, respect, long life,
Give safety, valour, yea, and victory,

To whom he will. In eight and twenty days
I'll make an old man of fourscore a child.

Sur. No doubt ; he's that already.

Mam. Nay, I mean,
Restore his years, renew him like an eagle,
To the fifth age ; make him get sons and daughters,
Young giants, as our philosophers have done
(The ancient patriarchs afore the flood)
But taking, once a week, on a knife's point
The quantity of a grain of mustard of it,
Become stout Marses, and beget young Cupids.

Sur. The decay'd vestals of Pickt-hatch would thank you,
That keep the fire alive there.

Mam. Tis the secret
Of Nature naturized 'gainst all infections,
Cures all diseases, coming of all causes ;
A month's grief in a day ; a year's in twelve ;
And of what age soever, in a month :
Past all the doses of your drugging doctors.
I'll undertake withal to fright the plague
Out o'the kingdom in three months.

Sur. And I'll
Be bound, the players shall sing your praises, then,
Without their poets.

Mam. Sir, I'll do't. Meantime,
I'll give away so much unto my man,
Shall serve th' whole city with preservative
Weekly ; each house his dose, and at the rate —

Sur. As he that built the water-work, does with water ?

Mam. You are incredulous.

Sur. Faith, I have a humour,
I would not willingly be gull'd. Your Stone
Cannot transmute me.

Mam. Pertinax Surly,
Will you believe antiquity? Records?
I'll shew you a book, where Moses, and his sister,
And Solomon, have written of the Art?
I, and a treatise penn'd by Adam.

Sur. How?

Mam. Of the Philosopher's Stone, and in High Dutch.

Sur. Did Adam write, Sir, in High Dutch?

Mam. He did,

Which proves it was the primitive tongue.

Sur. What paper?

Mam. On cedar-board.

Sur. O that, indeed, they say,
Will last 'gainst worms.

Mam. Tis like your Irish wood
'Gainst cobwebs. I have a piece of Jason's Fleece too,
Which was no other than a book of Alchemy,
Writ in large sheep-skin, a good fat ram-vellum.
Such was Pythagoras' Thigh, Pandora's Tub,
And all that fable of Medea's charms,
The manner of our work: the bulls, our furnace,
Still breathing fire: our Argent-vive, the Dragon:
The Dragon's teeth, Mercury sublimate,
That keeps the whiteness, hardness, and the biting:
And they are gather'd into Jason's helm
(Th' Alembick) and then sow'd in Mars his field,
And thence sublim'd so often, till they are fix'd.
Both this, the Hesperian Garden, Cadmus' Story,
Jove's Shower, the Boon of Midas, Argus' Eyes,
Boccace his Demogorgon, thousands more,
All abstract riddles of our Stone.

FACE enters.

How now?

Do we succeed? is our day come? and holds it?

Face. The evening will set red upon you, sir ;
You have colour for it, crimson : the red ferment
Has done his office. Three hours hence prepare you
To see projection.

Mam. Pertinax, my Surly,
Again I say to thee aloud, Be rich.
This day thou shalt have ingots, and to-morrow
Give lords th' affront. Is it, my Zephyrus, right ?
Blushes the Bolt's-head ?

Face. Like a wench with child, sir,
That were but now discover'd to her master.

Mam. Excellent witty Lungs ! My only care is,
Where to get stuff enough now, to project on.
This town will not half serve me.

Face. No, sir ? buy
The covering off o' churches.

Mam. That's true.

Face. Yes.

Let 'em stand bare, as do their auditory ;
Or cap 'em new with shingles.

Mam. No ; good thatch :
Thatch will lie light upon the rafters, Lungs.
Lungs, I will manumit thee from the furnace ;
I will restore thee thy complexion, Puffe,
Lost in the embers ; and repair this brain
Hurt with the fume o' the metals.

Face. I have blown, sir,
Hard for your worship ; thrown by many a coal,
When 'twas not beech ; weigh'd those I put in, just,
To keep your heat still even ; these blear'd eyes
Have waked to read your several colours, sir,
Of the pale citron, the green lyon, the crow,
The peacock's tail, the plumed swan —

Mam. And lastly,
Thou hast descried the flower, the sanguis agni ?

Face. Yes, sir.

Mam. Where's master?

Face. At his prayers, sir, he,
Good man, he's doing his devotions
For the success.

Mam. Lungs, I will set a period
To all thy labours : thou shalt be the master
Of my seraglio. For I do mean
To have a list of wives and concubines
Equal with Solomon, who had the Stone
Alike with me : and I will make me a back
With the Elixir, that shall be as tough
As Hercules, to encounter fifty a night.
Thou art sure thou saw'st it blood?

Face. Both blood and spirit, sir.

Mam. I will have all my beds blown up ; not stuff :
Down is too hard. And then, mine oval room
Fill'd with such pictures as Tiberius took
From Elephantis, and dull Aretine
But coldly imitated. Then, my glasses
Cut in more subtil angles, to disperse
And multiply the figures, as I walk
Naked between my Succubæ. My mists
I'll have of perfume, vapour'd 'bout the room,
To lose ourselves in ; and my baths, like pits
To fall into : from whence we will come forth,
And roll us dry in gossamour and roses.
(Is it arriv'd at Ruby?)—Where I spy
A wealthy citizen, or rich lawyer,
Have a sublim'd pure wife, unto that fellow
I'll send a thousand pound to be my cuckold.

Face. And I shall carry it?

Mam. No, I'll have no bawds,
But fathers and mothers. They will do it best,
Best of all others. And my flatterers

Shall be the pure and gravest of divines
That I can get for money. My meet fools,
Eloquent burgesses ; and then my poets,
The same that writ so subtilly of the Fart :
Whom I will entertain still for that subject.
The few that would give out themselves to be
Court and town stallions, and each-where belye
Ladies, who are known most innocent (for them)
Those will I beg, to make me eunuchs of :
And they shall fan me with ten estrich tails
A piece, made in a plume, to gather wind.
We will be brave, Puffe, now we ha' the medicine
My meat shall all come in in Indian shells,
Dishes of Agate set in gold, and studded
With emeralds, sapphires, hyacinths, and rubies :
The tongues of carps, dormice, and camels' heels,
Boil'd i' the spirit of Sol, and dissolv'd pearl,
(Apicius' diet 'gainst the epilepsy)
And I will eat these broths with spoons of amber,
Headed with diamant and carbuncle.
My foot-boy shall eat pheasants, calver'd salmons,
Knots, godwits, lampreys : I myself will have
The beards of barbels serv'd, in stead of sallads ;
Oil'd mushrooms ; and the swelling unctuous paps
Of a fat pregnant sow, newly cut off,
Drest with an exquisite and poignant sauce :
For which, I'll say unto my cook, " There's gold,
Go forth, and be a knight."

Face. Sir, I'll go look
A little, how it heightens.

Mam. Do.—My shirts
I'll have of taffata-sarsnet, soft and light
As cobwebs ; and, for all my other rayment,
It shall be such as might provoke the Persian,
Were he to teach the world riot anew.

My gloves of fishes' and birds' skins, perfum'd
With gums of paradise, and eastern air.

Sur. And do you think to have the Stone with this?

Mam. No, I do think to have all this with the Stone.

Sur. Why, I have heard, he must be homo frugi,
A pious, holy, and religious man,
One free from mortal sin, a very virgin ——

Mam. That makes it —— Sir, he is so. But I buy it.
My venture brings it me. He, honest wretch,
A notable, superstitious, good soul,
Has worn his knees bare, and his slippers bald,
With prayer and fasting for it: and, sir, let him
Do it alone, for me, still. Here he comes.
Not a prophane word, afore him: 'tis poison.

[The judgment is perfectly overwhelmed by the torrent of images, words, and book-knowledge with which Mammon confounds and stuns his incredulous hearer. They come pouring out like the successive strokes of Nilus. They “doubly redouble strokes upon the foe.” Description outstrides proof. We are made to believe effects before we have testimony for their causes: as a lively description of the joys of heaven sometimes passes for an argument to prove the existence of such a place. If there be no one image which rises to the height of the sublime, yet the confluence and assemblage of them all produces an effect equal to the grandest poetry. Zerxes' army that drank up whole rivers from their numbers may stand for single Achilles. Epicure Mammon is the most determined offspring of the author. It has the whole “matter and copy of the father, eye, nose, lip, the trick of his frown:” It is just such a swaggerer as contemporaries have described old Ben to be. Meercraft, Bobadil, the Host of the New Inn, have all his “image and superscription:” but Mammon is arrogant pretension personified. Sir Sampson Legend, in Love for Love, is such another lying overbearing character, but he does not come up to Epicure Mammon. What a “tow'ring bravery” there is in his sensuality! He affects no pleasure under a Sultan. It is as if “Egypt with Assyria strove in luxury.”]

VOLPONE: OR, THE FOX: A COMEDY. BY BEN.
JONSON.

Volpone, a rich Venetian nobleman, who is without children, feigns himself to be dying, to draw gifts from such as pay their court to him in the expectation of becoming his heirs. Mosca, his knavish confederate, persuades each of these men in turn, that he is named for the inheritance, and by this means extracts from their credulity many costly presents.

VOLPONE, as on his death-bed. MOSCA. CORBACCIO, an old gentleman.

Mos. Signior Corbaccio,
You are very welcome, sir.

Corb. How does your patron?

Mos. Troth, as he did, sir, no amends.

Corb. What? mends he?

Mos. No, sir, he is rather worse.

Corb. That's well. Where is he?

Mos. Upon his couch, sir, newly fall'n asleep.

Corb. Does he sleep well?

Mos. No wink, sir, all this night,
Nor yesterday; but slumbers.

Corb. Good! he shall take
Some counsel of physicians: I have brought him
An opiate here, from mine own doctor—

Mos. He will not hear of drugs.

Corb. Why? I myself
Stood by, while 'twas made; saw all th' ingredients;
And know it cannot but most gently work.
My life for his, 'tis but to make him sleep.

Volp. I, his last sleep if he would take it.

Mos. Sir,

He has no faith in physic.

Corb. Say you, say you?

Mos. He has no faith in physic : he does think,
Most of your doctors are the greatest danger,
A worst disease t' escape. I often have Heard him protest, that your physician
Should never be his heir.

Corb. Not I his heir?

Mos. Not your physician, sir.

Corb. O, no, no, no,

I do not mean it.

Mos. No, sir, nor their fees
He cannot brook : he says they flay a man,
Before they kill him

Corb. Right, I do conceive you.

Mos. And then, they do it by experiment ;
For which the law not only doth absolve 'em,
But gives them great reward ; and he is loth
To hire his death so.

Corb. It is true, they kill,
With as much licence as a Judge.

Mos. Nay, more ;
For he but kills, sir, where the law condemns,
And these can kill him too.

Corb. I, or me ;
Or any man. How does his apoplex ?
Is that strong on him still ?

Mos. Most violent.
His speech is broken, and his eyes are set,
His face drawn longer than 'twas wont.—

Corb. How ? how ?
Stronger than he was wont ?

Mos. No, sir : his face
Drawn longer than 'twas wont.

Corb. O, good.

Mos. His mouth

Is ever gaping, and his eyelids hang.

Corb. Good.

Mos. A freezing numbness stiffens all his joints,
And makes the colour of his flesh like lead.

Corb. 'Tis good.

Mos. His pulse beats slow, and dull.

Corb. Good symptoms still.

Mos. And from his brain—

Corb. Ha? how? not from his brain?

Mos. Yes, sir, and from his brain—

Corb. I conceive you, good.

Mos. Flows a cold sweat, with a continual rheum
Forth the resolved corners of his eyes.

Corb. Is't possible? yet I am better, ha!
How does he with the swimming of his head?

Mos. O, sir 'tis past the scotomy; he now
Hath lost his feeling, and hath left to snort:
You hardly can perceive him that he breathes.

Corb. Excellent, excellent, sure I shall outlast him:
This makes me young again a score of years.

Mos. I was coming for you, sir.

Corb. Has he made his will?
What has he giv'n me?

Mos. No, sir.

Corb. Nothing? ha?

Mos. He has not made his will, sir.

Corb. Oh, oh, oh.

What then did Voltore the lawyer here?

Mos. He smelt a carcase, sir, when he but heard
My master was about his testament;
As I did urge him to it for your good—

Corb. He came unto him, did he? I thought so.

Mos. Yes, and presented him this piece of plate.

Corb. To be his heir?

Mos. I do not know, sir.

Corb. True,

I know it too.

Mos. By your own scale, sir.

Corb. Well, I shall prevent him yet. See Mosca, look
Here I have brought a bag of bright cecchines,
Will quite weigh down his plate.

Mos. Yea marry, sir,

This is true physic, this your sacred medicine;
No talk of opiates, to this great elixir.

Corb. Tis aurum palpabile, if not potabile.

Mos. It shall be minister'd to him in his bowl?

Corb. I, do, do, do.

Mos. Most blessed cordial.

This will recover him.

Corb. Yes, do, do, do.

Mos. I think it were not best, sir.

Corb. What?

Mos. To recover him.

Corb. O, no, no, no; by no means.

Mos. Why, sir, this

Will work some strange effect if he but feel it.

Corb. 'Tis true, therefore forbear, I'll take my venture;
Give me't again.

Mos. At no hand; pardon me

You shall not do yourself that wrong, sir. I
Will so advise you, you shall have it all.

Corb. How?

Mos. All sir, 'tis your right, your own; no man
Can claim a part; 'tis yours without a rival,
Decreed by destiny.

Corb. How? how, good Mosca?

Mos. I'll tell you, sir. This fit he shall recover.

Corb. I do conceive you.

Mos. And on first advantage
Of his gain'd sense, will I re-importune him
Unto the making of his testament :
And shew him this.

Corb. Good, good.

Mos. 'Tis better yet,
If you will hear, sir.

Corb. Yes, with all my heart.

Mos. Now, would I counsel you, make home with speed ;
There frame a will ; whereto you shall inscribe
My master your sole heir.

Corb. And disinherit
My son ?

Mos. O sir, the better ; for that colour
Shall make it much more taking.

Corb. O, but colour ?

Mos. This will, sir, you shall send it unto me.
Now, when I come to inforce (as I will do)
Your cares, your watchings, and your many prayers,
Your more than many gifts, your this day's present,
And last produce your will ; where (without thought,
Or least regard unto your proper issue,
A son so brave, and highly meriting)
The stream of your diverted love hath thrown you
Upon my master, and made him your heir :
He cannot be so stupid, or stone-dead,
But out of conscience, and mere gratitude ——

Corb. He must pronounce me his ?

Mos. 'Tis true.

Corb. This plot
Did I think on before.

Mos. I do believe it.

Corb. Do you not believe it ?

Mos. Yes, sir.

Corb. Mine own project.

Mos. Which when he hath done, sir —

Corb. Published me his heir ?

Mos. And you so certain to survive him —

Corb. I.

Mos. Being so lusty a man ——

Corb. 'Tis true.

Mos. Yes, sir—

Corb. I thought on that too. See how he should be
The very organ to express my thoughts !

Mos. You have not only done yourself a good ——

Corb. But multiplied it on my son.

Mos. 'Tis right, sir.

Corb. Still my invention.

Mos. 'Las, sir, heaven knows,
It hath been all my study, all my care
(I e'en grow grey with all) how to work things ——

Corb. I do conceive, sweet Mosca.

Mos. You are he,
For whom I labour, here.

Corb. I, do, do, do :
I'll straight about it.

Mos. Rook go with you, raven.

Corb. I know thee honest.

Mos. You do lie, sir —

Corb. And ——

Mos. Your knowledge is no better than your ears, sir.

Corb. I do not doubt to be a father to thee.

Mos. Nor I to gull my brother of his blessing.

Corb. I may ha' my youth restored to me, why not ?

Mos. Your worship is a precious ass ——

Corb. What saist thou ?

Mos. I do desire your worship to make haste, sir.

Corb. 'Tis done, 'tis done, I go.

[Exit.

Volp. O, I shall burst ;
Let out my sides, let out my sides —

Mos. Contain
Your flux of laughter, sir : you know this hope
Is such a bait it covers any hook.

Volp. O, but thy working, and thy placing it !
I cannot hold : good rascal, let me kiss thee :
I never knew thee in so rare a humour.

Mos. Alas, sir, I but do, as I am taught ;
Follow your grave instructions ; give 'em words :
Pour oil into their ears : and send them hence.

Volp. 'Tis true, 'tis true. What a rare punishment
Is avarice to itself !

Mos. I, with our help, sir.

Volp. So many cares, so many maladies,
So many fears attending on old age,
Yea, death so often call'd on, as no wish
Can be more frequent with 'em, their limbs faint,
Their senses dull, their seeing, hearing, going,
All dead before them ; yea their very teeth,
Their instruments of eating, failing them :
Yet this is reckon'd life ! Nay here was one,
Is now gone home, that wishes to live longer !
Feels not his gout, nor palsy, feigns himself
Younger by scores of years, flatters his age,
With confident belying it, hopes he may
With charms, like Æson, have his youth restored :
And with these thoughts so battens, as if Fate
Would be as easily cheated on as he :
And all turns air ! Who's that there, now ? a third ?
(Another knocks.)

Mos. Close to your couch again : I hear his voice.
It is Corvino, our spruce merchant.

Volp. Dead.

Mos. Another bout, sir, with your eyes. Who's there ?

CORVINO, a Merchant, enters.

Mos. Signior Corvino ! come most wisht for ! O,
How happy were you, if you knew it now !

Corv. Why ? what ? wherein ?

Mos. The tardy hour is come, sir.

Corv. He is not dead ?

Cos. Not dead, sir, but as good ;
He knows no man.

Corv. How shall I do then ?

Mos. Why, sir ?

Corv. I have brought him here a pearl.

Mos. Perhaps he has

So much remembrance left, as to know you, sir :

He still calls on you : nothing but your name

Is in his mouth : is your pearl orient, sir ?

Corv. Venice was never owner of the like.

Volp. Signior Corvino.

Mos. Hark.

Volp. Signior Corvino.

Mos. He calls you, step and give it him. He's here,
sir ?

And he has brought you a rich pearl.

Corv. How do you, sir ?

Tell him it doubles the twelfth caract.

Mos. Sir,

He cannot understand, his hearing's gone :

And yet it comforts him to see you——

Corv. Say,

I have a diamond for him too.

Mos. Best shew't, sir,

Put it into his hand ; tis only there

He apprehends : he has his feeling yet.

See how he graps it !

Corv. 'Las, good gentleman !
How pitiful the sight is !

Mos. Tut forget, sir.
The weeping of an heir should still be laughter,
Under a visor.

Corv. Why, am I his heir ?

Mos. Sir, I am sworn, I may not shew the will,
Till he be dead : but, here has been Corbaccio,
Here has been Voltore, here were others too,
I cannot number 'em, they were so many,
All gaping here for legacies ; but I,
Taking the vantage of his naming you,
(Signior Corvino, Signior Corvino) took
Paper, and pen, and ink, and there I ask'd him, Whom he would have his heir ? Corvino. Who Should be executor ! Corvino. And
To any question he was silent to,
I still interpreted the nods, he made Through weakness, for consent : and sent home the others,

Nothing bequeath'd them, but to cry, and curse.

Corv. O, my dear Mosca. Does he not perceive us ?

Mos. No more than a blind harper. He knows no man,
No face of friend, nor name of any servant,
Who't was that fed him last, or gave him drink ;
Not those he hath begotten, or brought up,
Can he remember.

Corv. Has he children ?

Mos. Bastards,
Some dozen, or more, that he begot on beggars,
Gypsies, and Jews, and black-moors, when he was drunk :
Knew you not that, sir ? 'Tis the common fable,
The dwarf, the fool, the eunuch, are all his ;
He's the true father of his family,
In all, save me : but he has given 'em nothing.

Corv. That's well, that's well. Art sure he does not hear us?

Mos. Sure, sir? why look you, credit your own sense. The pox approach, and add to your diseases, If it would send you hence the sooner, sir, For your incontinence, it hath deserv'd it Thoroughly, and thoroughly, and the plague to boot. (You may come near, sir) would you would once close Those filthy eyes of your's that flow with slime, Like two frog-pits: and those same hanging cheeks, Cover'd with hide, instead of skin: (nay help, sir) That look like frozen dish-clouts set on end.

Corv. Or, like an old smok'd wall, on which the rain Ran down in streaks.

Mos. Excellent, sir, speak out; You may be louder yet: a culvering Discharged in his ear, would hardly bore it.

Corv. His nose is like a common sewer, still running.

Mos. 'Tis good; and what his mouth?

Corv. A very draught.

Mos. O, stop it up —

Corv. By no means.

Mos. Pray you let me.

Faith I could stifle him rarely with a pillow, As well as any woman that should keep him.

Corv. Do as you will, but I'll begone.

Mos. Be so;

It is your presence makes him last so long.

Corv. I pray you use no violence.

Mos. No, sir, why?

Why should you be thus scrupulous? 'Pray you, sir.

Corv. Nay at your discretion.

Mos. Well, good sir, be gone.

Corv. I will not trouble him now, to take my pearl.

Mos. Puh, nor your diamond. What a needless care
Is this afflicts you? Is not all here yours?
Am not I here, whom you have made your creature,
That owe my being to you?

Corr. Grateful Mosca!

Thou art my friend, my fellow, my companion,
My partner, and shall share in all my fortunes. [Exit.

Volp. My divine Mosca!

Thou hast to-day out gone thyself.

THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE : BEING THE SECOND OF FOUR PLAYS, OR MORAL REPRESENTATIONS,
IN ONE. BY FRANCIS BEAUMONT.

Violanta, Daughter to a Nobleman of Milan, is with child by Gerrard, supposed to be of mean descent : an offence which by the laws of Milan is made capital to both parties.

VIOLANTA. GERRARD.

Viol. Why does my Gerrard grieve?

Ger. O my sweet mistress,

It is not life (which by our Milan law
My fact hath forfeited) makes me thus pensive;
That I would lose to save the little finger
Of this your noble burthen from least hurt,
Because your blood is in it. But since your love
Made poor incompatible me the parent
(Being we are not married) your dear blood
Falls under the same cruel penalty:
And can heaven think fit ye die for me?
For Heaven's sake say I ravish'd you; I'll swear it,
To keep your life and repute unstain'd.

Viol. O Gerrard, thou art my life and faculties,
And if I lose thee, I'll not keep mine own ;
The thought of whom sweetens all miseries.
Would'st have me murder thee beyond thy death ?
Unjustly scandal thee with ravishment ?
It was so far from rape, that heaven doth know,
If ever the first lovers, ere they fell,
Knew simply in the state of innocence,
Such was this act, this, that doth ask no blush.

Ger. Oh ! but my rarest Violanta, when
My lord Randulpho, brother to your father,
Shall understand this, how will he exclaim,
That my poor aunt and me, which his free alms
Hath nurs'd, since Milan by the duke of Mantua,
Who now usurps it, was surpriz'd — that time
My father and my mother both were slain,
With my aunt's husband, as she says ; their states
Despoil'd and seiz'd ; 'tis past my memory,
But thus she told me : only thus I know,
Since I could understand, your honour'd uncle
Hath giv'n me all the liberal education
That his own son might look for, had he one ;
Now will he say, dost thou requite me thus ?
O ! the thought kills me.

Viol. Gentle, gentle Gerrard,
Be cheer'd, and hope the best. My mother, father,
And uncle, love me most indulgently,
Being the only branch of all their stocks :
But neither they, nor he thou would'st not grieve
With this unwelcome news, shall ever hear
Violanta's tongue reveal, much less accuse
Gerrard to be the father of his own.
I'll rather silent die, that thou may'st live
To see thy little offspring grow and thrive. —

Violanta is attended in Childbed by her mother Angelina.

Viol. Mother, I'd not offend you : might not Gerrard
Steal in and see me in the evening ?

Angel. Well,
Bid him do so.

Viol. Heaven's blessing on your heart.
Do ye not call child-bearing travel, mother ?

Angel. Yes.

Viol. It well may be. The bare-foot traveller
That's born a prince, and walks his pilgrimage,
Whose tender feet kiss the remorseless stones
Only, ne'er felt a travel like to it.
Alas, dear mother, you groan'd thus for me,
And yet how disobedient have I been !

Angel. Peace, Violanta : thou hast always been Gentle and good.

Viol. Gerrard is better, mother :
O if you knew the implicit innocency
Dwells in his breast, you'd love him like your prayers.
I see no reason but my father might
Be told the truth, being pleas'd for Ferdinand
To wooe himself : and Gerrard ever was
His full comparative ; my uncle loves him,
As he loves Ferdinand.

Angel. No, not for the world,
Since his intent is cross'd : lov'd Ferdinand
Thus ruin'd, and a child got out of wedlock,
His madness would pursue ye both to death.

Viol. As you please, mother. I am now, methinks,
Even in the land of ease ; I'll sleep.

Angel. Draw in

The bed nearer the fire : silken rest
Tie all thy cares up*.

Violanta describes how her Love for Gerrard began.

Viol. Gerrard's and my affection began
In infancy : my uncle brought him oft
In long coats hither.
The little boy would kiss me, being a child,
And say he lov'd me ; give me all his toys,
Bracelets, rings, sweetmeats, all his rosy smiles :
I then would stand and stare upon his eyes,
Play with his locks, and swear I loved him too ;
For sure methought he was a little Love,
He wooed so prettily in innocence,
That then he warm'd my fancy.

* Violanta's prattle is so very pretty and so natural in her situation, that I could not resist giving it a place. Juno Lucina was never invoked with more elegance. Pope has been praised for giving dignity to a game of cards. It required at least as much address to ennoble a lying-in.
